The Saving Grace

Above the lobby of the university coliseum is a room dedicated to the accomplishments of 70 generations of Cornhusker athletes. Rarely visited by most students, this N club room is lined with scores of trophies bearing testimony to the athletic prowess of former Nebraska teams.

Tigers-Huskies Who Win and Lose Gloriously Perhaps that sentiment does not mean a lot, but it is the saving grace of the game of football as it is played today.

Today, collegiate football is played by more than just the eleven men on the field. Every Saturday thousands of fans play the game from the stands and beside their radios. Mentally they charge the line, defend the goal, carry the ball and dispute the decisions of the referee.

Three weeks ago after the first loss of the season to Indiana, members of the actively playing team expressed only admiration for the victorious Hoosiers. Two weeks ago after the second loss of the season to Missouri, members of the actively playing team expressed the opinion that the exhibition had provided some of the best football to be seen on any field in the country.

It doesn't make much difference to the members of the actively playing team that the fans in the stands and by the radios are ready to quit after three defeats. It doesn't make much difference that the experts aren't giving the boys much of a chance to win, for those boys have learned the value of the game.

Refugee Tells Of Conditions On Continent

AMES, Ia. (ACP). "Living conditions on the European continent are even worse than most Americans suspect," says Herbert Kadden, freshman engineering student at Iowa State college.

Kadden, a German citizen, was interned in Belgium when the nazi war machine rolled into the low countries. He later was sent to a concentration camp in southern France, where he stayed 10 months, refusing to go back to Germany.

"Forty thousand refugees of all nations, most of them Spanish Loyalists, lived in one camp," Kadden said. "Altho they suffered from hunger, epidemics and bad treatment from their guards, most internees preferred to stay there rather than return to their totalitarian homelands."

When Kadden was liberated he made his way across Spain and was impressed by the extreme poverty and demoralization of the Spanish people, which he declared surpassed anything he had seen in France. He went on thru Portugal and entered this country from Cuba.

He declared the morale of European nations depends heavily upon their food supplies. The Norwegians and the Dutch, with their relatively high quality rations, offer their conquerors more resistance than do the French, Poles and Belgians, who are fighting a severe food shortage, Kadden said.

The department of tropical medicine at Tulane university school of medicine is becoming one of the most important in the world since most European schools are closed because of the war.

Behind the News By David Thompson

Japan Pinched

By executive order Sunday night the president transferred the Coast Guard from the Treasury department to the Navy. This step comes under ordinary conditions only upon our official entrance into war.

Reports from the Far East give credence to the fact that Japan is feeling the pinch of no American oil these days, as they are rumored to be ready to offer a compromise to the U. S. The compromise involves three points: (1) U. S. to resume trade with Japan especially regarding oil shipments, (2) U. S. to ignore German claims that America is the aggressor in the north Atlantic, and (3) Japan also to agree not to interfere with U. S., British and Dutch interests in the south Pacific.

The importance of the second point is that under her agreement with Germany and Italy, Japan was to enter the war on the side of Germany if any other power (specifically the U. S.) began aggression against Germany. Then if Japan ignored the German claim that the north Atlantic "shoot on sight" policy of U. S. is aggression, she will not be obliged to enter the war against the U. S. and she still will not be flagrantly violating her axis agreement.

The U. S. would be foolish to consider such a proposal which so clearly indicates the critical problem that the Japanese are facing in regard to an oil shortage. At any rate it is not likely that the administration will consider any proposal which does not include a settlement which will benefit China also. Obviously the Japanese proposal is designed to allow her to give full attention to her aggression in China and fight with American oil. That situation went on for too long a time anyhow prior to our trade embargo for us to scrap the embargo now that we have had it for so short a time; at least no without some relief for China.

No, this is not meant to be a lecture on the "Evils of Womanhood." Girls are all right as long as you leave them alone. However, now that the male shortage created by the gone-with-the-draft movement has placed a value on men, the girls don't seem to want to be left alone.

Men, what are you doing to ward off women? If you have started carrying a club, or stopped taking baths, or pledged Phi Phi, nothing more can be expected. The following student survey, conducted by your inquiring reporter and approved by Bachelors, Inc., gives the opinions of the experts on how to remain free.

Jasper Clarke: I don't have to worry because they won't go with me; I study too much.

Bill Schaumberg: When they call me up for dates, Mother just tells them that I'm out.

Dean Callan and Milt Meyer: We send them Leonard Dunker's picture.

Al Busch: I hide.

Joe Sonneland: I let on as if I were a wolf.

Jack Hogan: I just smile and shake my head.

Students Organize Bachelors Club to Save on Foodstuffs

. . . Includes Social Program

Apparently the culinary art is not confined to the females if the number of men baching on ag campus is any criteria. And apparently the men are rather fond of the art because last Thursday evening 40 of them banded together in the ag college laboratory and formed the first official bachelor's club at Nebraska.

The club has a three-fold purpose—to bring about co-operative buying of foodstuffs, to promote barb participation in intramurals, and to provide a social program for the men. Thruout the year dieticians will speak before the group and discussions will be held concerning the preparation of food and methods of cooking. It is hoped that the club will bring about more balanced diets for the students.

Men Invited.

All barb men on ag campus who are doing their own cooking are
