Will We Do It?

Women trek to the polls in Ellen Smith today to cast ballots for major offices in women's organizations for next year.

Too many of us take student elections too lightly and assume the attitude that our single ballot won't make any difference in selecting officers.

Students on this campus are not doing their duty to the university and themselves when they fail to mark a ballot.

Today . . .

Eta Chi and served on the YWCA freshman cabinet. She was attendant to the May queen when a sophomore and was a member of Tassels.

Frances Drenquis is now president of women's residence halls, a member of Tassels, and has been on the YWCA cabinet and a member of Coed Counselors.

Frances Keefer has been president of YWCA, and is vice president of Coed Counselors, a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, Alpha Lambda Delta president, and was chosen Ivy day poet when a freshman.

Miriam Rubnitz was vice president of Tassels and before that served as treasurer of the organization. She is a member of the Student Council, Vestals of the Lamp, Sigma Alpha Iota, and the Senior Council executive committee.

Shirley Russell is vice president of Mortar Board, editor of the 1942 Cornhusker and a member of the architectural society. Before serving as editor of the yearbook she was managing editor and women's organizations editor.

Flavia Tharp is president of Mortar Board, a member of Vestals of the Lamp, and has served on the YWCA cabinet. She was a member of Tassels, Coed Counselors, and YWCA freshman cabinet.

AWS.

Both candidates for AWS president have been members of the AWS board for two years. Janet Curley is a member of the WAA council, vice president of the women's dormitories, secretary of YWCA, and has been a member of Coed Counselors.

candidates are voted into office. This can only be done by the vote of all.

In one, two, or three years most of us will be assuming citizenship duties and privileges on a larger scale. If we are to use this citizenship to the best advantage and with the greatest intelligence, we should begin now to realize the necessity for active participation in campus elections.

But if we assume this greater citizenship as many of us assume university citizenship, we may find ourselves worrying over the state of this nation. There will be too many "I don't give a damn" citizens, and not enough who are making the most of their rights and privileges.

Let's accept our campus elections as mature men and women and see that the voting today and next month has our fullest support and co-operation. It will not only insure us of good student officers but it will also prove to ourselves that we are willing to accept the demands of citizenship.

With the spring election approaching, everyone—especially the Union faction that is wondering about opposition—is guessing at what the Barbs are going to do.

We have a hunch. It is that Bill Dafoe, Dorothy Jean Bryan and aides will lead the Barb party into the spring election with a complete slate.

Our hunch has about as good a basis as any of the other stories that we have heard. We draw our conclusion from the gathering we noticed at the Cornhusker hotel following the Junior-Senior prom.

Our suspicious mind was immediately aroused by the joyous laughter coming from the group. What really convinced us that plans for Barb rejuvenation were being considered was the way everybody was smoking cigars.

We thought that cigars were smoked only at candy-passings and greek faction meetings, but here we saw unaffiliated leaders chewing and choking on big, black cigars.

Just about everybody was smoking a cigar. Bill was smoking; Gib was smoking; even Dorothy Jean was smoking. We weren't sure about Dorothy Jean until she came up to us and blew smoke in our face.

We do feel sorry, however, for Dorothy Jean's stomach.

We also feel sorry for Bill's pocketbook.

But we feel most sorry for campus politics.

candidates, Anne Kinder and Shirley Phelps, have served on the board this past year, and were co-chairmen of the Penny Carnival. Anne Kinder is a member of Tassels, Vestals of the Lamp and was a staff editor on the Cornhusker and a member of University Players.

BABW presidential candidates, Pat Sand and Bonnie Wennersten, have been active in several Barb organizations. Pat Sand is a member of the BABW board.

Voting.

The polls will be open today in Ellen Smith from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Women must present their identification cards in order to vote and the ballots are in danger of being thrown out if all groups of candidates are not voted on.

A list of junior women in activities will be posted at the polls and women will be provided with a slip of paper on which they may list not less than 5 nor more than 20 names. Next year's members of Mortar Board will be chosen from a list of the 25 names receiving the most votes.

WAA elections which have been postponed until next week will be held in Grant Memorial hall. Members of the sports board, intramural representatives from all women's houses, and the WAA executive council will vote in these elections. The polls will be kept in the WAA office.

Board members in the election today will be chosen according to classifications in school. Each voter may vote for all classifications and for Coed Counselors votes for two, for AWS four from each group of candidates.
