Roundup-

in the 1941 Roundup is a university varsity band concert, to which the public is invited, at 4 p. m., Saturday, June 7, on the quadrangle south of University hall. Sunday evening, June 8, at 7:30, alumni, students and the general public will participate in a community sing in the east stadium at the north end of the campus.

Special features.

Besides the regular community sing, the university school of music has arranged for special features, including a double quartet and a male quartet.

Alumni association officers for next year will be announced at the alumni-faculty reunion luncheon scheduled for the Student Union ballroom at 12:30, Saturday noon, June 7. Highlight of the luncheon, however, will be the presentation

Nebraska's department of art will hold its annual exhibition of student work in Morrill beginning May 25 and closing June 8. Highlight of the exhibit will be an open house on Sunday, June 1, where faculty and students of the department will receive parents and other visitors to the galleries.

Displays will be on both second and third floors of the building, with all galleries open to the public on week days from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., and on Sundays from 2 to 5 p. m.

Eleven senior students will be honored and much of their work will be displayed in the 1941 exhibition. They include Floyd McCarty, Thomas McClure, Murray Trumbull, John Johnson, James Minnick, Lynn Robert Wolfe, Joseph Weinberg, Jean Tool, Dean Bowman, Marie D. Phillips and Blanche Larson.

Starting at the west end of the third floor, the department curriculum will be represented by work done in freshman courses and will continue in sequence with examples of beginning drawing in charcoal, chalk, pencil and brush.

Work in lettering, including monograms, trademarks, package design and newspaper and magazine layouts, will adjoin the beginning drawing exhibition. Examples of figure construction and study of basic problems preparatory to drawing human figures, done by art anatomy students, will be on display also.

During the Sunday open house three freshman students, Edith Schuchman, Turney Sharrar and Frank Hollabaugh, will work on a mural design in room 307. Additional work in murals will be displayed on second floor, where Thomas McClure is working on mural panels for the music room of the Union. According to Prof. Dwight Kirsch, chairman of the department of art, this is the first time beginning classes have been engaged in a mural project.

In gallery B, on the second floor, examples of sculpture, interior decoration, illustration, and commercial art will be displayed along with work in perspective.

ROTC units prepare for competition

Nebraska's army to hold annual parade tomorrow

While foreign armies fight, Nebraska's little army will compete, for tomorrow 2,000 members of the ROTC will polish their shoes, spiff up their uniforms and try for medals in the unit's annual competition.

Observing what the cadets have learned in classrooms will be almost 50 army officers who will act as judges for the contests involving everything from entire companies to individuals.

Starting at 1 p. m., the day will be climaxed by a parade at 3 where medals will be given, awards presented, and the brigade reviewed.

Among the many persons presenting various awards during the afternoon will be Gov. Dwight Griswold, Mayor Richard O. Johnson of Lincoln, Miss May Pershing, Chancellor C. S. Boucher, Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering, Mrs. Lawrence Jones, Col. Frankforter, and Miss Maurine Maulster, honorary cadet colonel.

In addition to persons presenting awards, others who have been invited by the commandant of cadets, Col. Charles A. Thuis, to be present in the reviewing stand after the competition proper include all university deans, members of the board of regents, and coed sponsors of cadet units.

If it rains . . .

In the event of rain, most of the compet will be held in the coliseum, with some of the drill schedules omitted. First aid competition will be staged in room 201, Nebraska hall; and the individual manual of arms competition will be held in the east stadium. The field artillery tests for the best gun squad will be transferred to the Motor Transport building on the campus of the college of agriculture.

Sponsoring individual awards are the United States Field Artillery association, Engineer Reserve

Officers of Lincoln and Omaha, Lincoln chamber of commerce, Maj. Lawrence Jones, Col. C. J. Frankforter, Maj. Walter J. Gardner, Col. Leo J. Crosby, the Omaha World-Herald, the University Athletic Board of Control, Lieut. E. C. Richardson, the University Rifle club, and the university military department.

Geological group holds banquet; Harvey is prexy

The university chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national geological honorary fraternity, held its annual spring banquet at the Hotel Cornhusker last night.

Pete Smith, graduate of the University of Texas, was main speaker at the dinner, presided over by Otto Griess, retiring president of the Nebraska chapter.

New officers elected at a meeting Thursday, May 22, and presented at the dinner last night are Lyle Harvey, president; Carl Wahl, vice president; Loren Toohy, secretary; Don McCarthy, treasurer, and William Horney, editor.

Retiring officers, in addition to Griess, are William Iverson, retiring vice president; Elliot Bratt, secretary-treasurer, and Lyle Harvey, editor.
