

Huskers' Morale Remains Despite Defeats

Tom Farmer Shows Goods For Iowa U

Exhibits Worth as Aerial Artist; Shares Spotlight With Green and Coupee

It was one of the Jones boys who did the damage in Pitt's win over Nebraska last weekend, and this Saturday it will probably be a Farmer—Left halfback Tom Farmer who will do much of Iowa University's offensive work when the Hawkeyes meet the Huskers in Memorial stadium.

Altho a triple-threat back Farmer's best work has been of an aerial nature, with his passes accounting for a large majority of the yards forward the Hawkeyes have chalked up to date this season.

Victory-Shy Team.

The Iowa City boys totaled three victories this season against four losses, winning over Drake (25-8), Indiana (13-7) and Illinois (21-0), dropping games to Minnesota (13-3), Michigan (0-6), Purdue (6-7) and Wisconsin (0-23). The Hawks have totaled 78 points while their opponents have a total of 86.

While Nebraskans lost to Indiana 13-21, Coach Eddie Anderson's team held the Hoosiers to 7 points, at the same time adding 13 points in their favor.

Individual Stars.

The Iowan's team, studded with such players as backs Al Coupee, Bill Green and Jim Youel, all of whom saw service with the great Iowa team of '39, will be at full strength for Saturday's tilt.

The Huskers, with Zikmund and von Goetz back in the lineup after several idle weekends, will be the strongest in reserve power and experience they have been in five games.

Of 20 members of the first board of regents of the University of Michigan, created in 1837, only seven held college degrees.

Most recent of his literary achievements, "Embezzled Heaven," was selected as the December "Book-of-the-Month." In it he chronicles the wanderings of an exiled writer who seeks a homeland in something that transcends nationalism, in humanity at large. The solution arrived at by the exile is Catholicism. It is believed that the main character of "Embezzled Heaven" is quite similar to Werfel himself.

In the fine arts college color pencils and water colors are difficult to obtain because of the present drop in imports. All paper is now becoming scarce and most books are being printed on less expensive paper.

Notebooks are now harder to supply for the priorities system has been put on the metal boosters. All students from now on may expect a gradual shortage of school supplies accompanied by an increase in price.

legiate Press association in St. Louis this weekend.

Ben Novicoff, Nebraskan business manager and Shirley Russel and Ed Calhoun, editor and business manager respectively of the Cornhusker will also attend the convention.

The broadcast, which will be carried on the entire CBS network, will be aired from 3:30 to 3:55 p. m. e.s.t (4:30 to 4:55 e.s.t.), with convention guests as delegates.

Those scheduled to take part in the discussion on whether or not college students should be allowed to finish their education before being taken into the army will represent the Universities of Minnesota, Nebraska, Maryland, and Alabama, and Carnegie Technical Institute, Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, College of Puget Sound, and Wellesley College.

Dr. F. Alton Wade of Miami university was chief scientist of the recently returned Byrd Antarctic expedition.

The Sports Mill

By Bob Miller

Iowa U. has invasion plans in formulation stage at the present time...Last week the Hawks were all primed to discharge an attack, the like of which the Gophers had not seen for the entire season...Well, they fired but the priming was not strong enough as their projected charge dropped after 13 points had been scored on the great Minnesotans.

For a time in the first half the Hawkeyes were in complete charge of the affair and it looked like the Gophers were going to be thrown for a loss...That is, until Minnesota was given a chance with the ball...Bruce Smith, All-American prospectus, came into the game at the end of the first quarter and immediately started tossing passes which ultimately tied the score...Then Big Bill Daley, the lad who did so much damage to the Huskers, started the Gopher driving machine and finally drove across for another touchdown, followed by a 77 yard touchdown by the Hawks which again tied the score...That was as close as they got to holding Minnesota after that as the latter went on to a 34-13 triumph.

It looks to us like Iowa gridders have something in the way of an offense...Considering the opposition, 13 points were a lot to score...Against Illinois, they scored 20 points, but they have not done so well otherwise...Considering, also, Nebraska's lack of scoring punch with Iowa's seeming possession of this factor and considering Nebraska's defensive stands as contrasted with Iowa, it looks like a battle pitting one one good offense against one good defense.

About the Rose Bowl-

The big laugh of the week-end was provided by Stanford...Several days previously, the Indian squad members were very happy about their showing this year so they took a poll...It was to decide the team that they wanted to invite to the Rose Bowl spectacle, come January 1...The result—well, they decided they would invite Texas U. if they got thru the season successfully...This is where the laugh comes in for not only was Texas knocked off the unbeaten pedestal by Texas Christian 14-7, but Stanford also casted defeat, 14-13, at the hands of Washington State.

Of the major colleges on this list, there are few...Minnesota tops the list and the nation with seven wins...Duke, Duquesne, Texas A & M and Bradley Tech are the others on the list...Bowl officials are certainly going to have a hard time finding two unbeaten teams to fill their bowls.

Grid Squad Shows Spirit In Practices

Herb VonGoetz Returns With Meier and Preston As Hawkeye Co-Captains

Down but not out, Nebraska's Huskers are putting their all into pre-Iowa practice sessions in an effort to snap themselves out of the losing rut they have been in for five games.

Fred Preston and Fred Meier, the two Freds on the squad, have been named co-captains for the contest that is destined to determine whether or not the Huskers can keep their spirit up enough after the consecutive defeats to defeat a loss-injured Hawkeye team on Saturday.

von Goetz Returns.

Changes hit the first string line-up as Herbie von Goetz was reinserted in his guard post after being out of the line due to a lung injury received in the Indiana skirmish. Fred Meier was shifted back to his center position while Howard Kelly went to a second-string spot.

Noticeably absent from any squad assignment were Allen Zikmund and Kenny Simmons, both of whom reported that they were in shape for the ensuing battle. Another name that was missing was Vike Francis since the eligibility board has not as yet announced his appearance in the Iowa game.

All in Suit.

All of the team were in suit as was Bob Ludwick, end, who has been doing a great deal of limping the majority of the season with an injured ankle.

During 50 years of football, Nebraska has engaged the Iowa Hawkeyes 29 times in which the Huskers have come victorious 19 times with one tie. This year has been a meager one for both teams with the Hawks having a chance to come out with 500 rating by winning Saturday. They have lost four and won three so far.

Scrimmage Uppermost.

Scrimmage has been on the docket during the past two days and the Biffer evidently intends on passing his way to a win against Iowa to break a win-drouth, whose intensity has not been felt for 42 years of football.
