Athletic Feats by John Mackey

Somewhere in this favored land the sun was shining, as the curtain dropped on that most memorable inning of all All-Star games, somewhere bands were playing, somewhere people sang and shouted. But alas, this was not the spirit for those color bearers of Will McKechnie's National leaguers. There was confidence in Ted Williams' stride as he stepped to bat that day. Steee-rikes 1, and 2 were called, Ted next worked Pitcher Claude Passeau for a ball, then the thunder struck, once more the hurtling spheroid left pitcher Passeau's big hand only to be forestalled in its route to catcher Hank Danning's leather mitt by the biggest bat in today's baseball, 325 feet long and 90 high was the name tall Ted had carved for himself when the ball fell to rest atop the press box in right field. Thus did another, thrill-packed All-Star spectacle in a series of nine clashes come to a close with the jubilant American leaguers, handled by Detroit's Del Baker, emerging with its sixth victory. A game in which Arky Vaughn of Pittsburgh's Pirates won for himself all the hero laurels in the National league ranks, and Joe DiMag poled his 49th safe hit in as many contests as his record continued to soar.

Alvin Francis, will have an added his bride's hometown for a honeyincentive for increasing his line crashes next pigskin season both in power and number. He will not only be playing before the encouraging eyes of thousands of Cornhusker fans, but also before the most attentive eyes of his new wife, pretty Yvonne Costello of Walthill. Vike will take unto himself his wife the 17th day of this month, and will depart immedi-

> If while you happen to be passing by the open end of the Stadium and see a whirling plate soar from out of nowhere on an extended flight up field, and then gently fall to earth again 150 feet from where it started, don't mislead yourself into thinking someone is firing missiles from a catapult. It is merely an afternoon workout for September's sophomore, Howard Debus, with his favorite toy, the discus. It looks like we hope, that between Howard and Big Six champ Ed Wibbels, who incidentally has hurled the platter to a mark only 8 feet short of the world's best mark held by Indiana's big Archie Harris, the honors will again be wrested from a surging field of conference contestants to be stored safely away within the walls of Cornhusker stockade.

The axe again fell on Major Jones' gridiron hopes for next fall in the form of an Army invitation to end Willard Bunker. Willard did his prepping at Lincoln high, and last fall earned a major letter as a sophomore. Returning service men Kathol, Ludwick, and Preston will have a lot of work ahead of them in maintaining the reputation and prestige they earned for themselves last season along with the aid of "Senator" Prochasica and Butch Wertmann. However they are going to have plenty of support from several understudies and not just a little competition

Union sponsors swim to Beach

People who like to swim have plenty of opportunity in the next week. The Union again guarantees to pay transportation to Capitol Beach Pool Wednesday afternoon, July 16, if students regis-ter at the Union checkstand by Tuesday evening. At least fifteen students must register to make the trip possible. The bus will leave at 2:30 p. m. and return to the Union at 5:15.

Mixed swims for men and women are still in progress at the university pool on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. Students may bring their own suits, and all they need is a health permit from the Student Health Office. The session is open both for beginning and advanced swimmers, and games will be organized for the frivolous in na-
