'Secession' Threatened By Barbs Over Proposal

Council Opposes Election Change

... In Heated Meeting

Open rebellion flared in a torrid session of the student council last night when George Campen, barb, jumped to his feet and declared that every barb member of the council would immediately resign should the student council go on record as opposing the petition being backed by the barbs to amend the council constitution.

"All except one!" was the retort coming from Bob Alberty, also a barb, who followed the majority of the council in its disregard of Campen's threat in voting and in its final decision to oppose the amendment which would have the members of the council elected under the Hare system and according to proportional representation. Gilbert Hueftle, last year's junior class president and a barb, walked out during the balloting.

The heated discussion began when Burton Thiel, president of the council, recognized Bill Dafoe, not a member of the council but barb leader who proposed the plan, and invited him to explain the petition. Stating that he believed the council had previously planned to oppose the amendment, Dafoe refused to explain the petition article by article because of its length and complexity, but offered to answer any questions about it which might be asked from the floor.

Asked by Thiel to dispense with the preliminaries, Dafoe proceeded to answer the torrent of questions which followed. A general debate of confusion began, with Preston Hays, Marion Cramer Aden, and Chris Petersen leading the opposition. Finally Professor Lantz, council faculty advisor, asked that the advantages be clearly enumerated.

In answer Dafoe stated, "The present system of election will greatly simplified." An unbelieving echo of snickers rose from the council.

"Second," he said, "the representatives would be elected according to the respective strength of parties, with a one to four ratio between the ag and city campuses.

We Vote--NO

At the election next Tuesday, students will vote Yes or No on the Barb proposal to change membership on the Student Council. We want to cast our verbal vote now. It is an emphatic No.

If this proposal goes through, it will junk all of the progress which has been made in the past ten years in improving student government on this campus. Ten years ago the Student Council constitution was formulated by one of the members of the political science department. Every year since then improvements have been made in the constitution to make it more fair and more efficient. Elections have been cleaned up, projects cared on for the advancement of the entire university and a system of student representation from all colleges worked out on the fairest basis possible.

Even though it meant bringing more politics into the council, a proportional representation clause was written into the
