

Spring Elections Set for April 21

Disappointing its own members as well as certain interested outsiders, the Student Council meeting lasted only approximately 20 minutes last evening with a small attendance and strictly routine business.

Dick Harnsberger, elections chairman, announced the date of spring elections as April 21 with the polls to remain open until 9:00 p. m., being closed during the Honors Convocation. Positions to be filled at this election include members of the Student Council, members of the Publications Board and Ivy Day Orator.

Candidates will file for the positions at the Students Activities office in the Coliseum, and filings will close April 10. Four photographs of all candidates must accompany the filings.

Defense Plans.

Mention was made of a change in the plans for the defense courses requirements for all students at registration. An hour's credit would be given for either military science, men and women's physical education or nursing courses with three hours a week attendance required. Feeling this would make the physical fitness program more a part of the student's daily routine, this change was recommended to Dean Thompson and the faculty committee.

Over-flow Crowd Hears Marriage Series Opener

Speaking to an over-flow crowd Dr. Walter E. Miltzer spoke on "Choosing Life's Partner" at the first lecture in the marriage series yesterday.

His opening statements pointed out that he believed there is no such thing as "one-and-only" in this world for each and that everyone should have his chance to choose a "lemon"—provided, of course, he gets rid of her, or she gets rid of him.

"There are three states of existence: unmarried, unhappily married and happily married, the latter being the preferred state," said the speaker. However, it is far better to be unmarried than unhappily married.

Cultivate Happiness.

The qualifications which make a person an eligible mate are not confined to just one person, but there may be a dozen with whom a person could be happily married. You have to cultivate your happiness, it does not just grow.

In naming qualities to be looked for in choosing a life partner Dr. Miltzer named five which may be looked for after one primary premise has been found, a common intellectual background.

The five named are: 1. good disposition; 2. mental poise; 3. good personal appearance; 4. good health; and 5. which is optional, but suggested, a hobby.

How Does He Act?

In choosing a person with a good disposition these questions may be asked by yourself: How does he or she act when tired? How does he treat his parents? How does he treat his subordinates? How does he act when an unexpected inconvenience arises?

This first quality is the most

Fantasy Keynotes Theatre's Production of 'Androcles'

Fantasy will be the order of the day when "Androcles and the Lion" opens March 25. Ice cream cones and picket fences will add to the enjoyment of the play. The setting has been cut to a minimum in an attempt to get away from complications in producing the play. Spaced staging and selective realism are combined to make this modernized version of Shaw's entertaining satire.

In the first scene there will be suggested a candy forest on a mountain. Barber poles topped with lollipops and double dip ice cream cones, as well as licorice trees with licorice whip tops, stand behind and atop large rocks of fudge candy with walnuts in it. There is also a large green gum drop used for a seat.

The walls of Rome will be represented by a picket fence about two feet high with a swinging gate. This will be the only properties on the stage for the second scene with the exception of a small sign.

Near the gate will be a patch of grass with this sign, "keep off the grass," in the middle of it. The ancient "Hitler" disregards this sign and steps over the fence to shout his orders. Standing directly in front of the sign, he defies law and order. Above the gate will be written "Gate of Rome" and a key marked "key" will hang on the left side of the gate.

The third scene will represent the entrance to a stadium with a series of ramps which indicate the entrance to the emperor's box. The

Curriculum Change Seen After War

Chancellor Predicts Serious Adjustments Will Be Necessary

After the war is over, there will be need for another series of serious changes in university programs to make them useful in the post-war period, predicted Chancellor C. S. Boucher in an address Wednesday evening at the annual dinner of the Nebraska Potato Improvement Association in Scottsbluff.

"It seems unlikely that our universities will ever return completely to the pattern of their programs as they were before the war," said the chancellor. "This is right and necessary. All educational administrators in responsible university posts will continue for many years to devote serious study to the problems of readjustment in order to keep these institutions

Former INS Tokio Head Speaks Friday

Thirteen years in the Orient and sixty-one days in a Tokyo jail—those are the experiences James Young, noted head of the International News Service Bureau in Tokio for ten years, will relate to a convocation of University of Nebraska students, Friday morning at 11 o'clock in the student Union ballroom.

A native of Illinois, Jimmy Young, as he is known throughout the Far East, has spent more than half his life in the foreign service, covering Europe, Africa and Asia, covering revolutions, earthquakes, uprisings, cabinet crisis, assassinations, tidal waves and epidemics.

During his residence in Japan, he managed an American newspaper, and operated a news service bureau. He was active in the American-Japan Society, and for 11 years was a member of the Rotary Club which the Japanese finally ordered disbanded—under direct German pressure.

Young's arrest followed a 9,000 mile trip into the heart of unoccupied China as the first foreign correspondent to reach the backcountry headquarters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek at Chungking.

His release was finally effected through the efforts of American

Council Calls For 'V' Book Drive Workers

Strong backs and rubber tires are needed by Mary Rosborough and Laurel Morrison, chairmen of the Student Defense Council's drive for 10,000 books to stock the libraries of Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Issuing an urgent call, the chairmen asked all volunteers for collecting the books for victory to leave their name, address, and phone number at the Union office. Although willing workers are always welcome, the greatest need is for cars.

YWCA Holds First Group Meeting of Year in Union

Approximately 100 members of the YWCA met last night in the Union for their first group meeting of the year. After a short business meeting, the group sang a new YW song and the program was turned over to Betty Hohf.

The program was planned with an idea of giving those attending some idea of the expansiveness of the YW and of presenting some interesting facts about the organization.

An announcement was made concerning the Estes Powwow which will be held Sunday in Ellen Smith at 5 p. m. All members of the YWCA and YMCA organizations throughout the state are invited to attend the meeting.

Supper will be served and each is asked to bring a quarter. Reservations must be made in the YWCA office by Friday at 6 p. m. Each member attending may bring a guest.

After supper moving pictures of Estes Conference will be shown and information will be given about the Estes Conference to be held this summer.

On Ag Campus . . . Hansen Takes First Place In Texas Livestock Show

By Randall Pratt.

Lets take off our hats to Harold Hansen. Hansen placed first in individual judging of meat at the Southwestern Live Stock Show at Fort Worth, Texas, Tuesday. Besides being first in the entire contest, he also made the unusual record of standing first in judging each of the three classes, beef, pork, and lamb. The team scored a total of 2,416 points out of a possible 2,700.

Nebraskans placed 1st in judging beef and lamb, and 3rd in judging pork, to beat Texas A. & M., which placed 2nd by a good margin. Other members of the team were Dwight Sloan placing 3rd and Don Roth who placed 9th. Paul Fidler, instructor in animal husbandry was coach for the team. Last year Fidler helped coach the Oklahoma team which placed first in Kansas City and Chicago. Last year the Nebraska team placed first in Fort Worth, Texas.

Tri-K pledges have been carrying ears of white corn around for the past few days. It's been said that the Pledges will be beat for every kernel that is missing at initiation time. The date for the initiation and feed following is set for Thursday night, March 19, at 5 p. m. in the crops laboratory.

The square dances are still going strong in the activities building. About 150 students turned out Wednesday night for the swinging, reeling, promenading, dances.

It might seem kinda foolish to pay a lot of money for a new car if you didn't plan to buy gas to get the best use out of it. Not long ago the college spent a good deal of money for a new public address system. It's really a wonderful piece of work, the volume is great, the pick-up is strong, the tone and control of muffling are commendable, the turntable for records works swell. The only thing wrong is that there are no records. . . oh yes there same over there but they are about as old as those collected by the USO. The most modern is "Beer Barrel Polka." Let's get some good records pronto.
