

The Sports Mill

By Bob Miller

Fraternity and barb intramurals will begin within a week or two. . . . The university has gone to considerable expense to provide a system whereby fellows who do not have a chance to compete in varsity athletics can still get exercise. . . .

For several years the intramural department has been offering trophies to the winners of the various sports in addition to the Jack Best trophy for the fraternity having the best all-around record. . . .

A great deal of effort is spent annually to make an interesting sports program for all concerned. . . . 27 trophies will be offered this year. . . . Let's make it worth the department's time. . . .

Several nights ago there was a meeting of barb frosh to formulate the year's schedule. . . . Director of intramural activity, Rolly Herney, stated that there were only 25 attending the meeting. . . .

To get down to the core of the matter, closer co-operation with the activities outlined by the department is of prime necessity. . . . Whenever a meeting is scheduled that is important as will be the case in the next week, fraternities and barb organizations should give everything they can to make this a good intramural year. . . .

Bert Bell, co-owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Professional league, also coach of the team, has announced his resignation from the coaching job. . . .

He gives as his excuse for the resignation the fact that his team was beaten by two of the league's poorer teams. . . . He has decided to give all of his talents along the executive line henceforth. . . .

The local interest emanating from the announcement came in a companion announcement. . . . Link Lyman, Husker line coach, has been named along with Paddy O'Driscoll, Pete Cawthorn and Buff Donelli for the vacancy. . . .

What, another Pennsylvania entanglement? . . .

Husker Foes Begin Firing On Saturday

All of Nebraska's foes but Pittsburgh gain a week's experience in actual combat over the sons of Nebraska by jumping into their season's schedules a week before the Cornhuskers are due to appear before the public. . . .

One of the banner attractions for this week is the contest Saturday between the Minnesota Gophers and Washington. Last year the Vikings squeezed past Washington to go on through the season undefeated and to become the national champs. It will be the first test under fire for the Gophers and should give Nebraska followers a preview of the happenings in Memorial stadium, Minneapolis, Saturday, Nov. 8, when the Huskers meet them. . . .

Another battle to catch the eyes of experts along the football front for Saturday is the test of the Missouri Tigers' strength against Ohio State. The Tigers are a question mark as yet, but have been picked by many experts as the most likely team to win the Big Six. . . .

An inter-sectional feature for the week-end will be the tilt to be played at Philadelphia Friday night between Kansas U. and Temple. Iowa State, Nebraska's foes for next week, will meet Denver university on the Denver sod. The homcoming attraction for Nebraska, Indiana, will open its 1941 schedule against Detroit. . . .

Battles for supremacy of the state will take place in Kansas, Iowa and Oklahoma. Hobbs Adams' K. Staters will tangle with the Fort Hays, Kansas, boys. Iowa will meet Drake at Iowa City. The Sooners will meet the tough Oklahoma Aggies at Norman. . . .

Other headliners for the week will be Stanford-Oregon, Navy-William and Mary, Louisiana State-Holy Cross, Tulane-Boston college and Purdue-Vanderbilt. These are just a few of the many major opening attractions. With these games on the slate, there's no talk about early season push-overs for the leading contenders for national recognition. . . .
