

UN Idle Saturday Iowa Plays Gophers

OU-MU Fray Looms Large In Big Six

With the Cornhuskers idle over this week end, all eyes in the Big Six conference are turned to the Missouri-Oklahoma game this Saturday at Columbia, Missouri. This game will undoubtedly be the game deciding the conference championship, and both teams are prepared to shoot the moon.

Although through its previous record, the Tigers are doped to win the game, several sports writers are picking the Sooners to spill the vaunted Missouri boys in an upset. No doubt the return of Charley Heard, who was injured early in the season, to the Okie lineup has swung some of the predictions over in favor of the Sooners. Heard, a light but speedy back, is a past master on lugging the ball, and is considered one of the finest open field runners in the Southwest.

Hawkeyes Next

The Iowa Hawkeyes, next week opponents of the Huskers here in Lincoln, meet the once mighty Gophers of Minnesota at Minneapolis this Saturday, and although not favored to win, the Hawkeyes will undoubtedly give the Minnesotans a real battle.

Coach Ad Lewandowski should be able to give his Husker squad a thorough overhauling this week, and next in preparation for the coming Iowa tilt. Most of this week was spent in running over offense and particularly on mapping out new plans and plays as a special "T" party for Coach "Slip" Madigan and company. The Scarlet was also run through contact scrimmages the latter part of the week, and the coaching staff seemed pleased with results. The almost completely revised backfield received plenty of time to brush up on plays and timing, and should be functioning in top form by the time that the Iowa game rolls around.

Purdue Idle Too

Another team with a lay over schedule this week is Purdue. Tied with Michigan for the Big Ten conference race, the Boilermakers should have plenty of time to rest up and prepare for the final stretch run for the championship, while Michigan, although playing a Hapless Wisconsin, will be busy this coming Saturday.

Because of having played and won five games, against Michigan's four wins, the Boilermakers have a slight edge on the Wolverines for conference honors, but if things turn out as planned, the Michigan boys ought to be tied up tight with the Purdue men. The Hoosiers of Indiana, who were knocked out of the race last week, by Michigan, will probably be playing a second to Northwestern for third place, with Illinois bringing up fourth place.

Irish vs. Wildcats

This Saturday, the Wildcats of Northwestern will be playing the praise-sung Irish of Notre Dame, who are a little more than slightly favored to take the fray. The game will be the choice of the week, with Coach Waldorf's Wildcats trying to claw the Irish down from their number one in the nation spot. However, if Frank Leahy's boys perform like they have all season, the Irish should whip the Northwestern Purple at par.

Getting back to the Iowa-Minnesota game, Slip Madigan and his civilians should give the Gophers a rough time of it, since the Gophers have lost several stellar men in the past week or so. Led by Bill Barbour, a double threat end, who can placekick as well as snare passes, the Iowans, boasting a fine backfield, headed by Bill Gallagher, may upset the dope bucket, and climb up the Big Ten ladder a notch. This, however, will give Coach Ad Lewandowski a chance to compare his club to the Iowans, and plan accordingly, as by comparing the games, on the basis of the Nebraska-Minnesota game.

Pigskin Pickings

BY BOB LIENERT.

Shortage of space forced the cancellation of this column the last several weeks, but you can't keep us down forever, so we're at it again.

For some mysterious reason, our predictions always turn out best when they're not published, but here we are anyway, sticking our neck way, way out in trying to pick a few of Saturday's games.

Minnesota over Iowa: After dropping two, Minnesota comes back in the win column.

Seahawks over Camp Grant: Once more, the Navy does it to the Soldiers.

Illinois over Ohio State: Another of our hunches—which usually go wrong.

Great Lakes over Indiana: But hesitantly!

Michigan over Wisconsin: With absolutely no misgivings.

Notre Dame over Northwestern: Up goes our average.

Missouri over Oklahoma: Three cheers for the Big Six champs.

Penn over North Carolina: Just too much strength for the Tarheels.

Dartmouth over Cornell: But don't ask us to bet on it.

Navy over Columbia: Well, anybody disagree?

Princeton over Yale: We flipped our one and only dime on this one.

Army over Sampson Navy: How did they get on the Cadets' schedule?

Penn State over Temple: The Nittany Lions growl once more.

Georgia Tech over Tulane: The Yellow-jackets are good for our money.

Duke over Virginia: By a lopsided score.

Texas over T.C.U.: Texas is gunning for a Bowl bid, and isn't going to let T.C.U. stand in the way.

Texas A. & M. over Rice: No reason to pick otherwise.

California over U.C.L.A.: As far as we're concerned the Uclians rank at the bottom of the coastal heap.

Southern Cal over March Field: In a supreme face-saving effort.

Skippping up the sideline: Iowa State over Drake; S.M.U. over Arkansas; Georgia over V.M.I.; Georgia Navy over Clemson; North Carolina State over Davidson; North Texas over Texas Tech; St. Mary's Pre-flight over San Francisco; Colorado College over Utah; Holy Cross over Villanova; and Southwestern over Abilene Air Base.

RIDING SATURDAY

Riding club meets Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Meet at Grant Memorial and go out to the Fair Grounds to ride. Girls who haven't signed up are welcome to come.

Muddling Through With John C. Bentley

Well, we are plenty glad to see that such high enthusiasm has been built up lately, in inter-mural sports. The men's intermural football tournament turned out to be a lulu, with plenty of exciting games, and interested fans.

At the beginning of the year, the possibility of dropping intermurals was discussed, but it was decided to arrange a schedule and see how things worked out. Well, there can be no doubt now, that war or no war, intermurals will work out, and be well received. And, that is the way that it should be. It is hard enough to maintain a campus attitude, if I may call it that, in war, and these activities go a long way toward keeping that school spirit alive over these rough waters.

Intermurals should be continued and kept alive no matter what, as it gives the student a chance to get closer to the other fellow, when closeness means so much.

A great deal of credit goes to the University Athletic Board, Coach Ad Leewndoski, the coaching staff, and Gordon, Ehlers, who though busy as they are, devote a lot of their time in directing and planning these activities. Also, the W.A.A. deserves a great deal of credit for the part that it has played in maintaining a schedule of activities for the girls, who now, not counting the army, outnumber the boys by plenty.

Let's keep the good work up, and see if we can't keep things as they were before the war, so that when the soldiers return to the campus, things will be rolling right along as they were before they left.

A new plan of activities has been introduced by the Intermural office, and will start in a few days. Word came in from Gordon Ehlers, something to this effect.

With the football season concluded, the intermural program calls for indoor sports to begin within the next few days. A meeting of all fraternity intermural directors will be held this week to work out a schedule suitable to all. I am sure that the winter program will call for a variety of activities with basketball as the chief attraction. I will have a list of the standings according to the points with the next few days. Some of the fraternities who did not participate in touch football are invited to participate in future events. The usual awards will be made to winners of the major events, with a Jack Best's Trophy to the fraternity compiling the largest number of points at the end of the year.

So, come, oh, let's get out there and try our best, for who knows, as Gordon says, you might be the lucky winner.

Uni Grads See Activity Duty Across Seas

Second Lt. Raymond A. Grossman, '42, was awarded a silver star medal recently for "gallantry in action" on July 11, 1943.

Lieutenant Grossman is with a Parachute Field Artillery Battalion acting as Assistan Battery Executive Officer. While under heavy counter-battery fire and having been forced to abandon his position because of direct hits by German guns, he led his crew back to the original position and resumed firing into enemy position. His leadership and courage were an inspiration to all members of his gun crew.

Newly appointed assistant program director for American Red Cross in Calcutta, India, is Esther R. Fuenning, graduate of '35. Miss Fuenning is well qualified as to her credit go the social direction of many summer camps in this country, and the Hamburg-American Line cruises to the West Indies.

Her letters are colorful descriptions of the tropical flowers, banana trees and the customs observed in India.

"And They Shall Walk," the story of Sister Elizabeth Kenny's life and experiences in the treatment of infantile paralysis, written by Sister Kenny and Martha Ostenson, is being broadcast over WLB, the University of Minnesota radio station.

Hockey Club Braves Storm

In spite of wintry winds, twelve hockey enthusiasts played a fast and furious game at the last meeting of the newly formed hockey club. After the game a short meeting was held. The club decided to petition the WAA council for admission as one of the regularly organized sport clubs.

Freda Phillips was elected temporary head of the club. Some of the other members are Mickey McPherson, Frances Bleick, Eunice Way, Miss Lockhart of the phys. ed. department, Lucille Wolford, Mary Mulder, Virginia Seacrest, and Jane Johnson. Miss Carkin is sponsoring the club.

Snow-Bound Gophers Prep Iowa Game

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—Deep snow, covering the stadium and practice fields, seems likely to keep the Minnesota football team inside the Field House for practice during the entire period remaining for preparation for the annual game against their long standing rival, the Iowa Hawkeyes this week end.

Handicapped by the abnormal practice conditions, Minnesota has been further hurt by the loss of its first substitute fullback, Brick Waldron, who suffered a broken leg in the Purdue game. Against the possibility that Hoyt Moncrief or freshman Loren Palmer might also be injured, Dr. George Hauser is drilling Dick Heeb, another freshman, as a fullback replacement. Heeb has been less necessary at left halfback since freshman Tom Cates of St. Paul has begun to show such excellent performance at that position.

Loss of Bill Garmaas has become keenly felt, not so much because Bill Peterson did not play excellently at quarter, but because it reduces by a very large "one" the number of men available for that strenuous position. Had Peterson been in the game as a fresh replacement rather than a tired performer when he made his bad kick against Purdue, the ball might have gone into safe territory and a tie instead of a loss would have been the outcome for Minnesota.

Never before have Minnesota and Iowa played a game when both teams were so low in the standings as are those of 1943. This year both will be battling to preserve something from the remains of a season, that has carried many disappointments.
