

Schramm Organizes Map Reading Course

... For Military Students

Students met last night in the auditorium of Morrill to organize and arrange sections for the new Geology 5 course, taught for the first time in conjunction with military map reading.

The meeting, conducted by Professor E. F. Schramm, head of the geology department and instructor of the course, was the first gathering of the group. An overall description of the curriculum of the course was explained by Professor Schramm to the gathering.

The course is to be divided into four sections, giving the student a thorough knowledge of military map making and reading. The first part of the course will concern merely the interpretations and correct reading of various maps. Part two will concern itself with map reading in the field, map making, and sketching. Aero-photo reading and interpretations, and camouflage will be the chief subject matter discussed in the third part, while foreign maps, physiology, geology, and utilization of terrain in past, present, and potential combat areas is the final material to be taken up.

The course is planned to be taught with two one hour lecture periods each week and one four hour lab covering the two lectures. Students taking the course will receive three hours of academic credit, stated Professor Schramm. Although the (See MAP READING, page 4.)

WAA Names Three Annual Prize Winners

Three $25 scholarships were awarded by the Women's Athletic Association to Mary Helen Thoms, Joyce Junge and Margie Ruth Pollard for their scholastic record, intramural or club participation and financial status.

Miss Thoms and Miss Junge received their scholarships for good scholarship and participation in intramurals. Miss Thoms is a sophomore in bizad, and Miss Junge a junior in teachers college.

Miss Pollard, a sophomore in home economics, was awarded the scholarship given to the woman student who maintained a good scholastic record while working her way thru school.

Interfaith Banquet Honors Foreign Students On Campus

The annual Interfaith Banquet honoring foreign students on this campus will be held Thursday, Feb. 11, at 6:15 in parlors A, B and C of the Union. All foreign students are invited as guests of the Religious Welfare Council, sponsor of the banquet.

The toastmaster for the evening will be Dr. C. H. Patterson and students representing various faiths and several nationalities will give short talks during the program.

Students who will speak are Ernest Martin Alexander, Jewish refugee student from Germany, Miss Pamona Banks, Negro Methodist, Miss Madine Despotovich, Greek Orthodox, native of Yugoslavia, Kai Tanahaski, protestant evacuee student, and Joseph A. Mercier, Catholic.

Tickets for the banquet may be purchased in the YWCA, YMCA and student church centers for 60 cents. All students on the campus are invited to attend.

Foreign students who wish to attend the banquet are asked to call Miss Evelyn Menke, 2-4052, or Robert Marcotte, 2-5637, so that their name may be placed on the guest list. Members of the Religious Welfare Council are anxious that as many foreign students as possible attend the banquet.

Tonight at Eight--Opera 'Robin Hood' Begins Run

★ ★ ★ On Temple Boards

When the curtain goes up in Temple theater tonight at 8 o'clock it will be opening performance for the university's annual opera. This year's production, Reginald de Koven's "Robin Hood," will be the most lavish and colorful entertainment to be presented on the Temple stage in many years.

First-nighters will be treated to all of the glamour and atmosphere of an opening at the Met. The orchestra will be tuning up in the pit as the audience gathers and waits noisily for the overture. The large side choruses will take their places. Then the conductor, Dr. A. E. Westbrook, dean of the college of fine arts, will raise his baton and the orchestra will begin the overture. From then on thru the evening a panorama of music, dancing, and drama will unfold for the audience.

Include All Departments.

What happens on the stage Wednesday night, and again on Friday, will be the product of the efforts of all the departments of the fine arts college, and the result of weeks of work (See 'ROBIN HOOD,' page 4.)

AWS Holds Coed Follies On March 11

Executive Board Reveals Annual Plans; To Present Typical Nebraska Coed

By and for "women only" Coed Follies will be presented this year at Temple theatre on March 11, according to Rachel Ann Locke, chairman of the 1943 production.

Under the direction of AWS executive board, the Follies will include five full-length skits, four curtain acts, a style show and presentation of the Typical Nebraska Coed. Full-length skits have a time limit of five minutes, curtain acts, three minutes.

Any organized group may submit two candidates for the typical Coed. Candidates must have had one year's work at the university and an average equivalent to the all-women's scholarship average: at least 78 or 80 percent. Pictures should be included if possible. Women will be judged according to ability to wear clothes, personality, apparent interest in school and participation in war activities.

Outlines of skits and curtain acts must be turned in at Mrs. Westover's office in Ellen Smith by Friday, Feb. 5.

Gaiety Rules Coed Counselor Penny Carnival

More appropriate than ever before is the annual Penny Carnival this year. Right in keeping with a "spend-all-you-can-for-War-Stamps" year, the carnival will feature entertainment and diversion at "a penny a shot."

Sponsored by the Coed Counselors, the carnival will be held Saturday, Feb. 13 in Grant Memorial from 2 until 4:30 o'clock.

Any university organization may have a booth. The winner in the booth competition will be presented with a silver cup. Last year Alpha Chi Omega was the winner.

The proceeds of the carnival will go in part to the Student War Scholarship fund.

Blue Print Features Article by DeBaufre

Dr. Wm. L. DeBaufre's Engineering Materials and Mechanics is one of the featured articles in the new January issue of the Nebraska Blue Print, publication edited by the University of Nebraska college of engineering.

Dr. DeBaufre, chairman of the department of engineering mechanics and acting head of mechanical engineering, stresses the inadequacy of this university's courses in engineering materials and mechanics as compared with leading engineering schools. Using Massachusetts Institute of Technology as an example Dr. DeBaufre compares the courses on these subjects offered at each school and sets forth proposed subjects which would raise this university's engineering standards to those of Massachusetts "Tech."

Emphasizing the necessity of a good basic foundation in engineering fundamentals, Dr. DeBaufre points out the revision of engineering courses has resulted in a series of engineering drawing subjects "which are considered second to none in the engineering schools in the United States."

Dr. Donald F. Othmer, '24, now consultant to the army chemical warfare service, wrote an information-filled article on Alcohol for War at the request of the Nebraska Blue Print. Beginning his article with the past curtailment of civilian use of alcohol to the present need for tremendous quantities of this war chemical, Dr. Othmer cites all that has been and is being done to produce alcohol for the war necessities.

Two university students, John Watson and Kenneth D. Lantz, each contributed interesting write-ups for this Blue Print. Watson's (See BLUE PRINT, page 2.)

Hopkins Wins Time's Current Affairs Contest

Herbert Hopkins, winner of Time magazine's midwinter current affairs test, scored 92 out of a perfect 105 in this contest on latest developments on the world and national fronts and in the liberal arts. John Jay Douglass was second place winner with a score of 91.

Hopkins selected the book "Lee's Lieutenants" by Douglas Freeman for his first prize, since first place winner of the contest was to receive his choice of any $5 book, or a new globe, either prize to be given by Time magazine.

Launches Drive . . . World Student Service Fund Opens Campaign Here Soon

"Along with the many contributions to various other charities resulting from the war, American college and university students are facing another cause which will necessitate a vigorous and energetic campaign on the part of all in order to supply the needs of their fellow students who have been victims of the war," stated Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president of the University of Texas, and chairman of the World Student Service fund, at the launching of the organization's annual drive for funds.

Thus far the drive has been quite successful, related Dr. Rainey, but has much to accomplish to obtain the new and increased goal. The record of a group of so-called "pace-setting" colleges is especially noticeable, according to Dr. Rainey.

Set Goal.

Thirty-two leading colleges and universities in all parts of the country are together raising a total of $54,000. These same colleges gave only a total of $27,000 last year's goal of $100,000, which this year has been raised to $300,000.

The aim of the drive to begin on the University of Nebraska campus is only $1 per student, which is small in comparison to the $11 per student mark set up at Smith college. Last year we raised $802.82, surpassing our goal of $750. This year's goal has been set at $1,000. The pace set by Smith college and other universities in the country is a challenge to Nebraska students which might (See WSSF, page 2.)
