

Grid Official's Duties . . .

The referee has general control of the game. He is sole authority for the score. His decision upon all matters not specifically under the jurisdiction of other officials is final. The referee's whistle indicates that the ball is dead or that it is again in play. The umpire has primary jurisdiction over the equipment, conduct and position of the players, and legality of substitutions. He indicates fouls by sounding his horn but play continues until the referee's whistle blows.

The linesman, under supervision of the referee, marks the progress of the ball. He watches for defensive holding of eligible receivers, and for players who are offside. He watches to see that ineligible players (tackles, guards, and center), do not advance beyond the line of scrimmage before the forward pass is made. He marks the position of the ball on each down and checks the number of the down. His assistants measure distance gained or lost.

The field judge times the game. He starts his stop watch only when the ball is actually in play and stops it immediately when: (a) ball goes out of bounds; (b) a forward pass is incomplete; (c) ball is dead after a foul; (d) a fair catch, touchdown, touchback, safety or goal is made; (e) play is suspended by the referee.

The Sports Mill

By Bob Miller

In the 15 games that constitute Nebraska-Pittsburgh relations, the Huskers have won three. . . The first victory came back in 1921 and the other two were the bright spots of the past two seasons. . . In 1939 Vike Francis and Hank Rohn counted one each and Herm Rohrig and Bus Knight added the extra points as the Panthers were nosed out, 14 to 13.

And then last year again the Huskers counted with a touchdown by Harry Hopp which it seemed would not spell the margin of victory as the Panthers drove across a touchdown of their own and then added the extra point to put them into the lead. . . Again Vike Francis spelled the difference between defeat and victory as he booted a perfect placement in the third quarter to give the Huskers the final edge, 9 to 7. . . This year marks the first time in three years that Pitt has invaded Huskerland for the touted intersectional contest.

And according to announcement Vike Francis, who has had a big part in the last two wins over the Panthers will not be on hand to help in the taming. . . Pittsburgh in on a terrific rebound after defeating Fordham and will be ready to do everything in their power to hang another defeat on the Huskers.

As Major Jones says, "It's too bad that this game has to come now when both teams are beginning to roll. One of the two is bound to be halted Saturday." Indications from the Husker camp show that the Jones' boys are sure that it will be the Pittsburgh streak that will be broken and when they feel that way, it's good enough for me. . . Hence, we predict the final score, Nebraska, 13 Pitt, 7

Rounding the bend into some of the other Big Six camps we see that the Big Six crown will be in jeopardy when Oklahoma and Missouri go on a spree. . . Both teams have won three and lost none in conference play and Oklahoma has won two and lost one outside the conference. . . Missouri has done a shade better in winning three while losing one non-conference tilt. . . This is the game that is stumping the experts but after considering the possibilities that the Sooners possess and after talking to the players that met the Tigers, we stick our neck out to pick Oklahoma.

Another grid rivalry will be resumed and in no mean terms, either, as Kansas State takes to the rails for the annual contest with Kansas U. at Manhattan. . . This is a contest is as much as a part of Kansas as is the republican party and it promises to be quite a battle. . . The final outcome is decided when and only when the final gun is heard but this year K-State seems to have the slight edge.

There are many other interesting and close games on the docket but the Big Six can hold up its head with the knowledge that when bigger and tougher games are played, this conference can put them out.

By a vote of 323 to 51, students at Catawba college have voted to change the name of the yearbook, The Swastika.

Lutherans Hold Regular Meeting Sunday Morning

Rev. H. Erck, Missouri synod Lutheran student pastor, will speak on "The Catechism of a Penny" at the regular chapel service at 10:45 a. m. Sunday in parlors YZ of the Union.

Accompanist for the singing will be Miss Margaret Austin. Gamma Delta will meet at 7:30 p. m. for Bible study and discussion. It will be followed by a social hour at 8:30.

Dr. Harold J. Hoflich, assistant professor of economics at Kent State university is serving as economist analyst with the U. S. treasury department during a year's leave of absence.

Cornhuskers Seek Upset Saturday

Jones leads the ground-gaining staff for the Smokey City team with 584 yards racked up from rushing, passing, passes intercepted and kick runbacks. He also leads in yards gained from scrimmage with 279 yards in 79 attempts.

Jones Leads Passers. . . Another place wherein Jones shows his leadership is in the passing figures. He has seven completions in 29 tries for a total of 116 yards. Jones holds another lead in the pass-interception-return department with four attempts netting a neat 93 yards.

He also leads the punting section with a 37.4 yards per attempt. Perhaps with these statistics, one can see how a Pitt team, spelled J-O-N-E-S will be potent enough to give the Huskers a mighty big headache when the teams meet.

The only common ground on the comparison of scores is the Minnesota game. Both teams lost to the Gophers: Pitt 0, Minnesota 39; Huskers 0, Minnesota 9, but football is a crazy game.

Nebraska has been making an improved showing during the last two weeks practice sessions and in the game with the Gophers, so that the game will just about be a toss-up. If they can show the scoring drive which they did last Saturday the Huskers will win. If not, they are in for a long afternoon.
