

Scrap Irony

By Chris Petersen

STRADJEDY.

I have a friend by the name of Mort Levin and here's the way he looks at Hitler. To summarize, he thinks Hitler should be beat around the bush but who wants to summarize?

Hitler is up the creek.

His war machine is just about as full of life as a Bach fugue. The carburetor doesn't carb, the differential doesn't differ, and the motor doesn't mote. All of which is evidence of the above.

Major Field A. Bunt is talking through his brass hat. He says: "An enlightened bundersnatch marching on a country life that of England when coming into contact with their vorpal womraths will certainly result in a frabjous day for the Hitler war machine." That is a lie. The Major should be stood in bed.

War is not a clam bake. Men do not like being made into swiss cheese and dislike being surrounded by blood which is their own after being shot in the belly. The soldiers waiting to invade are now tired of playing poker. Hitler had promised them a hunk of nice invaded territory and now he is not living up to his promise. The money which a soldier gets is too little to have a good poker game.

Thus Hitler is having trouble.

In case if Hitler should not surrender which I doubt, he will take ten divisions of Panzies into the southeast part of Madagascar to liberate a German minority there which is comprised of a blonde bus-boy at the International Hotel and a 70-year old beachcomber who complains that the people there do not pay him for over tide. This military manuevre will make the USSR sore who will see it as a threat to their supremacy in the Pink Sea.

On the other hand, Churchill is no dope. Churchill is not up a creek. I am not suggesting that Churchill has never been up a creek because he has. He and I have been up the creek a lot of times playing spin the milkbottle with Marie. Marie has not been up the creek for a long time either. We flipped a shotgun, Church and I, and George married her. Now George is up the creek. But not Winston. Nor me.

Yah, there ain't no doubt about the fact that Hitler is up the creek. Nothing to do now but wait for the spring floods to get him. In the meantime, I'll try the four ball in the side pocket.
