

Party Line

By Jo Kinsey.

Sgt. Robert Ruby, of the U. S. Paratroopers down south way, and Mary Lou 'gert' Holtz, sat there sipping the latest imitation Tuesday afternoon. Bob, a former uni. student, and back from a quick trip to California, presented Holtzie with his Delt pin more than a month ago, but not until now has she worn it. Congratulations double. Sally, of the smooth looks, Busch, and Jim, of the A. T. O. house, Ganz were there in a meditative mood.

Also in a meditative mood, were a couple of booths filled with men—Phi Gams, and D. U.'s. The subject seemed lost, but was recovered every time a good looking fem' appeared at yon' door. Josephine Kline, at the cash box, always looks lost and not even Dick Geeseman can break the spell as he planks down a slug to pay for the phosphate.

Romantic Halls of Library.

We'd like to know what happened to the ATO Jim Critchfield and Alpha Phi (of beauty fame) Pat Herminghaus romance. Pat's going to the Phi Gam formal Friday eve with Norrie Anderson, who we understood was taking DG Mary Lee Tomlinson. Ah, well!

We like to see Dee Chapin (wait til' Valentine's day, Feb. 14th), and DoDo Schwenker attempting to study on second with half of the Phi Delta Theta's studying at the same table. The biggest worry at that fraternity centers around English grammar, and many an unsuspecting female, who shines in English is asked to sit down, to find that the boys want noly in-

Sixteen Men . . . Lincoln Theatre, Nebraskan Sponsor Guessing Contest . . . On a Dead Man's Chest

Another feather in his hat and another feat for males to shoot at is Spencer Tracy's latest accomplishment in the role of Robert V. Forrest in the movie, "Keeper of the Flame," showing at the Lincoln next week.

Intellectual advice.

We like to watch the boys (there are a few of such species still on the Nebraska campus) regard the doorway on first, as some up-and-coming coed swings the massive doors, and not one pair of eyes, but those of the entire assembly follow with true concern her progress to the opposite side of the room. Perhaps it will be J. M. Smith, beauty queen likely, who studied frequently with Mr. Debus during exam week, or perhaps it will be Irene Hansen who invariably heads directly for the reference room. We followed her in one day, but found nothing but a lot of books with quotations, and several sets of Who's Who.

Dating Continues.

Towne club is feeling sentimental this week, or at least her members are. Seems as how on Monday night Romaine Ross passed the sweets and showed her ring from Bill Reiske and yesterday Roxanna Brown took the wedding vows with Weldon Shephard.

The dating situation goes on forever—this week end shines with the Tri Delt's, Kappa Sig's and Phi Gam's exploding respective house budgets on local bands. (Pardon, we hear that Lloyd Hunter, a direct import from Omaha, Neb. will be in attendance with his boys at the Phi Gam dinner dance.)

To play the role of a dead man—who is dead before the picture is begun, and still be mentioned more than the other characters, is the role of Robert V. Forrest. He practically co-stars, as far as importance is concerned, thruout the movie with Katherine Hepburn.

He is talked about thruout the picture, every character having something to say about him. The mystery plot revolves around him, his clothes, his personal belongings, his beliefs and the most intimate details of his life. Without Forrest there wouldn't have been

To see this picture the Lincoln Theater corporation, with the "Nebraskan," is offering free tickets to students guessing the proper number of times Robert V. Forrest is mentioned or referred to thruout the picture. Entries for the contest must be submitted to Betty Dixon by the end of this week.
