Prof. Wishnow Directs Music Hour Monday

Professor Emanuel Wishnow, director of the university orchestra, will direct next Monday's Harmony Hour when he presents an outline of the Classical Violin Concerto.

Giving examples from well-known literature of the violin, the Harmony Hour, held weekly, will take place as usual in the Union music room at 4 p. m.

Admission is free and students interested in music are urged to attend the program by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, music fraternity which sponsors the hour.

ton, Eleanor Edison and Martha Nickerson did a fancy job twirling with wooden guns to the last number, Parker's "American Legion March." Mr. Olsen awarded Joan Shanka a pin in recognition of showing the best improvement of those taking private lessons. Though this is not an annual award there are chances it may become one.

They Don't Understand.

Part of most people's failure to appreciate symphonic music may be found in the fact that they do not understand the spirit of the time and the country in which a piece was written. (It does not necessarily follow, however, that a person who has a liking for Mozart and Haydn knows 18th century Europe).

Recently the NBC Symphony played 20 year old Ernest Gold's "Pan-American Symphony." Any die-hard swing fan could have found much to enjoy in it because its rhythms and the melodies are of America today. Music, like the other arts, speaks of the time in which it was composed.

Book . . .

The book fulfills its purpose with attractive pictures and unusual makeup which is especially notable in the introductory pages and the scattering of informal shots thruout the junior and senior sections.

Scrap Irony

By Chris Petersen

I see by this morning's paper that they are having more trouble in Bloody Harlan county, Ky. It's getting so that down in that county when you go into the sheriff's office to report a murder, you have to stand in line.

It may not be crime but it borders on it very close. Down there it seems as if two wrongs make a riot!

Crime is interesting in a way. Gangsters, crooks and all. Someone has said that a gangster is a fellow with gunning little ways. Give a gangster an inch and he'll take a rod.

We had a crime wave in Blair, too. There was a fellow who stole a calendar and got twelve months.

There's a lot to this old saying that a crook is a fellow who believes firmly in his non-conviction.

I suppose that gangster's aren't really bad. But still, how can a gangster be decent when he had to do business with the kind of people who do business with gangsters?

Back home we have the system. The local police force waits until Saturday night to make their arrests and then the crooks come clean!

Oh, well, there is no arrest for the wicked.

From Alliance, we have a confederate columnist who writes: An old one worth repeating is

"Chivalry is the attitude of a man toward a strange woman."

An 84-year old ex-dentist is sued for $20,000 accused of breaking up several happy homes. My, my, gramps, we've heard of bards on barley but never before on wild oats.

That skeleton that you often see hanging in the doctors office might after all, be his first patient.

This is the season when both the wealthy and the tramps move south for the winter. We average guys get it in the back of the neck.

Before the present war, we thought that it was the Finns who were noted as long-distance runners.

That big thud that you just heard was ten more politicians putting their ears to the ground.

Many well-intentioned persons think they are "cleaning up" a city by stamping their foot on all recreational activities, whole and unwholesome, intended for the amusement of young people. Soon they will be wanting to roll up the side roads.

Dream . . .

It's A Crime.

Americans can be accused of few crimes less revolting than that of not doing their utmost to treat these men as their protectors. There can be no compromising that buying war bonds and stamps as a patriotic contribution are vitally important, but it shrivels into relative obscurity when compared to the task of making the soldiers of our army feel that America and its people are worthy fighting for. Let's keep 'em happy!

The all state high school chorus, the girls ensemble, and the boys ensemble gave an interesting program last Friday. Dr. Westbrook's chorus seemed in its first group of numbers to be somewhat heavy but in its second group, beginning with Speah's "Morning," the sopranos blossomed out beautifully and a better balance was evident.

Girls Did Well.

Mr. Glatly's girls ensemble gave a remarkable showing of near perfect diction, and Mr. Leger's boys ensemble in close harmony enjoyed themselves immensely. Certainly everyone must have gotten an emotional lift after hearing them.

The all-state high school orchestra under Emanuel Wishnow presented its program Sunday afternoon. Bach's G Minor Fugue
