

Enlist Now In the Student Defense Ranks

See Blank on Page 1

The DAILY NEBRASKAN

Official Newspaper Of More Than 7,000 Students

Vol. 41, No. 66

Lincoln, Nebraska

Friday, January 9, 1942

Call Defense Volunteers

Council Names Defense Plan Campus Activity

Soph Group Gets Final Approval

At their second meeting of the week, the Student Council last night extended full co-operation to the Union-Daily Nebraskan defense committee, and approved the eight new members of the sophomore class cabinet selected by a Council committee.

New members of the sophomore council are Pat Catlin, George Abbott, Bill Thornburg, Janice Cook, Roland Finley, Bill McBride, June Jamieson and Gertrude Lyon.

In view of the establishment on the defense policy of the Council, a motion at the meeting Wednesday to set up a three-member committee to co-operate with the existing defense committee was taken off the records. The motion had been tabled until last night's meeting.

A third Council decision was to (See COUNCIL, page 4)

Women's Rifle Club Organizes New System

New members of the first team of the women's rifle club are Louise McPherson, Barbara Slobbe, Meda Mae Albrecht, Elaine Linscott, Margaret Everett, Dorothy Alexander, Ruth Coords, Jean Whedon, Susan Wheeler and Ruth Ann Gillespie. The list was announced by Hollyce Copple, president of the club.

Beginning this week a new method for choosing rifle club members goes into effect. Choice is based on the ten highest scores submitted during one preceding week. Those women attaining the highest scores shoot in matches with other schools during the following week.

Student Heads Book Nook Broadcasts

Romulo Soldevilla, arts and science junior, takes charge of the university winter book nook broadcasts beginning with the 4:15 book review program over station KFOR this afternoon. He succeeds Frank Eagan who was called to the army late in December.

"Future book nook broadcasts will be conducted much as past ones have been," Soldevilla stated. Interviews and book reviews will form the bulk of the program.

In the past, Soldevilla has substituted for Eagan when the former conductor of the program was unable to attend. His radio broadcasting experience also includes the regular book nook broadcasts last summer.

Ag Extension Service Starts Radio Program

First in a series of five minute radio programs about student activities and students with interesting hobbies or work will be broadcast over KFAB at 12:30 today. Programs are arranged by Randall Pratt and are sponsored by the agricultural extension service.

Lemoyne Johnson and Bill Green, officers of the newly-organized bachelor's club on the ag campus, will be interviewed on the first program.

According to the director, the purpose of the program is to acquaint people in the state, as well as other students, with interesting persons on the university campus. The program will continue for several weeks.

Ag Petitions Test Desire For Lounge

Student interest in regard to a special recreation room and lounge to be included in the plans for the new Home Economics building is being measured by petitions. Distributed by the twelve members of the Ag Executive Board within classes and organized houses, the petitions, which are now being collected, have shown favorable reaction thus far.

The petition calls for excavation for the north half of the basement in which will be located a recreation lounge and fountain facilities corresponding to those in the Corn Crib. Partial excavation for the new Home Ec building has taken place. It is to be north of the present Home Ec building, replacing the old parking lot.

The purpose of the Ag Executive Board in submitting the petitions to the students of ag campus is to tell the Regents and Chancellor that there is definite student interest in the additional plans. A great number of ag students have signed, and all who have been contacted have willingly signed.

By Alan Jacobs.

Into high gear went UN defense activity yesterday when the student defense committee announced an all-out program packed with ambitious projects, and issued an urgent call for volunteer aid to members of the student body.

First step in the program is the organization of a file containing the names and abilities of students interested in defense work. Today's Nebraskan has an application blank which students are asked to fill out and leave at the Union office. From these applications, the Student Council will organize the file of workers.

Citing the great need for volunteer workers, defense committee members declared that campus organizations such as the Council, AWS, Coed Counselors, Corn Cobs, Tassels and organized houses will be asked to co-operate in the UN defense activity.

New Members Added.

New members of the defense committee, announced by Mary Kerrigan, committee chairman, are Mary Rosborough and Marjorie Bruning. Students who have been serving on the committee since its origin are Nancy Haycock, John J. Douglas, Laurel Morrison, Jacqueline Woodhouse, Paul Svoboda, and Morton Margolin.

Altho most of the plans are in a formative stage until filing has been completed and permission received from Union and university (See DEFENSE, page 4)

New Defense Courses Start In February

The university defense curriculum includes another new evening course taking up time and motion study for greater efficiency in industrial production. The course will begin Feb. 3.

Men with industrial experience in production or who have had two years of an engineering college curriculum, are eligible for entrance in the course. It will meet two evenings a week for a period of 15 weeks.

Other evening defense courses beginning in February include drafting and shop practice; and aircraft assembly inspection. The three courses await the approval of the U. S. office of education in Washington.

Men interested in any of the courses may secure enrolment forms from Prof. W. L. DeBauffre.

CAA Takes Precautions Against Alien Sabotage

... Directed at Flying Course

If there is sabotage directed at the Civilian Pilots Training course offered by the university, it won't be because proper precautions haven't been made, for the Civil Aeronautics Commission yesterday issued a set of rules to check the loyalty of enrollees.

Under the new rules before any student of the university can take the CPT course, an airmen identification card must be in his possession.

Before he can get an airmen identification card from the CAA bureau, several requirements have to be completed first. The student must obtain two identical photographs, not less than 2 or more than 2 1/2 inches square. The pictures must be unretouched and uncolored, showing complete head, full face and the top of the shoulders.

Fingerprinting Necessary.

The student must also be fingerprinted by the local Aeronautical Inspector or by Professor Haney, CPT supervisor. Two letters from responsible persons in the student's community stating the loyalty of the student to the United States must be had, and (See SABOTAGE, page 2)

Youth Leader Speaks On Ag Campus Today

Speaking on the place that youth can take in building a better post war world Miss Jennie Doidge, representing the American Youth and Danforth foundation, will appear before various ag campus organizations and church groups this week.

At 4 p. m. today Miss Doidge will speak to presidents of the ag campus organizations. The meeting will be held in the home ec building. Miss Doidge is making a study of mid-western ag colleges especially with reference to religious education. She attended the World Conference of Christian Youth at Amsterdam, Holland in 1939 and has traveled extensively in connection with her church work.

Sunday the representative of the two foundations will speak to the college class at the Warren Methodist church. For the morning service she will talk at the First Evangelical church and in the evening she will attend the Young peoples meeting at the Epworth Methodist church.

On Monday at 4 p. m. she will speak at a general meeting of ag students.

Air Board Visits Lincoln To Give Physical Exams

Students Take Tests for Air Corps

For the purpose of giving medical examinations and preparing board proceedings for students who wish to enter the air corps of the United States, the traveling aviation cadet examining board will visit Lincoln Thursday, January 15, according to the University of Nebraska ROTC military department.

The board will consist of two or three officers, and they will be located in Nebraska Hall room 205. The board will examine each student who is interested in the navigator-bombardier training course or the pilot training course.

This year besides offering pilot's training course the combination course for navigator-bombardier training will also be given. In order to take this training the applicant must have at least a high school education and must pass the army general classification test, the physics test, and the general mechanical aptitude test.

The board will also examine men interested in becoming pilots in the air corps. The applicant must be an unmarried American citizen between the ages of 20 and 26, must be in excellent health and excellent moral character. The applicant must have at least 50 percent of the credits necessary for a college degree.

However, if he has not attended a university he may be admitted into the air corps if he can pass a written examination in the following subjects: English grammar and composition; arithmetic; algebra; plane geometry; plane trigonometry and two of the following subjects: United States history; general history; elementary physics; inorganic chemistry; modern foreign language. If a college student does not have 50 percent of his credits for a degree he will be exempted from taking the examination on those subjects that he has successfully completed.

The aviation cadet courses run for about eight months during which the cadet is paid $75 per month and is given clothing, food, and lodging. Upon successful completion of the course the cadet is given his "wings" and is commissioned second lieutenant in the air corps reserve, where he must agree to serve on active duty in an air corps unit, and is given pay and allowances amounting to $245 per month.

Further information should be obtained at the office of the ROTC military department.

Test Schedules Are Now Ready

First semester examinations schedule are now ready. Students may receive theirs by going to room 103 Administration Building.

Student Defense Volunteer

Name

Address..... Phone.....

Check Any Interests

Promotional Drives First Aid Classes.....

First Aid Instructor Knitting.....

Knitting Instructor Promotional Entertainment.....

Newsletter and Correspondence to Boys in Service.....

Other Work

Please Leave at Union Office