

Ag Coeds Know Latest Campus Fashion Styles

Fashion conscious ag students know the latest in style, government restrictions and how to make the most of what you have. By means of slight revamping of home economics courses girls in clothing and textile classes are being informed as to the latest developments in these lines.

Besides learning how to sew in clothing classes, girls are getting helpful hints as to the remodeling and rejuvenation of old dresses. Economical methods of planning clothing budgets are a part of the work to further more intelligent buying.

A Stitch in Time.

Correct care of clothing is especially important at this time. Mending in time saves later "darning;" pressing makes an old dress look presentable, and a new one irresistible; and, of course, those nightly "luxings" keep you fresh and dewey and convert your white blouses and dickies into snowy white.

Reconstruction of abandoned clothes is a feature of advanced clothing students who have started a clothing clinic to which all students are invited.

Textiles students are familiar with the new materials that are replacing silk and all-wool fabrics, as milk cloth, combinations of rayon and wool, glass cloth, and the many creations of rayon companies. Cotton will be worn fashionably year-round for the duration.

Care of the various fabrics is also a matter of discussion in this course. Different methods of pressing, laundering and storage are studied.

Probably the most important knowledge that comes from this study is the realization that the government has combined most of the large clothing industries into production for the armed forces, that there are still some companies producing clothes for civilians, and that the coming fashions are to be centered around available materials.

Look Dated.

If we try to buy up as much of the present supply as we can afford, we shall look "dated" when everyone else is wearing cotton hose, narrow skirts and one-tone shoes.

The ag student will attempt to get the greatest amount of style for the least amount of money by making most of her own clothes, and by buying judiciously and wisely when she does purchase a "ready-made."

'Clothes Clinic' Meets Friday On Ag Campus

Most of you fems are a disappointed group because your formals are hanging in the closest gathering moths and layers of dust. The closet is really no place for them, so do something about it! You splurged your meagre allowance on the smooth black formal, so "feex" it up and use it.

The lush colors and lines of your formals combine easily to give striking effects for afternoon dresses. And now "dressy" frocks are holding sway—they're need from three to ? times every week.

Take advantage of the free "clothes clinic" offered at the home ec building, room 304 every Friday from 1:30 to 4:30, under the direction of Miss Grace Morton and fashion consultants that are "hep" to the new and latest. Gather together your old formals, shake the dust off and shake up to room 304.

Awful Injury

FIRST AID

A university first aid course graduate, female, returned this week end to thank her instructor for the useful course, saying:

"The other day I came upon an awful accident. The man was pinned under his car and his head was bleeding profusely but I knew just what to do.

"I put my head between my knees to keep from fainting," she reported.

Minks and Skunks Give All for Women's Coats

. . . Seals, Tob

BY PAT CATLIN.

Cruel creatures these women! The minks think it, the seals thing it, and even the skunks think it. How would you feel if you were a poor little animal struggling for an existence against some designing female who thought you would look lovely sewed up in the form of a fur coat?

The catch last season must have been a good one for the new coats are more luxurious than ever. Trends changed from the chubbies to full length coats. Workmanship is superb—they are made not only to flatter the wearer, but also to show the beauty of the fur. Soft folds, large sleeves faced with fur, and variety of cut are a few of the outstanding features.

Muskrat is the favorite fur of the college women because of its durability. Sable and mink dyed muskrat can be worn for dress or casual wear. Another favorite is skunk, which when cut on unusual lines is exquisite—not smelly. It would be advisable for a chunky girl to pick a less bulky fur.

Ah, Mink!

Among the fluffy furs bleached wolf—the four legged variety—is the most lush. It's light and durable in spite of its frothy elegance. And then there is the fur of all furs—magnificent mink. Every girl looks at its rich brown beauty with envy in her eyes. Raccoon has been an old standby of college students for years. This fur combines distinction of colors and lasting qualities.

Mouton, unpretentious but attractive, finds itself in the shape of a coat on many a girl's back. These unlucky animals find their pelts wear like iron. They can stand weather of all kinds and abuse from their owner. A beaver could see many of his cousins wrapped snugly around feminine shapes. This splendid soft fur sells in the higher price brackets to women who enjoy looking well-dressed.

Just think of the supreme sacrifice of the animal when next you see a woman smoothly donned in her furs.
