

ERC Still Uncertain Seniors Take Exams

Bewildered students of the ERC and various other reserves again received no definite word yesterday, as plans failed to unfold revealing the detailed procedures of the manpower training program to be enacted soon at the university.

Only definite notice released by the military department was the announcement that all senior advanced students would travel to Fort Crook Friday to take their physical, necessary to their entrance into the ERC. All senior advanced cadets, according to the military department, will meet at 1445 N street Friday morning at 5 a. m. to be taken to Fort Crook in a convoy of the artillery trucks. Further details of the trip and its activities will be published at a later date, stated Col. J. P. Murphy.

At the meeting in Omaha between Col. Murphy and Col. Briggs, the corps area ROTC commander, nothing was disclosed. Colonel Briggs was, however, on the campus Saturday viewing the various buildings with Chancellor Boucher and Colonel Boucher and Colonel Murphy and discussing their housing facilities for activated college trained students.

Whether or not college students would be placed on an active duty status will be discussed at a later date. See ERC, Page 4.

Girls' Dorm Contributes To War Fund

... Total Now $1715

Pushing the War Scholarship Fund to a total of $1,715, the Residence Halls for Women yesterday contributed a $50 war bond to the fund.

The money for the bond was collected from the house dues of the girls, according to Shirley Phelps, president of the Dorm. The gift was made to John Jay Douglass, president of the sponsoring organization, Student Foundation.

The Fund is trying for a goal of $2,500 this year.

Frankforter Leaves UN For Service

Popular Teacher
Reports to Omaha

Prof. Clarence J. Frankforter, popular chemistry instructor at the university since 1908, has been called to the government service. He will report at the Seventh Service Command Headquarters in Omaha for unassigned duty March 2.

COL. C. J. FRANKFORTER.

Frankforter, known as "colonel" to hundreds of his students, served in World War I as a captain both in the infantry and in chemical warfare. He returned to the university in 1927 and was commandant of the ROTC until 1911. The 57 year old professor has been a colonel in the army reserve for the past eight years.

Prof. Frankforter will be well remembered by the freshman as the solemn, earnest man who administered the Cornhusker Freshman Oath at the first convocation of the year. He also took an active part in the air raid warden class series by giving lectures on bombs and munitions.

A nationally recognized authority on chemical warfare, Frankforter served as technical advisor at the Mead and Wahoo munitions plants last summer.

Government Calls Johnson To Washington

Dr. Edgar N. Johnson, professor of history, has been ordered by the government to report in the office of strategic service in Washington on Monday. He has asked the board of regents for a leave of absence.

Dr. Johnson joins the Washington office, a branch of the army's general staff, as an authority on German history. He has traveled much in Germany and has written articles on medieval Germany.

In Washington, Dr. Johnson, who joined the faculty in 1931, will join Dr. R. W. Winnacker, on leave from the university history department to serve with the strategic service.

Wendt Speaks In Union This Evening at 8

The Japs and nazis have no monopoly on "big surprises" and some of World War II's most startling developments are yet to come, according to Dr. Gerald Wendt, science editor of Time, author and lecturer.

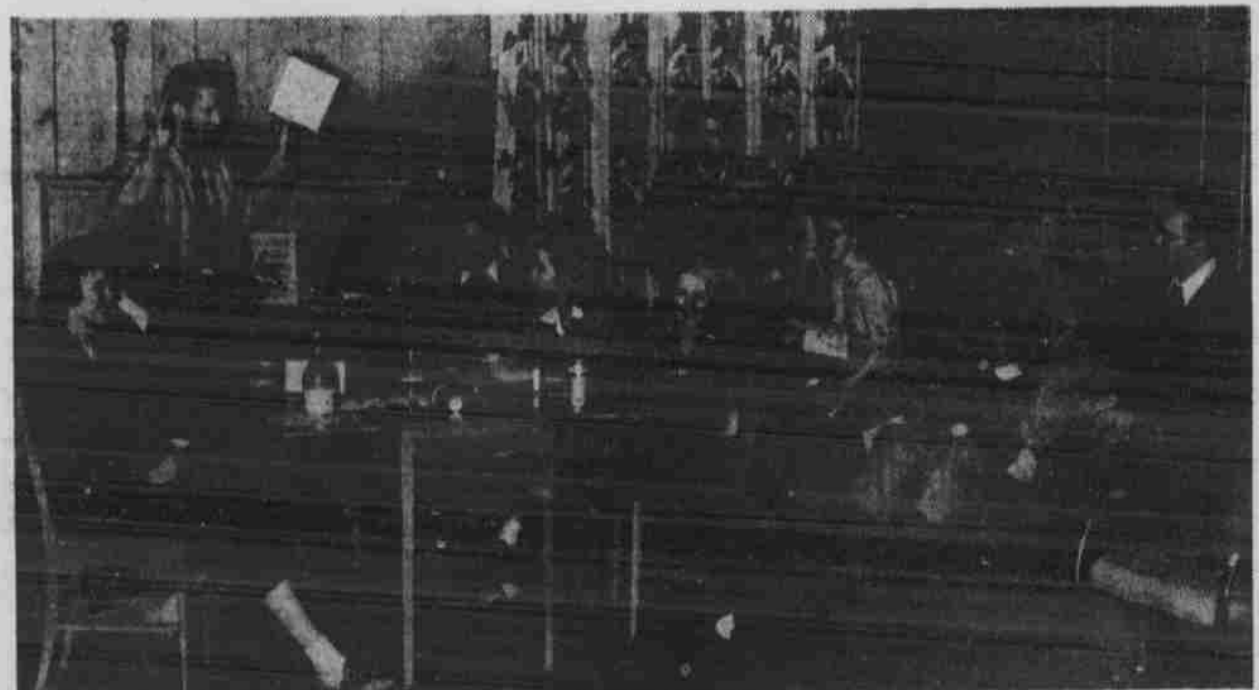

Dr. Wendt, who will speak on "The Science Front and Total War" in the Union ballroom at 8 p. m. tonight under the sponsorship of the Uni-Union series, is internationally known as an interpreter of modern science.

Science Continues.

Dr. Wendt, who himself has served as a captain in the chemical warfare service of the U. S. army during World War I, says that while most of the results of the work of our co-operating scientists are military secrets, the American public may be assured that their inventive and scientific genius is producing and producing more effectively for the war effort.

"The plane, tank, and submarine were only the beginning, not the end, of American inventive- See WENDT, Page 4.

Box Social Benefits WSSF...

Having a good old-fashioned time last night at one of the campus "box socials," sponsored for the benefit of the WSSF, are the Kappa Alpha Theta and Phi Kappa Psi groups. Caught by the camera as he was auctioning off a boxed supper to his brothers which the Thetas had prepared, is Auctioneer Bud Varvell. To his left are Ruth McClimate, and George Liggett. On his right are "Butch" Winter and Bill Thornberg talking animatedly about the vitamins in that bottle of milk. Reading on from left to right are "Shirts" Wright, Mary Helen Farrar, Dick Coyne, Joanne Boher, Marg Heyn, Tom Crummer, new president of Phi Psi, and Howard Johnson.

Fulton Officially Opens Campus WSSF Campaign

... Speaks at Union Tomorrow

Officially opening the WSSF drive on the campus will be Frank Fulton who will speak tomorrow night in the Union ballroom at 7:10 and tomorrow morning at 10 at a convocation on Ag campus.

Mr. Fulton is a graduate of Yale, was assistant YM director there and has taught at Yale in China and at Hunan, a government university. He has traveled extensively in the orient and is well acquainted with the educational and social problems of that part of the world. He has also traveled in Europe and Russia.

His discussion will concern the needs of students throughout the world and the contributions the World Student Service Fund is making to them.

As a sort of preliminary to the actual drive for funds, the various organized houses on the campus have been holding box socials over the week-end. This project has been under the direction of Ronnie Metz, and though the complete results can not be given yet as some of the affairs are being held this evening, it has been a marked success. In one group more than $100 was made from the sale of boxes.

The goal of this year's WSSF drive is $1,000, the slogan being a dollar from every person. If the drive continues to be as successful as it began the goal will be well surpassed.

All fraternity and sorority houses are dispensing with the usual Monday night meetings by request of Panhellenic and the Interfraternity Council so members can attend the address made by Mr. Fulton. Classes at Ag will be dismissed for the convocation if the students request it.
