

UN Rooters Rally Thursday

Corn Cobs, Tassels Plan Big Send-off

Victory Bell, Band Will Lead Parade from Union To Station Thursday Night

Cornhusker fans will congregate Thursday evening for the first rally of the year to send the 1941 Husker football team off to Ames in quest of another victory over the Cyclones.

Corn Cobs and Tassels, men and women's pep clubs, are in charge of the rally and have completed plans for what they hope will materialize into one of the biggest rallies in Nebraska history.

Husker supporters will meet in front of the Student Union at 7 p. m. One of the university bands will be on hand to lead a rally parade, and the "Victory Bell," inspirer of many a Husker team, will be manned by Corn Cobs and Tassels. The parade will proceed down R street to 16th, north on 16th to Vine, and then to the stadium.

Max Whittaker, chief cheerleader, will lead the rally at the station in Husker cheers and songs. A display of fireworks is also planned.

Members of the pep clubs will make a pre-rally tour of all the organized houses at dinner time Wednesday evening. The Tassels will pass out "N" feathers Wednesday to university students to be worn at the rally.

Everybody come!

Popularity Queen . . .

'Blondie' Wins the Hearts Of Zoology Profs at Bessey

. . . But She Likes Grasshoppers

One of the most popular blondes on the campus—if she would only give up grasshoppers—moved into Bessey hall last year and has taken permanent residence according to Edson Fichter and Don Davis, gentlemen most interested in science, especially blondes.

Blondie is an affectionate, stripped ground squirrel who has won the hearts of Fichter and Davis, assistants of the Zoology department.

Fed by Eye-dropper.

The story of Blondie is both sad and dramatic. Born May 15, 1940 at the Irving junior high school science museum, the baby blonde, along with her four other brunette sisters and brothers, became orphaned when 15 days old. Answering a plea for aid from the junior high school authorities, Fichter and Davis nursed the family for several days by means of an eye dropper and cow's milk.

When authorities tried to secure a mother, one of the litter

Yearbook Staff Sell '41 Copies At Reduction

Thirty 1941 Cornhuskers, which were contracted last year with a two dollar deposit, are at the Cornhusker office unclaimed. Original contractors have been given until tomorrow to claim them.

These Cornhuskers, originally valued at five dollars, will be on sale for $3.50 if still unclaimed by 5 o'clock Wednesday. Students interested are asked to inquire at the Cornhusker office in the Union any afternoon after 2 o'clock.

Daily Adds Barb Editor To News Staff

Now in charge of covering barb activities and barb society news for the Daily is Mary Ellen Sim, who has been appointed barb editor by Editor in Chief Mary Kerrigan of the Nebraskan.

Barbs are asked to turn in news at the Daily office or at the barb office, room 307 of the Union. They may telephone 2-1171 to report their items.

Nebraskan Editor Determines Seats At Drawing Today

Distribution of student tickets for the Nebraska football games this year will be determined this afternoon at 1 p. m. when Mary Kerrigan, editor of the Daily Nebraskan, draws tickets from the traditional fish-bowl at the athletic office in the coliseum.

Costing $5, the tickets may be reserved in blocs. They must be purchased, however, before 1 p. m. if they are to be included in the drawing.

Less desirable tickets for students will be available after the drawing, John K. Selleck, business manager of the athletic department said yesterday. Each student must present his identification card when purchasing his ticket, Selleck stated.

Today's the Day to Celebrate; For Tomorrow Collegians Pay

Defense Taxes to Uncle Sam

By Art Rivin.

Hurry coeds. You have exactly one day to telephone dad, have him wire you a few hundred, and run down to buy your new fur coat. Tomorrow morning, Oct. 1, that same coat will cost you ten percent more.

Remember that revenue bill that Congress recently passed, to

Deadline Nears For Air Course

Deadline for admittance to the beginning flying course, CPT 50, has been set for five o'clock, Wednesday, Oct. 1. Any university student is eligible for the course; he need not be in the college of engineering. Credit up to three hours is granted.

which the newspapers devoted much space, and to which you paid little, if any, attention? Well it's here, now, and it will effect all of us.

This fur coat business isn't all. The government needs quite a few billion extra for national defense, so we pay for it.

We're Paying.

Here's how:

Admission to anything which costs one cent or over will be taxed to the tune of 10 percent. That means that if you go to a bowery dance where admission to each single dance is five cents, you pay six cents for a ticket.

The law says that anyone in the uniform of the armed forces of the U. S. would be exempt from this tax. Yes, I asked about the ROTC. No deal!

Theatre Holds Talent Tryouts

. . . For 'East Lynne'

Having set 100 percent student interest as their goal, University Theatre heads took another step yesterday in the Theatre's rejuvenation policy by setting Wednesday and Thursday nights for first tryouts for the first production, East Lynne.

Students may try out either night in room 201 of the Temple beginning at 7:30. Only requirement is that students have athletic eligibility.

With Tassels geared to begin an extensive sales campaign this morning, Paul Bogen, director of the theatre, announced that East Lynne, chosen by students in the recent popular poll, will require 20 students in the cast.

Musical Talent Needed.

Students with musical talent, either vocal or dancing, are needed along with those having dramatic ability, Bogen said. There are about six singing and dancing parts, he said.

Altho the play won't be produced until Oct. 29, 30 and 31, Tassels are at tables in social sciences, Andrews, the Union, and the Temple selling tickets. The drive will be centered on the campus altho townspeople will also be contacted.

Tryouts for the experimental theatre will also be held at the same time, Bogen said. Freshmen and students ineligible for University Theatre productions may try out.

Ag Extension Men Attend Conference

Seven representatives of the extension department at ag college are attending a central states extension marketing conference and a regional agricultural experiment station conference at Iowa State college this week.

The representatives were W. W. Brokaw, director of the extension department; Harry Gould, assistant director; Jesse Mason, J. R. Leonard, Mrs. Ethel Bowen, Jerry S. Lawrence, and Mary Ellen Brown.

Aid to farmers in marketing and distributing products, developing better strains of hogs, consideration of federal-state relations and other research and experimental projects will be discussed at the conference which will last till Friday.

Frosh AWS Members Sell 'N' Stamps

"N" stamps, sold by the freshmen members of the AWS to create additional interest and spirit for homecoming, will be on sale Thursday, Oct. 2, when there will be a meeting of all freshmen women in Ellen Smith hall at 5 p. m., Susan Shaw, chairman of the drive, announced.

These stamps, costing one cent each, are purchased by people in and around Lincoln. Business men of Lincoln buy many of them and put them on letters or advertising material which, sent to all parts of the state, introduces the stamps to thousands of people and thereby puts widespread interest on the homecoming game with Indiana.

The member selling the most stamps is awarded an "N" pin. This campaign brings additional currency into the AWS coffers and is used for the activities undertaken by the organization.

Corn Cob Prexy Calls Meeting

All actives and pledges are required to attend the Corn Cob meeting Wednesday night, according to R. Donald Steele, president. Actives report at 7:15 p. m. and pledges at 7:30 in room 315 of the Union.

Phil Kantor, Max Laughlin and Bob Fast, members of the rally committee, sent out a call for Corn Cob workers yesterday to come to the west stadium this afternoon at 2 to help decorate the liberty bell for the rally Thursday evening.

New pledges, alumnae and actives who did not get their seats in the Corn Cob section yesterday may still get their tickets for seats in the section at the meeting Wednesday night. Those who want tickets in the section must bring five dollars and their identification cards.

Ag Frosh Council Meets Tonight

Second in a series of meetings of the freshman council of the ag college YMCA will be held today at 7 in 306 ag hall. Dr. T. H. Gooding will speak on "Are Professors Human?" All ag freshman are urged to attend.

Kosmet Klub Plans Fall Show, Annual Smoker

Kosmet Klub, the university men's dramatic organization, wheeled into action yesterday as it held its first meeting, in the Kosmet Klub office in the Union.

Walt Rundin, president of Kosmet Klub, outlined plans for the Klub's activities for the coming year. Plans were especially discussed for the fall show. The Kosmet Klub puts on two big shows during the school year, one in the fall and the other in the spring.

There will be a smoker for the new pledges next Thursday at 7:30 in the N club rooms in the coliseum.

Out of this group those who accomplish the most work will be initiated into the club next spring.

If Your Blonde's A Brunette Now, It's Black Magic

There's a boom in the carbon paper market. Several cute blondes and redheads are disappearing from the campus and exotic brunettes are emerging in their places. Explanation? Black magic.

Someone in Northeast started the idea of dyeing hair by rubbing it with carbon, and the idea is spreading. To date, there are seven new glamour girls.

Cheerleaders Practice Today

There will be practice for all cheerleaders at 5 p. m. today in the stadium. If it is raining, the meeting will be held in the Nebraskan office. Max Whittaker, Yell King, will be in charge of the practice.
