

University, Government Advise Students to Enlist in Reserves And 'Stick by' College Studies

Enlist in the Army, Navy, or Marines and at the same time go to college, is the advice of the U. S. government as well as the administration of the university.

The army and navy now believe that the leadership which the nation and its armed forces must have will be found in college-trained men. "It is the patriotic duty of every student now in school to stay by his or her studies in the belief that they will be worth far more to the government later," stated G. W. Rosenlof, director of admissions.

The Navy has already put into effect a plan by which freshman may enlist in the U. S. Navy Reserve and attend college for two years at least. One-fifty of these men are selected to continue for two more years as candidates for commissions as dick or engineering officers. They may seek commissions as aviation officers in aviation cadet training schools.

The Army and Marines are also introducing plans under which college men can enlist and remain in school until the conclusion of their four years. They then become candidates for commissioned officers.

The scholastic requirements of such programs are not severe, and the physical examinations are those of the respective services.

All branches of the armed forces are urging young people under 20 to enlist in the branch of the service which interests them and for which they are qualified and so deferr their induction until they have met the requirement of needed officer personnel.

Boys who enlist in the service under one of these programs will not be required to wear the uniform while inactive, but will be authorized to wear a distinctive insignia marking them as men who have joined the armed forces.

The University of Nebraska has opened all departments to these students including a series of two year courses which grant the degree of Associate in Applied Sciences, Associate in Arts, Associate in Applied Arts, Associate in Business Administration, Associate in Commercial Education, Associate in Journalism, and Associate in Science in Education.

Those interested should apply to the director of admissions.

The army and the world say "Keep 'em Flying"—our leaders in the armed forces say "Keep 'em training."

Guy Reed Speaks At UN Graduation

Over 800 men and women in caps and gowns will march across the Coliseum platform past Chancellor C. S. Boucher to receive their degrees and charges on the morning of May 25, in the 1942 Commencement Day exercises. Guy E. Reed, distinguished graduate of the university, class of 1911, will deliver the commencement address.

Mr. Reed is vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. Following his graduation from Nebraska he served as manager of Cornhusker athletics and was secretary of the Nebraska Alumni Association from 1913 to 1915. Mr. Reed is especially interested in boys' work, and in the past 25 years has interviewed over 10,000 boys, helping them to find their places in the world. He organized the Chicago Alumni club in 1924 and was its president for two years.

Seated upon the platform during the ceremonies will be members of the university faculty and a small group of men and women upon whom the university is conferring honorary degrees, and alumni who will receive University-Alumni Distinguished Service Awards.

Mr. Reed was the recipient of one of these awards two years ago. Honorary degrees and distinguished service awards will be presented following the Commencement Day address and the conferring of baccalaureate and high degrees.

Baccalaureate Begins at 4:30.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Right Rev. Howard R. Brinker, of Omaha, Episcopal Bishop of Nebraska. The service will be held Sunday, May 24, at 4:30 in the afternoon in the coliseum. All graduates are required to attend this ceremony in caps and gowns.

The Rev. Mr. Brinker was elected Bishop of Nebraska in 1939. He received his bachelor of sacred theology degree from the Divinity School of the University of Pennsylvania and a doctor of divinity from Nashotah House in Wisconsin. He was awarded the Docecan Distinguished Service Cross in Chicago in 1932.

The 1942 Alumni Round-up will include reunions of the honor classes of 1892, 1902, 1912, 1922, 1932. These classes will have honor tables at the traditional reunion luncheon Saturday, May 23. The class of 1902 will have a reunion breakfast Saturday, as will the class of 1898.

The traditional Alumni-Faculty Reunion Luncheon will be held at 12:30 p. m. Saturday. R. A. Van Orsdel, class of '06, will speak on "War Requirements—A Challenge for the University." The university band will present a concert at 3:30 p. m.
