They're Helping Themselves...

One of the most interesting campus war efforts is being carried out on the University of Oregon campus that has come to the attention of the Daily Nebraskan in a long time. Feeling the need for continued education following the war for those men who are called before they graduate, the student war committee there is sponsoring a drive for a student service scholarship fund.

According to Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, "technical training which is not based on liberal education will produce only robots. Robots... cannot contribute to peace; they can be only a menace to the nation." With colleges stepping their curriculums to technical subjects, essential only to the war effort, a period of readjustment for the men who fight will be necessary following the war. Oregon is taking the matter in its own hands and preparing a way for those men to complete their educations following the war along a more liberal plan of education.

This plan will not only develop well grounded thinkers and workmen for the world of tomorrow, but it will prepare men and women who have left school for the war effort for the leadership they will need to prepare a proper peace and make the necessary economic, social and other readjustments which will follow the war.

Oregon's service scholarship fund started with $122 profit from a greek-independent basketball game. The house managers' association agreed to donate bonds each term to

Letterip

Dear Mr. Editor:
while hugging the davenport in front of my radio yesterday I was interested in hearing that three up and coming students have started a university radio station. I truthfully believe that this station should have University of Nebraska recognition. It should be shown to the administration that academic requirements should be cut down on staff members of this organization. They shouldn't have to get their lessons, which would better fit them for war work in any of the uniformed services, but they should forget their studies and devote their time to entertaining the personnel of the campus.

Lincoln's two radio stations do not furnish enough entertainment in their 5:45 a. m. to 12:00 p. m. schedules for students who have nothing better to do with their time. Money spent on this station by individuals would be deducted from their income tax returns as donations to public improvements.

It brings into existence a policy on the university campus that I have been in accord with for some time. "Let those who have money buy their way into the good graces of the students by lavishly spending that money." The point board could very easily give activity points for such gifts—such as six points per $2,000, which was the approximate cost of the equipment.

In summary, let me point out to you that what this campus needs is more radio stations, fewer classes which will help win the war, and more surplus money spent in this way and forget the sale of bonds and stamps. These boys may be depriving some of our pals of a few things that they may need to defeat our enemies, but forget that because we will have three radio stations to listen to instead of two. Ignore the war as it is high time we were thinking of our own pleasure.

Yours truly,
OSCAR OLDMAN.

(Editor's note: The students responsible for the new radio station had the equipment and are merely putting it to use in this way. As far as their grades are concerned, Mr. Oldman, I am sure university officials will see to it that they keep up their work.)

the fund. Solicitation is underway with good results on all sides.

Students on the Oregon campus are farsighted enough to plan ahead and help, in a small way, the rehabilitation which will be necessary among students following the war. The government has also made some steps along this line, and if enough interest is aroused in colleges over the country, the men and women who are leaving campuses now to help in the war will have some means with which to return to school.

The plan has excellent possibilities. Would it work here?

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

A. C. P.'s Correspondent Reports from Washington

NOTES ON WAR

WASHINGTON. (ACP). Congress has passed no legislation ordering colleges to give students pre-military training. Nor is there a Student Army Training Corps as in the last war. Yet...

Many colleges report that 70 to 90 per cent of their students are enrolled in one or another branch of the military forces...

The army expects to get a third of all its officers from college campuses...

Colleges themselves will train about 250,000 men this academic year for the Student Enlisted Reserve Corps, the army and navy ROTC...

Another 250,000 will be sent from the services to colleges for specialized training...

Besides that, 50,000 men now in uniform will receive instruction through army correspondence courses offered by 77 colleges...

Furthermore, some 800,000 men and women will receive training this year, in 250 colleges and universities, for technical work in war plants...

All in all, 1,350,000 men and women will be provided the use of college facilities so that they may take an active part in prosecuting the war—either in combat service or in industry.

Despite the fact that regular student enrollment has dropped, colleges throughout the nation are cram-packed with the greatest assemblage of men and women ever gathered on their collective campuses.

That's not a bad war record.

FOOTNOTES ON WAR

Harvard has a one-month course for army chaplains. Some 300 men of all creeds and sects attend classes at the old university.

The lid is being clamped down even harder in Norway. No church hymns may be sung which contain the word "Devil" because Quisling believes the reference is to Nazis, a logical enough assumption on his part.

Another decree imposes the death sentence upon Norwegians who enter or leave occupied territory without permission and who listen to forbidden broadcasts. "Forbidden" are all those other than Nazi and Nazi-controlled broadcasts.

A recent release of the government's Office of War Information notes that "a critical situation confronts every woman who cooks with gas." It seems that if she doesn't conserve it, there soon may be no more gas to cook with.

Pressed for an interpretation, officials admitted that you might take a woman's gas from her, but you'd never keep her from cooking with it.

Correspondents were glad to have that one straightened out.

EDUCATION ELSEWHERE

Going into effect at once is a Vichy order for all French schools to put German down as a must course. Until now students could choose between English and German.

A student at Christian college in Bergen, Norway, wrote a paper in which he referred to the words in John's Gospel, "The son shall make you free." The Nazis confiscated the paper because they believed it was a reference to th Crown Prince Olav. That word 'free' has always been a stickler for Adolf.

French publishers are permitted no more than enough paper to print one-third of the normal number of school books. Paper for other purposes is out entirely.

Tokyo will eliminate the Dutch and British educational systems in Sumatra and Malaya in favor of another "which will fully develop the mental and physical faculties of the natives."

Library Displays Bookplates From UN, Foreign Countries

Displayed in the main-floor showcase of UN library this week are bookplates. One section of the case is devoted to the bookplates used in the university's various libraries.

These plates include the plate used in the college of medicine library at Omaha. This plate shows a picture of a college building. The bookplate used in the books in the Book-nook is another item in this section.

All books in the university libraries have the official bookplate of the university. The present bookplate was selected by Dr. Walter Jewett, librarian from 1906 to 1913. The university seal is the outstanding cut on the plate. Includes Special Plates.

Among the special bookplates are those used to denote the books which have been given to the university by George Elliot Howard, a member of the class of 1876 and later librarian of the university library. The giftplate of Arabel M. Kimball is also shown. Another part of the display shows outstanding plates from

... Famous Persons

France, England and America. The French bookplate is the one used by Marie Antoinette, while the English one is that of Sir Nicholas Bacon. The plate of Oliver Wendell Holmes represents the United States.

Show Novelists.

The plates of Sir Henry Irving, noted actor, and Anthony Trollope, an English novelist, also are on display.

An example of the work of Edwin French is included. He was for many years America's outstanding engraver and designer of bookplates. One of the features of the display is an illustration of George Washington's personal plate. Another group of illustrations show examples of the country's foremost plates, including that used to mark the books of Henry Morgenthau, jr. All books are from the University of Nebraska library.

Fall Revue.

Adapting and concentrating the remaining talent was the next duty and after the fraternities were slated to prepare skits Kosmet Klub looked for a place in which to hold its Fall Revue.

The local theater which housed the show last year so adequately could afford to and did play hard to get in the negotiations. With an eye to the student scholarship fund which it is sponsoring, the Klub refused at first to pay the increased cost and decided to hold their show on a morning during Thanksgiving vacation.

This date was chosen since evenings were out and so were Saturday mornings ala university decree. Fraternities went ahead and polished their skits—twelve of them from which eight were picked—and ticket sales were all set to begin.

It was a sacrifice all the way around but at last it looked like there would definitely be a show. Date Trouble.

But the trouble wasn't over yet. After the eight skits were chosen and the eight skitmasters could breathe a trifle easier, they decided the date wasn't right and they struck!

Consultations were held, Kosmet Klub agree, the theater signed the contract and so Saturday, Nov. 21, is the final date. It was a long and hard fight but a page of University Tradition will not be torn out of the book which in the beginning was thin.

There will be a show, it will produce some of the best skits seen on the campus for a long time since the fraternities are vying among themselves. And then, this is war!

There will be a Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet presented. This is another stymieing influence which nearly caused trouble for the fall show. You can still bet that this show will be tops because the 11 actives along with 17 workers are redoubling their efforts to prove that a tradition so firmly entrenched should be permitted to continue as long as it is performing a service.

One thing that causes wonderment is what Panhel would propose to do with the cup that the Klub provides for sorority skits. They should have an answer for that one, too!
