

Swift's Company . . . Fellowships Assist Research In Universities, Med Schools . . . In Study of Foods

CHICAGO, October 31.—(Special)—Scientific attack on problems of American diet was furnished today with the announcement by Charles H. Swift, chairman of the board of directors of Swift & Co., of the establishment of a series of fellowships for research in nutrition.

The fellowships are intended to aid the federal government in its long-range national nutrition program. They will provide for special research in laboratories of universities and medical schools with funds which the company has set aside as grants in aid, beginning Nov. 1.

Any fundamental study of the nutritive properties of foods or the application of such information to improvement of the American diet and health will be eligible for consideration for a grant, according to Dr. R. C. Newton, vice president in charge of the company's research laboratories, who will coordinate the program.

A higher level of nutrition for the better health of all Americans in an integral part of national progress," Swift pointed out in making the formal announcement. "To advance fundamental knowledge of foods and to discover or develop ways to feed our nation better and make our people healthier, happier, and more efficient, Swift & Company has undertaken to expand its support of nutrition research.

Costumes—

out aisle vendors and minus colorful programs in typically florid language.

Wandering back-stage I found those responsible for the costuming effect. Having just been dug out of some old files showing dress of the "Gay Nineties" were Mrs. Delford Brumer and her assistants, Norma Jean Brittain, Lorene Beans, Margie Miller and Gwendolyn Guest. Most of the costumes, I found, were remodeled by the dramatic students. Many were donated by various patrons of the theater especially from the McMurtrey estate this summer.

After seeing "East Lynne" all I can say is thank heavens for modern times.

And also thanks for the popcorn machine in the lobby.

Busy Man . . .

Bookkeeper at Wisconsin U. Handles Oil Well, Barber Pole . . . All Sorts of Gifts

MADISON, Wis. (ACP). As "bookkeeper" for the University of Wisconsin's gift and endowment funds, M. E. McCaffrey, since 1905 secretary to the university regents, admits one of his greatest interests is watching the growth of the huge gift total, mainly invested in trust funds.

Three oil wells—an old barber pole—playthings for crippled children—they all play a part in this $1,366,000 story of "living memorials" which has been writing itself for 50 years.

All the gifts are busy earning funds for student loans, fellowships and scholarships. And the million dollar total doesn't include some huge estates held in trust, income from which, worth several millions, also goes to the university.

The Carl F. Jandorff memorial fund, established in 1921, has perhaps the strangest beginning of all.

A barber pole, taken from a State street shop, was carried to the campus and thrown on a peppy bonfire by celebrating students. A policeman attempted to force the students to give up the pole, and in the melee that followed when the students resisted, Jandorff, a student, was shot and killed.

Skull and Crescent fraternity raised a large flower fund for Jandorff's funeral. After the rites, they had almost $12 surplus, and gave it to the university for student loans.

The Jandorff fund is now $250, of which $50 is ready to be loaned.

Vermont Geologists Make Find

BURLINGTON, Vt. (ACP). The Vermont area is 100,000,000 years younger than scientists have supposed, according to Prof. Charles G. Doll of the geology department, University of Vermont.

During a mapping expedition, Professor Doll discovered several mineralized fossils of sea-lilies and snails in a stratum of rock where they had no geological right to be, on the basis of findings of past scientists, because those varieties were not in existence at the time the rocks were supposed to have been laid down. Perfection of the fossil calyx and stem of the sea lilies, and the type of coiling of the snails, left no doubt that they were the variety in existence during the Devonian age, 340,000,000 years ago.

The fossil proof takes the rock structure through eastern Vermont from Massachusetts to Canada, out of the Ordovician, and puts it in the Devonian age, 100,000,000 years later.

Coed Counselors Complete Plans for Friendship Party . . . Wednesday Night in Union

Plans are now being completed for the annual Coed Counselor dinner, to be held Wednesday, at 8 p. m., in the Union ballroom.

The dinner, one of the largest events to be sponsored by a university organization throughout the school year, is given to promote friendship between freshman women and upperclassmen; the dinner is a small part of the Coed Counselor program, to help new students become acquainted with campus life.

The dinner, open to any university woman student, is especially given for freshman women, for it is in them that the organization is vitally interested. An extensive ticket campaign is being carried on this week, in which members and representatives of every organized house on the campus are participating. As a further incentive to ticket sales, prizes will be awarded to the women placing first and second in sales.

Houses Cooperate.

Many organized houses are cooperating with the Coed Counselors by closing their dining rooms for that evening and thus encouraging a one-hundred per cent attendance of their members. Price of the tickets is 50 cents.

Main features of the program will be a style show, in which each organized house on the campus will be represented. Marian Cramer Aden will be in charge of this "fashion parade." Another feature of the program will include selections by the Pi Phi trio.

Shirley Phelps is chairman in charge of the dinner; her sub-chairmen and their committee assignments are: Dorothy Latsch and Margaret Forrey; ticket sales, Anne Kinder; program, Marian Aden and publicity, Carol Chapman.

Texas Profs Find 'Th, Ng' Difficult For Students

AUSTIN, Texas. (ACP). How's your articulation? Do you have difficulties pronouncing "th" or "ng"?

University of Texas speech professors find articulation is the predominant speech deficiency, more than one-fourth of all cases treated in the university's speech clinic evidencing this defect.

Stuttering is the next most prevalent speech bugaboo. Dialect causes difficulty chiefly among Spanish-speaking students.

Continuing Experiment . . .

Brown U. Encourages Sports Enjoyable After College Days . . . Allows Freedom of Choice

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (ACP) A year's experiment with a student recreation program that encourages interest in sport's and other activities which can be enjoyed thruout life has proved so successful that Brown university officials are continuing the program during 1941-42.

The Brown plan is in effect the elective system applied in the broadest sense to all kinds of recreational interests which give students fresh air, exercise and healthful enjoyment. It allows wide freedom in permitting each student to choose the kind of recreation he most wants.

From the beginning to the end of the college year there are 38 different activities in which freshmen, the only class required to participate, can meet their recreation requirement. These include, in addition to regular intramural and intercollegiate teams such recreations as golf, sailing, rifle practice, skiing, hiking and life saving. Credit is also given for Naval ROTC drill.

Prof. Leslie E. Swain of the department of physical education, who is in charge of the program, comments: "There is no reason why a student cannot take his exercise when it is convenient and enter into the kind of sports he likes the most. We are more interested in developing a healthy interest in recreation than in insisting upon proficiency in any one.
