Eisenhart Exhibits Prowess

One of the sophomore "finds" on the 1942 Husker edition of football in the flesh is likeable K. Kirwin "Keebird" Eisenhart, Culbertson's gift to the pigskin world. Weighing close to the 200 pound mark, Ki was one of the offensive and defensive standouts at fullback against Iowa State.

Cyclones Get Hard Lessons From Huskers

AMES, Ia., Oct. 6.—The team which looked better losing to Nebraska than it did winning from Denver hopes to make Marquette pay for that football lesson.

Iowa State, stopped by Nebraska last week, looks now to meeting Marquette at Ames Oct. 10 in the first home game of the year for the Cyclones.

Ray Donels, head coach of the Iowa State eleven, said that in many respects the Cyclones looked better losing than they did winning.

"With all its power Nebraska could not score thru the line," Donels pointed out. "Nebraska had to pass to score or to keep its drive going. Nebraska outcharged us in the line, but that was not unexpected. We've given the boys some pretty stiff leg work and that didn't help against Nebraska. But it is going to pay dividends from here on in."

Donels would not say he was pleased in defeat, but he did point

Metheny Still Favors Cold

Husker Coach Glen Presnell drilled his performers on plays last night, again demonstrating that lack of simple polish is the team's biggest defect.

Athey, Zikmund, Bradley and other ball packers alternated on the end of various plays. Scrimmage was light but the Scarlet backs succeeded on a majority of their sallies.

Fred Metheny, first-string signal-barker, was still in sweat togs. Freddy contacted a cold during Saturday's scrap and has been ill since.

Series Records Fall 'En Masse'

BY BILL IRWIN.

That the Cardinals won the 1942 world series is granted, but considering the records tied and broken during the five game series, we must concede that title to the Yankees.

Three records and the tie of another went to Yank Pitcher Charley Ruffing, slugging Joe DiMaggio took two, Phil Rizzuto added a few, and the Yankee team as a whole laid claim to several more.

Ruffing Record.

Ruffing's no hit streak for the first seven and two-thirds innings of the series snapped the seven and one-third string of Herb Pennock made in 1937. Waite Hoyt's record of playing seven series (1921-1931) was tied by Ruffing and at the same time he topped Hoyt, Bender of the Athletics, and Gomez of the Yankees by winning his seventh series victory. Bender's record of 59 series strike outs was overshadowed by Ruffing's 61.

Yankee DiMaggio made 20 putouts, giving a new record for outfielders' chances in a five game series, held by Mike Donlin of the Giants in 1905.

The equaling of three records was accomplished by Rizzuto as he made 15 putouts in the five game series with seven of them in one game and three assists in the second inning of the third game. His circuit swat which started Monday's game also equalled the record of George Weaver of the White Sox.

Yanks Hold Majority.

The 1942 record sheet also lists Bill Dickey for having caught 33 world series games. Highest number of home runs for a five game series goes to Charley Keller.

Other top performances of the Yankees are the 178 times at bat for the five games, the 18 runs made, which is the most made by a five game series loser, and the using of 20 players in five games.

All attendance records were shattered as the largest crowd in the history of the series attended the games at the Yankee stadium. Total attendance of 276,717 exceeded the five game record set by the Yanks and Giants (1937) which was 238,142.

The crowd record of any single previous game was 68,540 and the gate receipts were $265,396. All three games drew crowds which pass these marks. The 69,902 fans and $269,468 of the Sunday game are the high marks of the 1942 series.

out some cheerful notes. The play of Maurice Ryan at right end and Paul Darling at fullback was highly effective defensively. The team as a whole played good football, he said, but had the misfortune of hitting Nebraska on the rebound.

"If we learned as much in the Nebraska loss as they did in losing to Iowa we'll be able to make up for that loss," Donels said. "The alertness of Nebraska's pass defense was a key factor in the Huskers' victory. We could well afford to copy it."

Horse Sense

By Norris Anderson
(Sports Editor)

Once again we have in our office a convention of the BGOC and once again Ye Olde Sports Ed is trying desperately to think above the uproar. Association of "Biggest Gabs on Campus" are out in force again today.

Three gushy geishas loosen an oral barrage to our left. A conference of ad-getters rages at our right. Before us (on our desk) we have two Innocents and a blond talking shop. We are thinking.

Comes word to our desk that Paul Amen, erstwhile Husker end coach, has garnered his second lieutenant commission from Uncle Sam's air school at Miami Beach, Fla.

A former tri-sport athlete here, Amen left last spring to cast his lot with the birdmen. Paul lettered in football, basketball, and baseball, then performed briefly in pro baseball circles before joining his alma mater as frosh coach. He was upped to end coach when Lt. Col. W. H. Browne was called to the colors.

Walt "Old Settler" Dobbins notes that only Mizzou's touted Tigers have succeeded in coping with outside competition. Against outside foes, Big Six clubs hold six wins in 15 starts.

Herr Dobbins' figuring also reveals that Big Six clubs have scored 172 points to the enemy's 279 total. His chart:

	w	l	t	pts	opts
Missouri .....	3	0	0	95	20
Nebraska .....	1	1	0	26	27
Iowa State .....	1	1	0	7	26
Kansas State .....	1	2	0	44	91
Oklahoma .....	0	1	1	0	23
Kansas .....	0	3	0	0	92

Scout Adolph (Lew) Lewandowski, also end coach and head cage coach, returned from the Indiana-Ohio State fracas with dire premonitions.

Lew particularly noted a sophomore comet named Cowan who has beaten the Husker jinx, Jacoby, out of the varsity left half job. Cowan is an issue that the Huskers hadn't counted on. It was enough to see Jacoby and Hillenbrand run loose last year, but when better men hoist them from their positions it's time to start worrying.

Jayhawk coach Gwinn Henry writes in deep, sobby tones to this department. "In all my 31 years of coaching I've never seen anything like it.

"Never before in my coaching experience have I been so low on reserves. I've got nine or ten first-rate men that would stack up with the best in the country if I could give them a few minutes rest during the game but that's impossible with the squad I have."

Gwinn was referring to the defeat his team took at the hands of Denver Saturday. Cheer up, Gwinn, maybe with this shortage of manpower we'll have robots on the sidelines soon!

Arnot Sparks Betas to Win

Beta Theta Pi had too much for the hapless AGR's in the passing combination of Bill Arnot to Justin Berger as the Jack Best trophy winners opened their defense of the crown with an easy 25-0 win over the AGR's. The Arnot to Berger duo was good for three of the winner's touchdowns. The other Beta counter came on a runback of a pass interception by Bob Holland.

Farm House, defending touch football champs, turned back the fighting Xi Psi Phi team, 7-6, in the thriller of the afternoon. This hotly contested game was finally decided in an overtime period when the passing of Bob Minthorne gave the Farm House men the necessary yardage needed for the extra point. Wallace and Peterson were the big guns in the Zip attack.

The Phi Psi's combined the accurate passing of Tom Crummer and the brilliant punting of Campbell to defeat a stubborn Sig Alpha team, 7-0. The winners struck pay dirt in the third quarter when Dick Coyne nabbed one of Crummer's passes in the end zone. Red-headed Neil McCluhan was the whole show for the SAE's.

Allen Zikmund Named Captain

Nebraska's blond bomber, Allen Zikmund, will captain his mates against Indiana Saturday afternoon in Memorial stadium.

"Zik," swift, glue fingered wing-back, dazzled the Hosiers last autumn when he raced 39 yards to tally on a wide sweeping reverse early in the fray. The year previous he plucked a Rohrig flip from the atmosphere for the winning second period touchdown.

Twenty years old, the 6 foot 1 inch Ord senior dragged down a Bradley toss for the second period touchdown and set up the first marker by snaring a 20 yard pass on the 4 yard line against Iowa State last Saturday afternoon.

Cardy Upped To Lion Tutor

Lloyd Cardwell, outstanding Nebraska halfback and All Big Six team member in 1934-35-36, has been announced as backfield coach of the Detroit Lions in the National pro-football league.
