

Steuber Tops Big Six Point Parade Again

There is no race to the Big Six scoring race this term. It's a walkaway for the Missouri adding machine, Bob Steuber.

Steuber has crossed pay dirt 13 times and converted five extra points for an 83-point total. Second high scorers in the conference are two of Steuber's teammates, Morton and Bouldin—each with 18 tallies.

Ki Eisenhart, Randall Salisbury, Al Zikmund, Howard Debus, and Dale Bradley are the leading Husker scorers with six points apiece. Vic Schleich has converted three extra tallies.

The complete scoring by Big Six players to date:

Horse Sense

By Norris Anderson
(Sports Editor)

While walking home from Sosh yesterday afternoon, an aged Indian chief burst forth from behind the new library, thrust a yellow parchment in my hand, and died. (Editor's note: One should feel particularly sorry for this old chief because he was only twenty-four inches tall. Often known as the only two-foot ruler in the world.) This parchment was from Norris Anderson, begging for a few ideas as to what constitutes a GOOD sports review. While you slice off a few Chips, Anderson, we will offer you the following sample column for your benefit.

FLASH: Concerning Women's Intramural sports. The Chi Omega Cronies downed the Alpha Phi Floozies last night in a brutal game of "Oh, Hell". Object of the game: The participants sit around in a big circle putting discs on a numbered card until somebody jumps up and says: "Bingo", and everyone else says: "Oh, hell."

FLASH: The Delta Gamma Doodlers outscored the Phi Psi Fun-Boys in a fast-tempered game of "Puss in the Corner." The Delta Gammas socked the Phi Psis in the puss, and the Phi Psis layed in the corner.

FLASH: Husker grid-iron giants have been making excellent use of the new obstacle course, similar to those used by army and navy training camps. Coach Presnell, when interviewed, said: "We have to do something to replace the Theta Hour Dances."

I MAKE THE FOLLOWINGS PREDICTIONS:

1. Nebraska probably won't get an invitation to the Rose Bowl game this year, unless the war ends and Nebraska starts winning a lot of games, which it hasn't so far, I don't think.
2. Lawn-billiards will NOT make a come-back as a major university sport this season, unless, of course, something definitely out of the ordinary happens.
3. The Phi Gam football team will default to the Betas tonight in the intramural semi-finals. "No sense in butting your head up against a stone wall," the Fijis say.
4. If the Kansas Jayhawks try to upset the Husker football cart this Saturday, they will find it pretty tough sledding. No snow.
5. The Nebraska picnic season will probably come to a close on or before November 27.

...If you have ambitions of succeeding as a sports editor, Anderson, more power to you. I respect ambitious young men. But remember: Big sports writers are not born overnight. Most of them start out as babies.

Wilkins, Zik May Not Play Against KU

Doubt continued in the Husker camp yesterday whether Al Zikmund and Gene Wilkins, both injured against Oklahoma, will be available for the Kansas game Saturday.

Husker defensive performers had "Ray Evans" on their minds as they went thru pass defense drills. Evans ranks as one of the premier passers in the nation with a completion average of 60 out of 120 flips.

Husker backfielders against Oklahoma hit a seasonal top for aerial defense. Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota had all found the secondary vulnerable to aerial fire.

The Mentor Presnell failed to announce squad charges, indication was strong that Marv Thompson, regular right end, and offensive leader, Dale Bradley, would get the starting nod over Jerry Kahtol and Howard Debus Saturday.

Kathol's bad leg, same one he broke against Kansas State last year, was under X-ray observation. Jerry was kicked by the referee in the Minnesota game and the old leg injury was aggravated.

Cyclone Deadline Shifted Up Hour

AMES, Ia., Oct. 27.—Iowa State's remaining home football games will start at 2 p.m.

Originally scheduled for a later hour, Athletic Director George F. Veenker made the shift in game time at the suggestion of Cyclone fans. The extra hour after the game is needed, many feel, much more than the extra hour before the game.

Remaining home games for the Cyclones include the homecoming contest Saturday, Oct. 31, with Oklahoma, and the dads' day event, Nov. 14, against Kansas. Both will start at 2 p.m.

Great Midland Rivalry Takes Up Saturday

BY HENRY FISHBACH.

One of the midland's greatest traditional rivalries unfolds itself on Memorial stadium sod in Lawrence Saturday afternoon when Nebraska's scarlet clad Huskers clash with the Jayhawkers of Kansas university.

Twenty-six long, tiresome autumns have spun around the gridiron reel since the Jayhawkers last stemmed the scarlet, yet K. U. and Nebraska have enjoyed a cordial athletic relationship which was interrupted but twice, in 1904 and 1905.

Evans and Company. Kansas of 1942—ala Ray Evans—seeks its second Big Six triumph of the year and its tenth victory over the Cornhuskers when it entertains the Presnell men in Lawrence. The rebounding Huskers will be battling for the 37th win over the Jayhawkers, for the third consecutive conference victory and to retain a place of contention in the Big Six championship race.

Nebraska and Kansas present an amazing forty year record slate revealing 36 victories for Nebraska, 9 for the Jayhawks with 3 called even.

In bitter early campaigns up to 1916 the last time the Jayhawkers triumphed, Kansas rang the victory bell 9 times and Nebraska dented it on 12 occasions.

Guy Chamberlain, George Dern

and Capt. W. W. Wilson were thunderbolts of that old era while Kansas fortunes shown with the great Fielding Yost (head coach of 1899), Ad Lindsay former mentor, who gave the Jayhawks a thrilling victory in 1916 and Tom Johnson bulwark of the 1908 Kansas club of high national recognition.

A new galaxy of stars' burst forth after 1918. There was Phog Allen and his Kansas prodigies who deadlocked the Huskers 20 to 20 with a second half rally in 1919, the formidable Husker units of 1920 and 1921 which ripped Kansas to shreds and Charley Black's Jayhawks who upset at Memorial stadium dedication ceremonies with a scoreless tie in Lincoln one year later.

Sloan's Kickoff Romp.

Husker Clair Sloan grazed 90 yards on a kickoff return in a blasting 47 to 13 win in 1927, the fourth consecutive for the Nebraskans who won 14 to 7, 14 to 0, and 20 to 3 in the three preceding sessions.

There was George Sauer, whose blasting gained victories in 1931 and 1932 and his aerial to Bruce Kilbourne that featured the 1933 Husker win. Virgil Yelkin place kicked the only points a year later and Dana Bible's champions won in 1935.

Wayne Blue, churned his way to three touchdowns in a 53 to 2 scoring parade in 1939 after the two comparatively quiet Cornhusker victories in 1936 and 1938 with a stale-mate sandwiched in between.

Crushing the Kansans 32 to 0 in 1941 the Cornhuskers hit football's doldrums and didn't recover until they smashed Iowa and Oklahoma late last year.

ISC Coach Finds Some Good Spots In Missouri Win

AMES, Ia., Oct. 27.—New plays designed to bolster the scoring power of the Cyclones were handed out last night by Coach Mike Michalske as Iowa State prepared for its homecoming game with Oklahoma.

Michalske appeared satisfied with the play of the Cyclones against Missouri and contemplated only two shifts in the lineup.

"If you can be satisfied in losing 45 to 6," said Michalske, "then we are satisfied. The boys didn't look 45 to 6 worse than Missouri. They played well most of the day."

Best Against Varsity.

"Oddly we played our best football against Missouri's first team," the Iowa State coach pointed out. "Two of our three best scoring drives were put on against the Missouri first team. They play of the entire squad was so much better than against Drake that we all feel encouraged."

But Michalske refused to admit that pleasure over last week's play was going to help a bit when Oklahoma plays here Saturday. Ray Donels scouted the Sooners and brought back reports of a big, Oklahoma line. The Oklahoma team has plenty of scoring power in spite of its three losses this year.

Bob Ash, senior tackle from Ames, is going to get a chance to be a part of the starting eleven on the basis of his improved showing the last two weeks. Michalske, disappointed with the complacent showing of Bill Barger against Missouri, has moved Ash from the reserve spot at left tackle to the No. 1 right tackle job for workouts this week.
