

Husker Cagers Continue Conference Win Streak

Missouri Takes Count of 51-45

BY BOB MILLER.

In one of the best exhibitions of offensive power shown during the present season, Nebraska's Cornhuskers treated cage fans to a real "spinetangler" as they downed Missouri, 51-45 in the coliseum last night.

Somewhat slow at the beginning, the Huskers waited until the second half to show off the fireworks that had been brewing from the start. The fans appreciated the change and whooped it up, giving the Huskers the moral support they needed to edge by their second conference cage foe.

First Half Drags.

The initial half was rather dead from the cage standpoint with lowscoring, officials' blunders and fouls detracting. Nebraska left the floor on the short end of a 21-17 count.

As they resumed the floor: Gribble and Livingston at forwards; King at center Held and Heinzelman at the guards; things took on a rosier atmosphere.

Livingston Starts Affair.

With two minutes gone, Les Livingston slipped thru to pot one in close and in the act of shooting was fouled. He made good on his free shot and the Huskers were within a single point of the leading Bengals.

Bob Heinzelman's foul shot on Constantz after three minutes had elapsed evened the count and from there on it was the Husker's who were out in front at all times with Mizzou's offense clicking at the right places to keep them in the ball game.

Held Blazes Forth.

Sid Held, long-range guard, who was limited to a small three points during the first canto, suddenly found his basket eye in the last to spell the margin to victory. He scored 13 counters in the second period.

Due in main to Held's accuracy with the round ball, and Livingston's aggressive fight, Nebraska was definitely in the game. Thirteen minutes had been counted off the big clock in the south end of

Kirsch Returns with . . .

Gift of Valuable Art Work Added to Morrill Hall Gallery

A trip to New York in early December by Prof. Dwight Kirsch, chairman of the university art department, has netted the university an important gift of ten pictures for its permanent collections of American art.

The group, which includes nine pieces by Arthur B. Davies and one by Walter Kuhn, is from the Bliss collection in New York which was gathered together thru the great interest of Miss Lillie P. Bliss in contemporary art. The gift is presented to the university in the name of Mrs. C. N. Bliss of New York and came as a direct result of Professor Kirsch's acquaintance with Robert McIntyre, a trustee of the Bliss estate and long-time friend of the family.

Doing a Good Job

In verifying the offer of the gift, McIntyre wrote Professor Kirsch, "You are doing a good job for the university and for American art in which you should be encouraged as much as possible."

The complete list of pictures follows: Davies—"Pollacia," "Figures," "Standing Figure," "Three Figures," and "Poet and Dancer"; Kuhn—"Roses."

The drawings and lithographs by Davies are of special importance in studying the development of American paintings, according to Professor Kirsch. Davies was of the group of artists known as "the Eight" who were leaders of early 20th century painting. The university now owns paintings or drawings by five members of this group, the others being Henri, Glackens, Prendergast and Sloan.

Bizad Review Finds State Prosperous

. . . During 1941

BUSINESS IN 1941 COMPARED WITH 1940

Most Nebraska citizens had a prosperous year in 1941 according to a year-end review of general business activity prepared by the business administration college. Business in the state increased significantly over the previous year and is now within five points of the peak year of 1929.

ness in 1941 as compared with 1940. Eight of the indicators show an increase in business while electrical power consumption was the only one which showed a decrease. This decrease may lie partly in the small amount of defense production in the state and in the decreased supply of consumer durable goods due to material shortages and limitations placed on output.

Stores in Nebraska towns of less than 2,500 population had the largest increase in retail sales for the first 11 months of 1941 as compared with 1940. Lincoln stores reported the smallest increase. Increase in new passenger car sales came from the large volume of business during the first half of the year. Life insurance sales were slightly higher during 1941 indicating some increase in business confidence—before war was declared.

'Entren A Descansar Un Rato . . .'

States Marsh

It's "Siesta" time at the Union from 12:20 to 12:40 p. m. today. Students are invited to relax in the lounge and be entertained by a technicolor movie entitled "Where The Golden Grapefruit Grow."

The film concerns the citrus industry of the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. With descriptive narration and musical background, it tells a complete story of citrus production—how the trees are planted and cultivated; how the fruit is picked, moved to loading sheds, inspected, packed and canned.

Unusually reliable sources close to the inner circle told the Daily Nebraskan that the headline for this story means, "Come in and rest awhile."
