Huskers Bow to Sooners, 37-29

Jhe Sports

He Did It Before.

Connie Warmerdam, whose real name is Cornelius, has done something that no other person has done before ... On Saturday night at the Boston A. A. track meet, he went higher than any other pole vaulter in the history of the event, clearing 15 feet 714 inches. . He held the world's record previously in both indoor and outdoor vaulting but his Saturday effort was some three inches better than he had ever ascended before.

And He will do it again-

He did his vaulting on a 131 foot runway and after shattering all existing indoor and outdoor records, he wanted to try the 15-10 height ... He knocked it off as he was already over it with all but his arms ... At 26, Connie believes that he might negotiate a 16 foot vault before he puts his track scanties away... We have no doubt but what he will do it also...He promises that he will raise the record some distance before he writes finis on one of the most famous track careers in the business.

One Man Show-

Put down under "G" in your little black book, the name of Newt Loken as the best intercollegiate gymnast troding mats and performing on the other gymnastic equipment today...Last Thursday we saw Loken, representing the University of Minnesota, in action and he left nothing that conuld be desired in the gymnastic sport. He put on a show all by himself showing up Huskers and his own team-

Consider his performance-

He competed in every event offered and took first in all but one tieing for first in the other. A perfect score for an individual in a single event is 15 points...In the horizontal bar he had 14.7; parallel bars, 14.5; side horse, 14; flying rings, 15; and tumbing, 14.3... His timing was perfect and his maneuvers were complicated. Easily the Big Ten's leading gymnast is Loken.

Oklahoma Topples Cage Ouint in Conference Tilt

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 16 .to keep in the Big Six lead, Oklahoma piled up a 37 to 29 victory over a weakened Nebraska outfit here tonight.

The win did not do anything to relieve the situation that was present before the game was played. The Sooners, tied with Kansas U. before the tilt at five wins and one loss, now have six wins and one loss. But that does not settle the matter.

Kansas at the same time that their leadership bunk-mates were winning, measured Iowa State by a 60 to 44 count and now the two teams are tied for first again. The Kansas-Oklahoma clash on Feb. 27 looks as a positive sellout at this point.

Slow Speed Thruout.

As for the Sooner-Husker getto-gether, it was not much more than just that, Big Gerald Tucker, Sooner trouble shooter was the fly in the ointment as far as Nebraska was concerned.

His skill at hitting the basket was not to be disputed as he would outmaneuver two and three Huskers to get a set-up shot at the basket. His seven field goals and nine minutes Tucker unloosed a three free throws were enough to give him high point honors for the the final total well up along the engagement.

Sid Held, consistently the Scar-Showing the type of spirit needed let's best bet on the maples, was not what he has been. A great defensive show put on by Bob Mc-Curdy of the Norman aggregation was so effective that Sid connected with a solitary free throw for the entire evening of play.

In the second period, Held tried to boost his point total and shot eight times from the court with no result. Seven minutes remained when he was sent to the sidelines via the foul route.

His free throw came after 19 minutes of first half play and kept him from having a blank for a point total.

McCurdy Deserves Credit.

McCurdy, Sooner defender, did even better than his ward by salting away three baskets during the fray to thoroly outclass his northern rival. Nebraska was not completely outclassed all the way, however.

For most of the game they were within striking distance but could not seem to be able to filter enough shots thru to get into the lead. In fact they were right along with their hosts when in the last
