Union Tickets On Sale Today Officers To Inspect ROTC Cadets at UN

Bargain hunters! Shop early and avoid the rush! Student Union birthday party combination tickets good for two nights' dancing from 9 to 12 p. m. to the but-danceable Harlem downbeats of Lloyd Hunter plus a carnival plus the presentation of the 1942 beauty queens are now on sale as of this morning.

Circulating around and about the campus go members of the Union Activities committees egged on to the sale of fifteen tickets by the allure of winning one free coveted combination ticket. C. T.'s also are available at the Union office.

Priced at the lowly cost of $1.10 per couple, C. T.'s offer an enormous saving over the 75c couple admission fee for a single night. Stag tickets are also offered for the price of 40c per night.

Concessions on Friday.

Sixteen campus organizations to be announced tomorrow have planned concessions for the Friday night carnival, the profits of which will benefit either the USO, Fort Crook recreation center, WSSF, Red Cross, or the Student Foundation, according to the request of each organization. Concessions include dart games, duck shooting.

Klub Actives Meet Tonight

Kosmet Klub actives will meet for a very important meeting tonight in the Kosmet Klub office at 7 p. m. according to Walt Rundin, president. Workers will meet at 5 p. m. tomorrow.

roulette, and general entertainment.

Main attraction of Saturday night's fun and such will be the opportunity of seeing THE glamour of the campus assembled for the first time in 1942, namely the 1942 Cornhusker beauty queens, who will be presented in a veil of secrecy—before the presentation, that is.

An annex to the Grill will convert parlors A, B, and C into temporary madness of coking, canned music, and cigarette mist. Recommended procedure will involve dancing while drinking a coke, and holding a cigarette in one hand.

Informal dress for both men and women is the order of both evenings; however, no slacks, overalls, riding clothes, shorts, or bathing suits will be admitted.

Ivy Day Participants To Meet

Who will lead the ivy and daisy chains on Ivy Day remains a secret, but all coeds selected by their houses and organized groups to be in the chains will report for practice at 203 Temple Thursday and Friday at 5 p. m.

Part of the tradition of the day, the ivy chain consists of senior women dressed in white. The daisy chain includes freshmen, sophomores and juniors who will wear pastel dresses.

Attendance at the practices is compulsory, since the exact procedure of the chains in the Ivy Day program will be explained.

The annual federal inspection of the ROTC cadet corps will be conducted this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, according to an official announcement of the military department yesterday.

Officiating at the inspection will again be Colonel Briggs, 7th corps area ROTC officer. Assisting him will be, Colonel H. H. Slaughter and Lieut. Col. J. K. Campbell, inspecting the infantry unit; Lieut. L. D. Henry inspecting the engineer unit.

General plan of inspection begins with examination of classroom discussion and class work by the inspecting officers on Wednesday. Major part of the inspection planned for that day will be concerned with the first and second year advanced drill units.

Inspect Three Units

All three units will be examined and inspected on their drill and command and science and tactics they have worked on this year. In addition to inspection of the advanced unit, the first year basic company of that afternoon will be inspected on military theory and tactics.

On Thursday morning, the second year basics of the infantry will be given inspections on drill command and leadership, while the first year advanced students of all units will be given further examination of army weapons and explosives.

Main event Thursday afternoon will be the parade and review of the entire brigade, followed by inspection. Cadets will be dismissed from their class rooms from 3 to 6 p. m. for this event.

Ends Friday.

Friday will bring to a close the inspection, concentrating on the basic cadets of all three units.

DeBauffre, Gray Lecture About USA War Machine, Britain Empire in Series

UN's "American and World War II" lecture series featured two lectures yesterday afternoon at the Union: Prof. W. L. DeBauffre of engineering college and Professor Glen Gray of the history department.

Following DeBauffre's regularly scheduled speech, Prof. Gray completed the lecture of several weeks ago in which he was forced to stop because of illness.

Prof. DeBauffre emphasized the importance in the development of the U. S. war machine. Time has been lost, he said, by the shortage of materials, ships for transportation and skilled workers.

"In time," he declared, "American guns, ammunition and war" (See SERIES, page 2)

Student Council Holds Election Meeting Today

Student Council will hold its election meeting today at 7 p. m. in Parlor B of the Union. The meeting is for both old and new members.

Navy Gives Exams Today To Students

Physical examinations for V-5 will be given in Nebraska hall, all day today as announced at the convocation held last night.

The physical examination is to select physical normal applicants and eliminate those with defects or diseases which might become aggravated by flight training or which might increase the hazard of such training. All applicants for the new course in V-5 must pass the physical examination, it was announced by naval officials.

Individuals who have failed the army flight training course are not eligible for flight training in the Naval Reserve. Students who have completed the civilian pilot training courses, and who meet the requirements are eligible, but must take the physical examination. Graduates of CPT secondary courses are admitted to naval flight training at an advanced stage.

Scenery Building Means Work for Uni Theatre

"Seven Sisters" opens Wednesday in the University Theater, and building of scenery and the designing of costumes for the play has entailed a lot of work.

Presented against the background of modern Hungarian peasant life, "Seven Sisters" is the story of a family and the problems of one of the sisters in marrying off—her sisters.

Only set required for the play is a quaint Hungarian room with blue wall paper, spotted with yellow and green, two stylized windows, specially designed doors and staircase, and a bright fireplace.

Ideas for much of the furnishings were taken from a National Geographic article on Hungary, and much of the equipment—couch, chairs, table and benches—is authentic. The doors, also authentic, are very complicated in construction. One stage craft student has made it a special project of hers to paint the china plates needed for the play.

Construction Requires One Day.

On a simple setting one day is usually enough to construct and assemble the scene, excepting, however, the painting, which may (See THEATRE, page 2.)

Tassel Group Holds Annual Initiation Picnic Indoors

Dining on sandwiches, cup cakes, potato chips, and bottled cokes, Tassel actives and pledges held their annual initiation picnic in Ellen Smith yesterday.

Usually scheduled at Irvingdale Park, the picnic this year was held indoors because of the windy weather. Ellen Smith was temporarily converted into a conventional picnic spot with the customary litter of papers and empty coke bottles scattered among the furniture which served in this case as the scenery.

After the picnic formal pledging was held for the new initiates.

Jean Christie, president, officiated.
