

Students Plan For Estes Meet

Students who are planning to attend the annual YW and YM Estes conference should see Mary Locket or C. D. Hayes for final arrangements. The Nebraska delegation will leave Lincoln for Estes Park, Colo., May 29, and will return about June 4. The trip will be made in a truck.

Dr. Howard L. Bevis, president of Ohio State university, will address the graduating class of Kent university at commencement June 8.

Students at the University of Tampa are being paid commissions by the city to collect delinquent taxes from 11,000 persons.

War Service Library Has Varied Books

While most of the visitors who may examine the material which the war service library has on display in the documents room of the UN library may not come with specific questions in mind, they will find that the books, pamphlets, etc. suggest investigation along many lines.

Some of the subjects treated are price control, industrial conversion, protective concealment, reports of bomb tests, exploitation of the occupied countries, the actions of the sixth column, counterespionage and censorship.

One hundred five graduates of the Bible college of Texas Christian university are preaching in Texas, a survey discloses.

SAME Names Cox President For Next Year

Other Officers Include Murfin, Lantz, Marlette; Lobdell Talks at Dinner

Members of the Society of Military Engineers elected Francis Cox, president, Paul Murfin, vice-president, Kenneth D. Lantz, secretary and Ralph Marlette, treasurer for next year at a dinner last night in the Union.

Besides his new position Cox also holds the captaincy of Pershing Rifles for next fall and is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Introduced by Charles Artus, retiring president, Lt.-Col. A. T. Lobdell, sponsor of the SAME, reviewed the recently published monograph of the seniors. Quoting parts of many monographs, he ended with this excerpt from Robert Woest's article, written on Dec. 10, 1942, and titled "Our Military Policy."

"Finally, after years of failures of past military policies, perhaps now this country has awakened to the realization that, until men learn to live together peaceably and can live and enjoy life without fear of attack, we must have a well trained army and navy capable of any emergency such as the one in which we now find ourselves."

Other seniors who wrote monographs and their subject are as follows:

"Military Bridging in Forward Areas," by Hal Schroeder; "The Corps of Engineers," Oswin Kiefer; "Civil Engineering, Work of the Corps of Engineers," Walter Sanderson; "Sanitation and Personal Hygiene in U.S. Army," Louis Sprandel; "The Monroe Doctrine," Charles Artus; "War Maneuvers," Harry Ankens; "Parachute Troops," John Waskiewicz; "Role of Ordnance in Today's Wars," Blair Munro; "Communications in Today's Armies," Max Kiburz; "Characteristics of Leadership," Charles Bliner; "Field Fortifications and Obstacles," Loren Brodahl; "Combat Intelligence," William McConaughey; "War Minerals," Leroy Foster; "Engineers in U.S. Army Aviation," Duane Schmeckle; "Gas in Today's Wars," Gerald Strobel; "Bridges: Comparison of Military and Civilian Practices," Charles Bush; "Ponton Bridges," Richard Yost; and "Portable Steel Bridge, H 10 Capacity," Harry Saunders.
