Aerial Battle Looms When Game Starts

Huskers and Jayhawks Insure Fans Trickery With Huskers Favored

It may be a battle of aerial artists tomorrow when Kansas University's Jayhawks meet the Cornhuskers for the Jones' boys first home game and the Big Six conference opener.

The Biffer has stressed pass offense this week, and that, added to the fact that Gwinn Henry's eleven has a five pound per man weight advantage, may keep the ball in the air most of the time.

Altho the Kansans' 31-6 defeat at the hands of Temple in their opener, and their 19-6 victory over a fair Washington University team are not too impressive, the fact that Henry's team has connected with 17 passes out of 31 attempts this season definitely is impressive.

In their opener against Temple, Ralph Miller, Jayhawk quarterback and ace aerial artist heaved 24 forwards and 13 of those tosses were completed for a total of 184 yards. Despite the top heavy score, Kansas, in addition to outyarding the Owls 16 to 13, rolled up 284 yards rushing and passing, against 274 for the eastern team.

On a wet field against Washington U, Henry pulled Ray Niblo back to the passing position, with Niblo completing 3 for 3 attempts, and two of the Kansans three touchdowns.

Whether or not Jones will unleash the "turrible T" that everybody is talking about to cope with the "spinner wing" plays employed by the Kansans is a question, and will remain so until tomorrow afternoon.

From the Major's practice sessions this week no certain information concerning Saturday's style of play can be gained. Speed and power plays combined with long passing workouts, and the ever present T at its best are all possibilities.

Add a Kansas advantage in both line and backfield in starting lineups to the jinx that is Gwinn Henry, and what have you? Henry-coached teams have a record of three wins, three ties, and only five defeats with Nebraska, and Henry's Missouri teams of 1926-7-8 ran over Cornhusker teams with three successive victories.

For the expected 25,000 fans in Memorial stadium tomorrow, Nebraska will be a heavy favorite, and both Henry and Jones will be praying for a dry day.

management and the "spinner-wing" offenses, Nebraska's ever-present passing threat and the Jayhawks air record to date, the fact that the game is a conference opener and a chance for the Huskers to show off for the home folks, a 52-3 humiliating last year which should bring the Kansans back fighting mad—and Saturday p. m. should provide an interesting afternoon for those present.
