Missouri Coach OK's Spring Grid Tussle

BY NORRIS ANDERSON.
(Sports Editor)

Another armload of kindling was tossed on the "Missouri versus Nebraska" gridiron bonfire Thursday night when Don Faurot, Missouri football coach, indicated via telephone to the Daily Nebraskan that the Tigers are willing to play.

"If we can receive an official invitation from the University of Nebraska, we're willing to play at Lincoln," said Faurot. "We couldn't play before April 10, however."

"An 'official invitation,' as Faurot worded it, consists of approval of the Cornhusker athletic board. Approval of said board can only be obtained by a meeting of all members.

"Due to John Riddell being located at York," said Prof. R. D. Scott, chairman of the board, "We can't hold an immediate meeting." Remainder of the board consists of Prof. J. D. Clerk, Prof. H. P. Davis, George Holmes, Dale Bradley (student member), and Dean T. J. Thompson. Ex-officio members are John Selleck, UN comptroller; L. H. Seaton, purchasing agent, and Glen Presnell, athletic director.

Deciding Opinions.

Since the question does deal with athletics, opinion of Presnell, Selleck and Dean Thompson would undoubtedly decide the issue. Thompson is Nebraska's faculty Big Six representative; Selleck handles the financial ledger for the Huskers.

Four members of the board were contacted yesterday and all leaned favorably toward the spring football game. A board meeting is the next step toward obtaining the fray. Then comes the problem of obtaining official Big Six approval, a sanction which should not be too hard to obtain in view of wartime conditions.

Coeds on Ag, City Campuses Object to Home Ec Ruling

... 'Be There or Else!'

A dormant rule on the books of the home economics department was put into effect this week and since has been the topic of much discussion on both campuses.

In yesterday's Letterip column a "Home Ec Student" brought this problem in a letter to the editor. The rule in question is that for every class missed three points will be taken off the student's final grade and for every tardy mark one point will be deducted from the final average.

The following are some comments made by students on the decision to enforce the rule.

Ridiculous!

Said a group of girls gathered in the Union lounge, "It is utterly ridiculous and childish—we are women from 18 to 22, not children from 8 to 12. We feel that we as women should use our judgment as to cutting a class or two particularly if the class is one in which we happen to be ahead of the balance of the class. The university considers us adults. It should be our privilege to judge whether or not to attend class—it is our loss not the instructors if (See HOME EC, Page 4.)

James Cotter Talks To Social Work Group

The various services of the Red Cross were described last night by Mr. James Cotter, manager of the Lancaster county chapter of the Red Cross, last night at the second lecture in the "Social Services in War Time" series sponsored by the graduate school of social work.

Mr. Cotter explained that the Red Cross was an organization with deep roots in all of the communities of the nation its staff depending almost entirely on the work of volunteers. These volunteers are trained so that they can take over in any sort of an emergency. There are 6,000 volunteers working in Lancaster county alone.

Red Cross Flood Work.

The Red Cross program is divided as follows:
1. Communication and information between home and armed forces, in regard to allotments (See COTTER, Page 2.)

Dr. Trueblood Of Stanford U. Visits Campus

Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, chaplain of Stanford university and a professor of religion in the department of sociology there will be in Lincoln this week end, according to Rev. Drew, Methodist student pastor.

Sunday morning he will give a sermon at St. Paul Methodist church in World Education. In the evening he will speak at a special youth forum at 6:30.

His subject at the forum will be "Religion Unashamed" and the discussion will be especially for university students.

Along with his work at Stanford Dr. Trueblood is the author of several books in the religious field and is a leading Quaker.

Sneak Preview of OCS Reveals 'Strict Discipline'

... Attention Senior Cadets

So you want to know what you can expect at Officer's Candidate School, well, "Discipline is as strict as it can be made," was the statement made by Captain W. I. Freel to Purdue University military students, published in the Purdue Exponent, and reprinted here for the benefit of the senior and junior advanced students who may or may not be entering OCS in the next few months.

"You're every walking activity is supervised," commented the Captain. "I think you will find OCS one of the greatest experiences in your life." These two statements provide an inkling as to what would be forthcoming in OCS life.

In beginning his talk, Captain Freel stated that the fundamental aim of OCS activities is to lead to the intensification of the qualities of leadership in the individual."

Proceeding along the line of leadership he defined it as comprising "an integration of moral integrity, responsibility, rationality, intellectual curiosity, and forcefulness of purpose," all of which must be developed or ex- (See OCS, Page 4.)

Student Foundation Holds High School Essay Contest

... Open to Seniors

Announcement of the opening of their annual essay contest for all high school seniors in the state of Nebraska was made today by the Nebraska Student Foundation.

Last year the contest was presented for the first time and was rated as highly successful by the foundation officers. The winner of last year's contest, Miss Shirley Crosby of Humboldt, is now attending the University of Nebraska.

"Why I Should Like to Attend the University of Nebraska in These Times" will be the topic of the essay. A limitation of 750 words has been placed on the submitted essays, and the deadline for entries has been set as April 17.

All high school seniors throughout the state are eligible to enter. However, to be eligible for the prizes, the winners must enroll in the University this coming fall.

Prizes for the contest will consist of a semester's tuition, not exceeding $45, for the first prize and two second prizes consisting of $25 each. Winners will be chosen entirely by the quality of the work by a special faculty committee composed of Professors J. L. Seifers and H. C. Vedler.
