Departing somewhat from the old-line of football, namely the single and double wing back and shert punt formations, Coach Biff Jones pulled a cat out of the bag Saturday when on the first play from scrimmage the Huskers ran a play off the T foramtion ...

Ever since the fall season has started considerable speculation has been done on whether or not Nebraska would switch to a mere wide-open offensive attack.... At last confirmation has ben given but we're still in the dark about the amount of its use this season...

When the Huskers climbed off the train at Ames Friday afternoon and went to the field to have a secret practice session things went bad for the squad ... A wait of 20 minutes for transportation plus rain added up to an uncomfortable afternoon...

Then to top things off when the Biffer put the gridders through what he had requested to be a secret session, the entire athletic department, it seemed, took up posts at the windows of the Cyclone field house to see what was going

All of this combined to make things a little raw by the time the stage was all set Saturday afternoon.... Even the Des Moines paper came out on the morning of the game with the headline, "Sh-h! Nebraska May Use 'T' ...

They also were courteous enough to explain how the T would work and also who would be in motion ... Oh they were very helpful about the whole thing ...

Kansas U Jayhawkers Set To Display Expert Passer

. . . Miller Shows Accuracy

Rumblings have been heard emanating from the Kansas U. Jayhawk that are directed along one chain of thought. That is, Kansas is suffering from a lack of experienced starters.

On the starting team Saturday against Washington University of St. Louis, there were seven lettermen and four sophomores. Notwithstanding this fact, the Jayhawkers put up a good enough game to win, 19-6.

Starting Backfield.

In the backfield that started the contest were Ralph Miller, quarterback; Ray Evans, sophomore halfback; Don Pollom, half and Ed Linquist, fullback.

Of this quartet Miller is the outstanding player. Until Saturday's game he was rated as one of the best passers in the country but little was known of his running ability.

Miller Running Star.

In the game with Washington, Miller was the individual running star and on one occasion took a pass from Ray Niblo, going 45 yards

This Miller is the same player that last year burned up aerial trailways with his passing attack. He led all passers in the nation during the 1939 season on completions. His percentage was over the .600 mark.

Tosses Thirteen Strikes.

Against Temple, K. U.'s first opponent this season, Miller tossed 13 out of 24 perfect strikes which accounted for some 185 yards for the Jayhawkers. It is a combination of Miller's passing and running that may make the afternoon long when the two teams get together

Miller weighs 170 pounds and stands 6-1. This is his senior year. Ray Evans gets the nod at the right half position and will do the brunt of the line plunging.

Evans Plunger.

He was the player that repeatedly sifted through the freshman line to ring up several touchdowns besides showing up well in both the Temple and Washington games. The sophomore star tips the scales at 186 pounds and is 6-1.

Don Pollom is the real speed star of the Jayhawk backfield and depends a great deal on this speed to get around opposing ends. He held the high school 200 yard low hurdles national record and still has much of his old speed. He was handicapped last spring by the recurrence of an old back injury but this fall has shown sufficient drive to win a starting berth.

Pollom is Light-weight.

Pollom weighs only 166 and stands but 5-11. Filling out the backfield is Ed Linquist who plays the fullback post. Linquist stands out particularly as a line backer and divides the plunging henors with

This is his second year on the squad winning a letter last year. His 186 pounds on a 5-10 frame gives the idea of chunkiness but he can play football and that's all that counts to the Kansas coach Gwinn

This backfield will weigh around 177 pounds and Neraska's first backfield tips the scales at 189.
