Men to Enlist In 3 Services Through UN

Can Qualify for Officers Course

The University of Nebraska is prepared to accept preliminary applications of men students for enlistment in the reserve corps of the army, navy and marines, it was announced Friday afternoon.

The three service branches are enlisting thousands of college men thruout the country, expecting these men to qualify for officers' training upon completion of their college courses.

Pending assignment of definite quotas, the university is stressing that applications will be acted upon in the order in which they are filed.

Incoming freshmen will be recommended for enlistment thru the office of the dean of the junior division, as will other students who have not been advanced from that division.

Applications of students who have passed thru the junior division are handled thru the office of the dean of student affairs.

Must Be 18 Years Old.

An applicant for reserve enlistment must be a citizen of the United States. He must be 18 years of age and, if under 21, he must have the written consent of his parents. He must pass rigid physical examination and meet specified scholastic requirements. Applicants of persons already inducted thru selective service cannot be considered.

Persons not heretofore enrolled in the university, including those who transfer from other institutions with upper class standing, must complete application for admission to the university before their applications for enlistment can be acted upon finally.

Dick DeBrown Takes Job with United Press

Richard DeBrown, assistant publicity director has accepted a position with the United Press in Washington, D. C. He will leave Saturday. Mr. DeBrown affiliated with Beta Theta Pi, was a member of Innocents, men's honorary society.

He was graduated in 1940 and has been connected with the publicity department since that time. No arrangement has been made to fill the position, Harold Hamil director of the school of journalism announced.

Chancellor of a Great Institution

Chauncey Samuel Boucher has been chancellor of the University of Nebraska since 1938, and in four years he's won a remarkable reputation for himself as a progressive, forward-looking educator. Freshmen will meet him at the chancellor's annual reception for new students at the beginning of the school term.

Sooner or later every Nebraska student winds up in the Student Union's "Corn Crib." In the picture above are six well known Cornhusker personalities. Diplomas in two years under new curricula plan

System Allows Concentration In Specialized Study Fields

A degree in two years! That's what the new two year curricula plan which is being instituted this fall can mean to the student who wants to do an oversize share of studying in short time. The degree, of course, isn't the same as the regular A.B. which a four year college student gets upon graduation. Graduates in the two year system are called "associates" and get a certificate to that effect.

The two year plan is being consolidated into the regular curricula of the university as an alternative course of study. It enables students to achieve commendable skill in a chosen field of concentration and also to develop an appreciation of the broader outlook of general education.

Not Induced by War.

Dean Nels A. Bengtson of the Junior Division (which sponsors the two year plan) says that it has not been induced by the war.

Rather, it has been under consideration for the last two years. The two year curricula is open to all students who can pass the regular college entrance examinations. Any specific deficiencies can be made up as part of the regular program, in most cases. Diplomas awarded upon the satisfactory completion of any of the two year curricula read: ASSOCIATE IN... (the field of concentration, as arts, applied science, etc.).

A minimum graduation requirement of 64 credit hours is had in all but two year courses.

Study Only.

Two years of concentrated class and laboratory work are required in these short courses. Students undertaking them should not expect to have time for outside employment if they wish to complete the course in the minimum time.

Curricula within distinct fields of the different colleges are sponsored by individual colleges. Curricula which overlap different fields are sponsored by the Junior Division.

Courses are offered by the college of agriculture, college of arts and sciences, college of business administration, college of engineering, teachers college and the junior division.

A.W.S. Board Sets the Style for Conduct

Every woman student on the Nebraska campus is a member of the Associated Women Students, governing body for all women students.

The actual functioning body of the organization is the A. W. S. board which meets weekly to discuss rules and regulations and to work on plans for the improvement of all other organizations.

A. W. S. court is made up of members of the board and meets weekly to pass sentence on those women students who have violated A. W. S. rules.

A. W. S. also sponsors Inter-house council which is composed of the presidents of all organized houses. The council meets once each month to discuss house rules as set up by A. W. S. and to make suggestions and get interpretations of the rules.

Officers of A. W. S. are Janet Curley, president; Ann Craft, vice president; Janet Hemphill, secretary; and Joan Martz, treasurer.

neering, teachers college and the junior division.

Each curriculum has been planned to serve only the students who have definite needs and objectives in mind. Variation of content in individual cases to fit personal needs is a fundamental characteristic of the two year curricula.

All students will be required to attend the orientation lectures of the junior division. These lectures do not carry credit toward a diploma.

Reed Succeeds Dienst as State Superintendent

Dr. A. A. Reed, director emeritus of the university's extension division, has been appointed deputy state superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Reed has been prominent in Lincoln education circles and has been active in that work for many years.

Succeeding Charles F. Dienst who was called to active army duty several weeks ago, the new deputy superintendent became associated with the university in 1907.

Panhel Board Moves Pledge Dates Ahead

Rushee Parties Are All Informal

A war-time rush week, outstanding because of its simplicity, will be carried out by sororities on the University of Nebraska campus this fall.

All parties will be informal and will be held on the campus. Dropped from the usual list of affairs, are luncheons and dinners and in their place will be a brunch, sandwich spread and possibly a preference luncheon.

Tentative plans for the rushing period as given out by Panhellenic officials include four days of rushing beginning Sunday, Sept. 13, and ending the following Wednesday when upperclass rushees may move into the house of the sorority pledged.

One Thing at a Time.

By beginning rush week, Sept. 13, instead of later, rushees will not have to go thru entrance examinations and registration until all rushing affairs have been completed. The original plan scheduled rush week on the same dates as registration.

Lists have been submitted to the Panhellenic office by each of the 14 national sororities represented on the University of Nebraska campus including the names of those women whom they believe to be interested in joining a sorority. Any woman interested in joining a sorority who knows of no one having put her name on such a list is requested by the Panhellenic office to fill in the blank printed at the bottom of this page and send it to the Panhellenic Office, Ellen Smith Hall, University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

All Must Register.

All rushees are expected to register with the Panhel office in Ellen Smith hall this summer. If the rushee resides outside of Lincoln she will live at Raymond Hall during the rush periods. This reservation must be made prior to her coming to Lincoln and can be (See RUSH WEEK, page 3)

Bone Diggers Now Helping Harvest Wheat

Members of the museum's "bone-digging" crew in western Nebraska are now spending part of their time helping with the wheat harvest, it was learned here this week.

Working near Oshkosh and Broadwater, some of the 19 men on the field trip have stopped searching for fossils long enough to take up pitchforks and scoop shovels to help farmers meet their harvest hand shortage problem.

While working in the wheat fields the bone-diggers live with the farmers—a temporary change from camping out as they did while digging for fossils.

The field group, which includes high school and university students and one instructor from teachers college, has been out all summer looking for relics for the Nebraska museum. Only one group was on this year, instead of the five or six sent out in previous summers.

Diggings in the Oshkosh-Broadwater area, have, according to Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, museum director, yielded many unusual fossils of the ice age.
