Congratulations in Order . . .

About 100 UN students will end their air-raid warden course tonight. They attended three meetings, learned the principles of meeting the problems of blackouts. They know how to handle themselves and how to protect others in case of an emergency.

As a result of their training, they will receive certificates that make them auxiliary air-raid wardens. In their own way, they have added to student participation in the war effort. They are to be sincerely congratulated.

Good Riddance . . .

Throughout the nation, universities have been accelerating their programs to cope with the emergency. Bennet Cerf writing in the Saturday Review of Literature sees some humor in the situation.

He writes in a recent issue: "College courses are being abbreviated daily to cope with the emergency. A salesman at the Princeton Co-op reports a serious incident on the Nassau campus as result thereof last week. It appears that a student left the room to go to the washroom and missed his entire sophomore year."

Just one less annoying sophomore—the easy way.

Army's College Requirements

WASHINGTON. (ACP). To get into the Army's Specialized Training Program in U. S. colleges, men must get at least 110 in the Army classification test, the same grade required of those who want to take officer training.

Other requirements, previously announced, stipulate that candidates have at least a high school education. Further, they must either be in basic army training, or have completed it. Except in the case of advanced college training courses, men must be at least 18 and no more than 21 years old. There are no maximum age limits for advanced training.

Originally scheduled to start about Feb. 1, it now appears that the Army's college program won't get under way until a later date.

Since the Army announced its training program in mid-December, criticism of it has been heavy. Whether it's due to this needling or for some other reason, the Army has relaxed its provisions for college men who are enlisted in reserve corps.

College men in the reserves and in "advanced technical and engineering courses" may now finish the academic year. The same goes for first-year advanced ROTC students, most of whom are juniors. Under the original Army order, some of these students would have been required to leave college earlier.

Library Adds Three New Magazine Subscriptions . . . To Monthly List

Among the magazines added to the UN library subscription list recently are "Plays," "Art News" and "The Inter-American."

The first of these, "Plays," is a magazine of plays for young people. The magazine is published monthly from October through May. The complete manuscripts of the plays are published, accompanied by production notes for each play.

"Art News," published semi-monthly from October through May and monthly from June through September, is the publication of the Art Foundation, Inc., a non-profit corporation. The magazine has numerous illustrations of paintings and sculpturing. One of its regular features is an exhibition calendar.

The third new magazine is "The Inter-American." This magazine contains a monthly survey of Pan-American news and other articles concerning Pan-American countries. Some of the subjects discussed from a Pan-American viewpoint are drama, art, music, books, authors, aviation, trades, and finance. All of the publications are available in the periodical reading room of the library.

Bengtson Text Enters Eighth Revised Printing

Dr. Nels A. Bengtson, chairman of the department of geography at the University of Nebraska, has announced the eighth printing of the textbook, "Fundamentals of Economic Geography," of which he is co-author with Dr. William Van Royen, formerly a member of the university faculty.

Accepted as one of the leading geography textbooks in the nation, the new book includes up-to-date charts and graphs.

Dr. Van Royen now is a member of the faculty at Brooklyn college, but is on leave of absence, to advise the board of economic warfare in Washington on geographic problems of the British Isles.

Army . . .

Consideration is now being given by panels of Army, Navy and civilian experts to the further lowering of the grade level to provide for occupational deferment of sophomore and upper freshmen students in necessary civilian as well as military fields.

The following is a bulletin just received from the American Council on Education which has a committee conferring with the army and navy on the framing of the collegiate training program:

"Administrative details of the army and navy training programs and of selective service are still so much in the formative stage and unavoidable delays in putting them in operation are so probable that all students whether or not in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps or subject to selective service are urged by the army, navy, and the war manpower commission to continue in college until called and until definite plans are developed. From the viewpoint of the armed forces and industry every day a man remains in college he is receiving the training necessary for effective war service. To drop out to await call is to lose invaluable time in total training. The same applies also to new students who planned to enter the institutions. In the case of men in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps, it is suggested that they be told that the institutions will make liberal refunds to the student if called prior to time for which credit can be granted."

Vespers Held Tonight At Ellen Smith; USO Representative To Speak

Vespers will be held at 5:30 p. m. in Ellen Smith tonight. Miss Elizabeth Rowe, USO representative, will address the group. A special music program will be under the direction of Roma Biba.

On Ag Improvements For Campus

Throughout the semester, the ag executive board has received various suggestions on ways of improving this campus, both from students and from faculty members. The board has acted on these suggestions and wherever possible has made improvements.

These suggestions are welcomed by the board and this is indeed a very good way to offer worthwhile criticisms and make your wishes known.

At present several suggestions are before the executive board. There is the one presented by Miss Steele concerning the building of a war stamp booth for this campus. This will probably be done in the near future if a few particulars can be arranged. Then from the physical education department came the desire to establish a "Sports Night" on this campus. This would be held in the activities building and will probably be held on Wednesday nights. This request was granted and will begin with the beginning of next semester.

I mention these examples only to give you an idea of what type of suggestions have been coming to the board. If you have any suggestions as to how our campus can be improved, don't fail to make your wishes known by seeing one of the members.

The "Seeds for Russia" program which was mentioned in this column last week is reaching its final stages with very good results. Over $1,300 has been contributed to this cause, and with this money a carload of Otoe oats has been purchased and is being sent to the Russian farmers. But money is still coming in and it is now hoped that a second carload can be purchased. If the needed amount is not raised, the money will be turned over to the Russian Relief Inc. and will be used to purchase needed drugs for Russian soldiers.

The original goal set was one car, but the outcome of this program has certainly proved that the Nebraska farmers were willing to give to such a worthy cause.

Cornell university is co-operating with the army in experiments with vaccination to combat influenza.
