Rockefeller Grant Aids Farm Work Research

With the aid of a $6,000 Rockefeller donation, the university visual education department and the rural economics department are working together in farm work simplification research.

According to H. C. Filley, head of rural economics, research is supervised by Purdue university. Purdue university has distributed an $87,000 Rockefeller fund over 12 or 13 central states co-operating with this study.

Study Haying Methods.

The methods of loading and stacking hay is the major project in Nebraska as well as other small projects. George Hendrix, assistant extension economist, has made practical observation showing that one-third of the time used in loading hay by hand is saved by a mechanical hay loader. The size of the farm is a factor in determining the advantage of big machinery.

In connection with the Ag college research, the visual education department is taking pictures showing study methods and motions. The moving pictures will be shown to Nebraska farmers to show improved methods of saving labor hours. The results of the research done in Nebraska will be exchanged for research made in other states.

Cheerleaders Hold Tryouts In Rag Office

Tryouts for cheerleaders will be held today at 5:15 in the Daily Nebraskan office.

Students in the university with sophomore standing, or above, are eligible to compete. Due to athletic board rulings, girls will be ineligible for the position.

Judges will be Marjorie Marlette, editor of the Nebraskan; Betty Hohf, editor of the Cornhusker; June Jamieson, managing editor of the Nebraskan; Bob Henderson, business manager of the Cornhusker and Joyce Junge, president of the WAA.

Prof. David Fellman Returns From Leave in Wisconsin

BY MARY ALICE LEHR.

Pursuing David Fellman to his domestic retreat from the student body and poli. sci. majors proved to be a profitable excursion Saturday afternoon, for by doing so I learned that during his one year leave of absence from his duties in the department of political science, Professor Fellman has been acting as lecturer in his chosen field at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin. His leave, which expired the fore part of this month, was granted to aid Wisconsin university in staffing its political science department.

Civilian Classes.

At Madison Mr. Fellman's classes were composed entirely of civilian students, both undergraduates and graduates, even though the campus was densely populated with service men and women.

In response to an inquiry regarding his favorite class during his work at Wisconsin, Professor Fellman said that he particularly enjoyed a course especially planned and designed to fit the present war period, United States at War.

"I am somewhat in doubt as to how enlightening the undergraduate found this course; personally I found it extremely so."

Large Number of Trainees.

One thing most decidedly impressed the professor. It was the vast number of persons being trained in the campus war time training program.

Wisconsin was, at the time Mr. Fellman left its campus, peopled with A.S.T.P. men, WAVES, "female" Marines, area and foreign language students, meteorology pupils, and also a large group of Navy boys pursuing courses in the field of code. It is his opinion that Wisconsin is more heavily committed to the war program and earlier organized itself to accommodate this program than did Nebraska.

LET'S SEND 'EM A DAILY!

War Council in collaboration with the Daily Nebraskan will publish and mail copies of the Daily Nebraskan weekly to former university men now in the armed forces, replacing the former "Rags-Tags" service.

Roberta Burgess is the representative of War Council in charge of the service. Coeds may register to address the "Rags for Servicemen" as their three hours of required war work at the all-university war work registration which will be next week.

Workers Sign Up.

Registrants should have a little typing ability and free hours between 1 and 5 on Thursday or Friday afternoons, or 9 and 12 Saturday mornings. A preliminary meeting will be held Friday, October 8, at 5 p. m. in Room 16 of the Union.

Council Holds First Meeting Tonight at 5

First meeting of the Student Council will be held tonight at 5 o'clock in room 313 of the Union, according to Jean Cowden, co-chairman of this governing body of the UN students.

Any student can attend the meeting which has been called to outline the council's work for the coming year. Non-member students may speak if recognized by the chair, but they will have no part in voting.

Holdover members from last year's council include Jean Cowden and Lois Christie, co-chairman, Jane Fenton and Herb Williams, all affiliated, and Dorothy Mae Anderson and David Simonson, unaffiliated. Professor E. W. Lantz is the faculty advisor of the organization.

Navy Will Invade Campus; 23 Dents To Wear Uniform

Twenty-three former Nebraska dental students will be permitted to continue their education here under the auspices of the Navy. They will be in uniform soon, but will not be quartered in barracks.

Anyone who wishes to assist in addressing and mailing these copies of the Daily Nebraskan to the NU servicemen must attend this meeting.

Last year, "Rags-Tags" was a mimeographed summary of important events at the university and V-Mail clippings and was mailed to the UN servicemen twice a month under the supervision of Margaret Beede. "Rags-Tags" became so popular, that the War Council decided to enlarge their service by sending a complete copy of the Daily Nebraskan weekly to every ex-Cornhusker in the service.

It is hoped that the Daily will keep the servicemen in contact with their former associates and activities on the Nebraska campus. With football and other major sports still on the university athletic program, the "Rags for Servicemen" will provide information on the major sports events for these still loyal Nebraskans.

Grill Opens For STAR Unit at Ag

To accommodate both the STARS and the students in the evening a new grill will be added to the Ag campus cafeteria.

Students and army men will now have the advantage of a snack bar where they can buy sandwiches and drinks without going down town.

The grill is expected October 1 or shortly after, according to Miss Jessie Amos, dietitian for the STAR unit. "Service will be similar to that offered by the Student Union corn crib but on a much simpler scale," said Miss Amos. "There will be self service instead of the city campus table service."

Offered will be four different kinds of sandwiches. Milk shakes, malts, cokes and coffee can be ordered in addition to sundaes. Sodas will not be offered.

The Grill hours are from 7:30-10 o'clock every day but Saturday. Music will come from a juke box.

Theater Group Meets Tomorrow

All students interested in participating in University theater activities this year are requested by Director Berne Enslin to attend an open meeting at Temple auditorium, Thursday, 7:00 p. m.

The new student theater advisory board will be elected at the meeting. Anyone interested in technical and back stage work, as well as acting, are asked to come.

Union Holds 'Flood Sale' Of Dampened Cigarettes

. . . 47 Cartons

Remember when the Union was flooded about two weeks ago when some little man left the hose running into the building?

Well, all of 24 cartons of Old Golds and 23 cartons of Lucky

Strikes were slightly dampened, but now they are all dried out and ready for a "Flood Sale" by the Union.

Good Condition.

The cigs are in good condition (one package was opened to prove it) with only the cellophane covering slightly shrunk. Packed in these air tight containers, the "weeds" survived the shower bath in perfect condition, but because of the appearance of the shrunken packages, the Union is selling them at cost prices.

The "flood sale" will begin today at the Union office between the hours of 11 a. m. and 5 p. m. A carton will sell for $1.23 and a single package for 13c. The sale will continue as long as the cigarettes last, and if anyone is dissatisfied with their purchase the Union will refund his money.

Summer War Council Gives Work Report

Jerry McKenzie and Mary Alice Lehr will act as co-chairmen of notifications and Roberta Burgess as chairman of Rag Tags for the 1943-44 University War Council. These appointments were made by Pat Chamberlin, president of the council, at the organization's first meeting of the current school year held in room 315 of the Student Union Monday at 5:00.

War Council Office at Union.

In order to centralize the work of the council it was voted to establish a War Council office. The office will be located in the basement of the Union within the office of the Daily Nebraskan. Regular meeting time was set for 5:00 each Tuesday. The meetings of the council are open to any interested person.

Summer Council Reports.

Reporting on the work of the summer War Council, Min Beede, chairman of the summer group, told of three dances sponsored by the council for the uniformed men on the campus. The first two were

Daily Reporters Meet in Office At 4:30 Today

Daily reporters will meet for the first time today at 4:30 at the Nebraskan office in the basement of the Union. All those interested in working in such a capacity should attend, according to Marjorie Marlette, editor, who will explain Nebraskan style and policy.
