DYNAMIC IDEA

(Editor's note: The following editorial written by the managing editor of the Daily Northwestern expresses an idea that is well worth the consideration of every university student.

Today my roommate leaves. He is one of 158 Northwestern men who have been called to active duty in the United States Air corps.

Three years ago many of those men were freshmen at this university. Three years ago those freshmen entered college with the news of Germany's invasion of Poland ringing in their ears.

And while my roommate leaves for the air corps, another friend leaves for a conscientious objectors camp. Unable to rationalize the employment of war as a means of resolving human conflicts, he prefers to defy the trumpetings of patriotism and the condemnations of our society rather than commit acts of murder.

SYMBOL OF CONFLICTS

Both the air corps cadet and the conscientious objector feel that they are doing their duty; both feel that they are the true patriots.

When we were young we were told that some day we might be Henry Fords and John D. Rockefellers. We were told that as individuals we were born free and equal.

It is a pattern in which the bright hues of glistening skyscrapers and surging industry have obscured the sombre background of disease and poverty, waste and destruction.

HUMAN CANCERS

Our eyes have been focused too long on the bright hues; we have failed to see the clash between them and the smutty background.

Yet too many of us believe that we must fight to preserve the existing system—the pattern in which only the bright hues strike the eye.

V... — Mail Clippings - Pat Chamberlin, Censor

Editor of Daily Nebraskan University of Nebraska Lincoln, Nebraska.

Dear Sir: There are over two hundred former University of Nebraska students here at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Flight C, 360th Technical School Squadron.

We would appreciate a few copies of the paper for our hut and we will see that they reach most of the fellows.

This plea was sent yesterday to the Daily, and much as the Daily would like to send these boys some copies of the Nebraskan free, we just haven't the wherewithall.

Farm House reports MERLE BRINEGAR, DALE BROEKEMEIER, LYLE DROGE, ROGER OTTO and ARTHUR SVOBODA are down at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., along with the rest of the two hundred.

Aviation Cadet NORMAN J. BARTZ is at Peccoy Army Air Field, Pecos, Texas, completing his basic flying training with the AAF.

HAROLD ALEXIS is now a Cadet at the Officers' Training School in Fort Benning, Georgia.

Lincoln Journal.

V-Mail was informed of his doings by his fiancee, Maxine Thompson, also of Nebraska. Depending on Uncle Sam, they plan to be married "sometime in March."

FRANK BOLAND EGAN, army technician corporal, has been promoted to his second lieutenantcy at Camp Berkeley, Texas.

regarded human beings constitute part of that which we fight to preserve.

We fail to realize that democracy is more than anything else an opportunity for adopting and instituting changes in our social pattern; that it is an enemy for social disorders.

MORE THAN FIGHTING

As such democracy is distinguished from totalitarian governments in that it is not dependent upon the will of an individual or several individuals, but is dependent only upon the will of all the people.

Those 158 army air corps cadets will be gone tomorrow. My roommate will be one of them. At the same time another friend will become a conscientious objector.

The existence of democracy is in our hands. The future of democracy is in our heads.

Nebraska Typical . . . Education Survey Shows Lack Of Teachers in War Subjects

American colleges are suffering from a shortage of teachers in war-essential subjects and a surplus of teachers in the liberal arts field, according to a recent survey made by the office of education.

The University of Nebraska teaching situation is typical of the average United States college, according to Mr. Richard D. Moritz, director of the department of educational service and dean of the summer school.

Summer School Hit

school would be greatly depleted because of regular instructors being called into the armed services and governmental work.

Mr. Moritz stated that other colleges and universities thruout the nation have sent requests to his office for teachers to fill vacancies in their faculty staffs.

Replies received from 1,060 out of the 1717 institutions of higher learning in the United States showed 1,660 teaching vacancies.

At the same time, however, that schools are unable to fill vacancies in the technical fields, other schools have chemistry, engineering, and physics staff members who are idle because of sharply whittled down enrollment in their colleges.

In all there are about 90 idle teachers in the strictly technical fields, a surplus of over 100 in the professional fields, and about 270 extra instructors in the liberal arts fields.

Because of the tremendous number of doctors who have joined the armed forces, medicine is the most seriously understaffed field, office of education statisticians show, with 575 vacancies and only seven trained men available for release.

Many of the colleges and universities who were asked about their teacher problem offered to cooperate with the government by releasing staff members if necessary, office of education officials report.
