

Kosmet Klub Holds Sneak Preview of Spring Show

Courtesy Sunday Journal and Star.

Surveying the script of the Kosmet Klub annual spring show are Bob Aldrich, author of this year's production, "Pott Shots," and Professor Martin of the speech department, director of the show.

Featuring an all-male cast and the ever-popular pony chorus, the show this year is centered about the efforts of a small college to raise money for operating expenses by a grant from a football-crazy corset manufacturer.

After dress rehearsals last night and Sunday, a sneak preview of the spring Kosmet Klub show, "Pott Shots" will be given tonight at the Temple theatre for the press, faculty members and other selected guests.

The show will go into its regular performance tomorrow night and will run until Saturday night. All performances are to start at 8 p. m.

In dresses for the first time since publicity pictures were taken, fellows like Bill McBride, Norris Swan, Max Whittaker, and the hilarious pony chorus recalled the traditional Kosmet Klub shows of years past to old-timers present.

Chorus Learns to Sit.

Fellows like Bob Fast and Ren Bukacek, members of the swinging, swaying kicking pony chorus had difficulties learning how to sit; they took up a lot of the time of technical director, Mary Adelaide Hanson, who also wrote some songs for the show.

Winning the most praise at dress rehearsal besides antics of the "women" were the songs, seven. (See SHOW, page 3)

Lawrence Lists Six War Aims

... In War Lecture

"American war aims can be defined loosely in the single words of the achievement of a decent world civilization," declared James E. Lawrence, editor of the Lincoln Star and professor of journalism, at the Union, in his lecture Monday afternoon in the university's war series.

Six more specific war aims were listed by the speaker:

1. A peaceful world which recognizes the right of choice to the type of government desired by the governed.
2. A world security through elimination of the doctrine of force and aggression which will provide a genuine foundation for the gradual reduction of armament policies.
3. Re-establishment of stable and acceptable governments in those countries now subjugated.

Honors Convocation Recognizes Duty ... Of Training Scholars

On Tuesday, April 21, at 10:15 a. m. the Fourteenth Annual Honors Convocation will be held in the university coliseum. Deane W. Malott, Chancellor of the University of Kansas, will deliver the address.

The entire student body is urged to attend this meeting which is the one occasion during the year when the school pauses to recognize its primary function: namely, that of training scholars. Chancellor Boucher will preside over the convocation and music will be furnished by the University of Nebraska Symphony Orchestra. Classes between 10 a. m. and noon will be dismissed.

Chancellor Malott is a distinguished scholar, business leader and author of numerous books. Before coming to the University of Kansas he was assistant dean of Harvard Business School and associate professor of business there. He was been president of Kansas University since 1939.

Listed among the books which Chancellor Malott has written are, "Problems in Agricultural Marketing," "Problems in Public Utility Management" (with Philip Cabot), "Introduction to Corporate Finance" (with J. C. Baker and W. D. Kennedy), "The Agricultural Industries" (with B. F. Martin), as well as several magazine articles.

Parents of students and visitors are invited to attend the convocation.

April Alumnus Previews '42 Round Up Program

... New UN Courses

Previewing in lead articles the 1942 Alumni Round Up and outlining the program of "terminal courses" which will be introduced into the university curriculum this fall, the April edition of the Alumnus magazine appeared today.

The traditional Round Up will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 23 and 24, an advance in dates having been necessitated by the elimination of spring vacation from the university program. Honor classes for the event this year will be those of 1932, 1922, 1912, 1902, and 1892.

Plan Many Meetings.

In addition to the Alumni-Faculty Reunion luncheon, the program schedule calls for such other features as: a concert by the university band, a forum of alumni

ME Juniors Hold Banquet For Seniors

Juniors of the college of mechanical engineering will entertain the seniors of the college at a banquet tomorrow night at 6 o'clock in the Union. This banquet has been an annual event for the past 20 years. About 50 persons are expected to attend. Wm. L. DeBaufre, chairman of the department of engineering mechanics, and acting chairman of the department of mechanical engineering, will be the principal speaker.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers' student branch and Pi Tau Sigma, honorary mechanical engineering fraternity, will present awards at the banquet.

WAA Holds Horse Show This Spring

Farmer's Fair or no Farmer's Fair—there will be an Intersorority Ride. As announced yesterday by Ruth Mathers, secretary of WAA, the Ride this year will be sponsored by WAA and arranged by the university Riding club. For this year only this arrangement will be made, for the show will then return to the management of the Farmer's Fair board as usual.

Made possible by the co-operation of Mr. Leo Lewellen, manager of the newly organized Lincoln Riding School, the show will be included in a semi-private show for Lincoln exhibitors sponsored by Mr. Lewellen. To be held Sunday, April 26, at 1:30 p. m. in the Coliseum of the State Fair grounds, the show will be free of admission.

New Plan Tried.

A new plan of sorority and organized house competition will be tried this year for the first time, to distribute chances more fairly among the houses, and also to cut out the necessity of holding elimination tryouts which would take too much time from the scant two weeks left for practice before the show.

Each house has been asked to choose their two best riders to represent them, and also two alternate who will be used if there are enough horses to mount them.

Classes open to university women include a Ladies' Seat and (See SPRING, page 4)

Dr. Leverton Gives Lecture On Nutrition

Dr. Ruth Leverton, chairman of the State Nutrition Committee and associate professor of home economics, will give the first nutrition lecture today, at 7 p. m. in parlor Z in the Union. The subject of her lecture will be "Balanced vs. Unbalanced Meals."

Dr. Leverton has done extensive research in the field of human nutrition and has been speaking to numerous groups on nutrition problems. She is especially interested in the food habits of college students.

There will be six lectures in the series sponsored jointly by the Student Defense Council and the Home Economics department.

Deadline for entries in the Ivy Day poem contest is tonight at 5 o'clock. All entries must be turned in to Mrs. Westover in Ellen Smith hall by that time.

Any undergraduate woman may submit a poem and the only specification is that it shall concern the traditions connected with Ivy Day.

Three manuscripts of each poem must be submitted and none of the manuscripts may have the name of the poet on them. The author's name should be placed in a sealed envelope and turned in with the manuscript.

Judges are Drs. Louise Pound, Frantz and Wimberly of the English department.

elected as associate members of Sigma Xi were read by Prof. M. Hicks and Prof. F. W. Norris, respective secretaries of the two societies. Of the 35 PBK members, 15 were announced last December. Six Students were elected to both honoraries.

Main sources of power available for immediate and practical use in the world today were appraised in a talk by Lionel S. Marks, professor of mechanical engineering, emeritus, Harvard University, at a public convocation following the dinner.

The sun's energy is the only important source of power, Professor Marks said. It is the cause of winds, of rain, and of plant growth. Solar energy of earlier ages is stored in coal, petroleum and natural gas. Solar energy of recent times is stored in vegetables and animal matter and in water above sea level.
