

The Sports Mill

Cage Notes.

Digging the moth balls out of the cage equipment is occupying the time of Husker cage hopefuls these days...With the football season in its late stages, the basketballers are beginning to blossom forth with drills on tap daily.

This shouldn't be such a bad year for the Husker cage crew what with all the material that Coach Ad Lewandowski has available...Noted for its slump during the basketball seasons, Nebraska will attempt to capture the Big Six title to prove that this isn't purely a football state.

Gone and not forgotten are Don Fitz and Al Randall from last year's squad...These two were the leaders as far as the maple-floor sport is concerned and the present crisis in the Husker camp is caused by these two vacancies that must be filled...At this point there are plenty of individual stars on the roster but their worth cannot be computed until they are all working together on one team.

A Situation.

Returning from last year's first team will be Johnny Thompson, forward; John Fitzgibbon, forward and Sid Held at guard...If they maintain their former positions and can beat out the enterprising replacements, there will be but two holes to fill...Last year Les Livingston showed that he had the stuff called for as an able floor man and he will be aided by Max Young who seems to have hit his stride...Hartman Goetze is another who showed up in the past campaign and he will be in there battling...Lyle King, Charley Vacanti and John Hay are on hand to provide added competition...Now comes the difficult situation, the Big Six rule covering the size of squad makes a ten man limit...

With the cagers, whose names have just been mentioned, Coach Lewandowski will have nine men with experience...And look at the sophomores that are coming up to fight for the one opening...On this list are Don Andreson, Milard; Al Artman, Kearney all-state cager; Bobby Bramson, Omaha's gift; Kenny Elson, North Platte; Perry Fuller, Hastings; Bert Gissler, 6-7 1/2 center from Osceola; George Gribble, Greenwood; Bob Heinzelman, Falls City...All of these are good enough to be on most any conference squad and Nebraska will have but one opening for them to fill.

Competition will be greater this year than any year in the past decade and from the ranks should come a team that will be good enough to bring home the conference bunting...Now that the gridgers have no chance for the top slot in football, there will be added pressure on the cagers...And with a roster like the above, they can fill the job.

On the Cuff.

Hugo Outapalik, Iowa State wrestling coach, has been named a committeeman for the Pan-American games to be held in Buenos Aires next November...Quite a jump for the Cyclone grunt or groan specialist who turns out teams of high caliber in a very consistent fashion...By the way, Jerry Adams, how is the 1942 version shaping up at Nebraska?

Colorado School of Mines is ever so happy...Prospects for the winter chess team brightened considerably with the announcement of a meet with the Princeton Chess Team...Wonder if they have rallies for the team, too?

With only three conference games on the schedule, five teams found themselves shifting positions after the Big Six firing accompanied by a couple of surprise final scores was over Saturday.

Don Faurot's Tigers surprised everybody, not because they defeated an Oklahoma team fresh from a 55-0 romp over Iowa State, but because they used 43 players and still thumped the Sooners to the tune of 28-0. By virtue of their win, Missouri breezed into their second conference championship in three years, barring a possible, but not probable, loss to Kansas.

Outdowned, outyarded, outpunted, and outplayed, but not outpassed Kansas university's Jayhawks upset their cousins from Manhattan 20-16 to move into a third place tie with conference-idle Nebraska, while Kansas State dropped down to fifth place.

Sixth place Iowa State, with four losses and no wins, will gain a fifth place tie if they defeat K-State this Saturday. Kansas U meets Missouri to decide whether or not Oklahoma will have a chance to try for half the title claim with the Tigers when Nebraska meets the Sooners in the Big Six finale a week from Saturday.

Prospective rushees at Rhode Island State college must prove their ability to make a passing average before they are eligible for rushing, which consequently takes place in February.

Badminton Next For I-M Teams

...Free Instruction

Rolly Harney announced Thursday that the next sport after volleyball is the new sport, badminton. This is the first year for badminton in the fraternity intramural set-up.

Harney issued the following statement to the fraternities. "Since badminton is new on the program, we feel your men should become acquainted with the game before competition begins. If anyone in your house would like to learn to play, either Tom Bergan or I will gladly play with him and instruct him in the game. Those who want to avail themselves of this instruction may report to the intramural office any afternoon, and we will furnish the equipment."

In the meantime, volleyball is advancing to the finals. In Tuesday's games the Phi Psi's defeated the Betas 2-0, Sigma Nu's took
