UN Adds Course On Microwaves To Aid Defense

The university took another step in cooperation with the national defense program yesterday when announcement of a new course in microwave technique was made by Prof. F. W. Norris.

Working with United States office of education, the university has designed the course to aid in meeting the shortage of technical graduates with special training in ultra-high frequency.

Grads Meet Army Needs.

The new field is closely related to radio and television, and graduates with special training will be used to meet the impending and urgent need in the army and defense industries.

The course in microwave technique is a division of the Engineering, Science and Management Defense Training program under direction of the Federal Securities agency and will be carried out in several universities.

For senior students in electrical engineering or physics, who have taken or will take this year the communications option to the extent of at least five semester credits, it has been proposed that co-operating institutions will make available during the second semester of this school year this elective ESMDT course of approximately four semester credits. In this course foundations will be laid for dealing with the new devices and the higher range of frequencies.

Substitution for Required Course.

This course may be used as a substitute for regularly required or elective courses, according to engineering officials.

A tentative course outline has been submitted the FSA and will (See MICROWAVES, page 2)

Advance Sales To RAF Movie Close at Noon

Sales Going Excellently As War Relief Society, Defense Group End Drive

Advance ticket sales for the movie "Yank in the RAF," close at noon today. All Corn Cob and Tassel salesmen must check in their tickets at the Union office before the 12 o'clock deadline.

Price of admission to the show is 44 cents. Ten cents of this price goes to the British War Relief society. The project on this campus is being sponsored by the student national defense committee.

A Betty Grable-Tyrone Power attraction of the Stuart theatre, the movie will begin Oct. 24. None of the proceeds of box office admissions will go to British war relief, however.

According to Pat Lahr, Union social director, 660 tickets have been checked out, and sales are going excellently.

Dr. Leverton Conducts Study Of Anemic University Coeds

. . . Uses Vitamin Capsules

By Carol Garver.

Highly concentrated vitamin supplements, too expensive for individuals of moderate means, will be given to a few selected coeds suffering from anemia in a study that is being carried out by Dr. Leverton of the home economics nutrition research division on ag campus.

These special vitamin capsules are being donated for the research study by the Abbots Pharmaceutical House in Chicago. The students will take one capsule per day and have a regular red cell and hemoglobin test made before and after taking the vitamins.

Last year Dr. Leverton worked with a similar experiment using anemic women from Union college as her patients. They were (See DEFENSE, page 2)

Husker Fans Stage Rally On Thursday

It'll be rally time Thursday night when UN fans will gather to send the injured-ridden Nebraska football team to Columbia, Mo., where the Huskers will seek a victory after Saturday's loss to Indiana.

Freshman women will be allowed to leave their houses at 9 p. m. the time of the rally, until 10:15 p. m. according to the AWS board and the dean of women.

Members of the rally committee, emphasizing the importance of letting the team know that students are still behind them despite their recent defeat, urged everyone to attend the rally which will begin at 9 p. m. in front of the Union.

In the twilight procession with the victory bell and the regimental band again leading the parade, fans will march east to 16th street, north to S, then west to 14th, south on 14th to R. At R street, the procession will move south to (See RALLY, page 2)

Boucher will greet delegates at the general session and Dr. W. H. Pillsbury, superintendent of schools, Schenectady, New York, will speak on "Education for National Defense." In the evening two of the prominent speakers will be H. R. Knickerbocker, war correspondent, and Rene Dussaq, scholar and world traveler. Knickerbocker, a leading analyst of events in the war-torn countries, will talk on the position of the United States in the crisis, and Dussaq will speak on a South American's view of South America.

Lunch at Cornhusker.

At the luncheon at the Cornhusker tomorrow Dr. W. R. Baller, university teacher's college, will speak on "Some Recent Research in Child Development," and at the panel discussions Dr. Walter Beggs, Dwight Kirsch, and Lloyd Teale will talk. Prof. Bertram C. Schultz will speak on excavating and mounting fossils and Prof. Franklin D. Kiem will talk on new crops in Nebraska.

The convention will last through Friday.

Barbs Elect Marvin to Draft Plans for Men's Dormitories

Dave Marvin was appointed at a general barb meeting last night to organize a permanent board to raise and administer funds for the establishment of men's co-operative dorms. Members of the newly reorganized barb groups also voted to found a long-time fund available to the prospective co-ops.

Marvin was also elected temporary treasurer to supervise finances for the remainder of the first third of the barb social program this year, and Marjorie May was selected to represent the barbs on the Union board of directors. She takes the place vacated by Jacqueline Woodhouse.

Because of the small attendance, no officers of the reorganized barb clubs were elected. Nominations, subject to additions at the next meeting, were made. These included: for president, Bill Dafoe; vice president; George Campen, Lester Wiltterdink, Ellis Ruby, Mary Ellen Sim; secretary, Dorothy White, Norma Watkins; treasurer, Dave Marvin, Lloyd Glover and Ralph Fox.
