With
John C. Bentley

Lets see a lot of Cornhusker rooters out there in the stands this coming Saturday when the Scarlet takes on the rough and ready Iowas Hawkeyes. This should be a darn good game, and the cheer leaders are going to need a lot of good husky lungs.

Those boys are going to be out there playing for the fun of it, and for the school, and they deserve your aid and support, so what say we get that 'ol time spirit, and really turn out enmass with some of that good old cheering that really makes a football game a football game.

A couple of the cheer leaders and other people have asked me to tell you that they sure would like your support. It is a heck of a lot of fun, win or lose, so I expect to see all of your bright and shining faces out there Saturday.

Well, the Big Six, and most of the other leagues will just about be wound up this Saturday, and from these games will probably come the final decisions of who won what where.

One game that will create a lot of interest is the College of the Pacific game with the San Diego Naval Base champs, who whipped USC after the Trojans had won a hotly contested game over the COP boys.

I sure would like to see Alonzo Stagg outfit take the Navy boys.

Pigskin Pickin's

Coasting down the homestretch of the season we find the games are getting tougher and tougher to pick. Due to transfers, upsets, and other phenomena beyond the control of the lowly predictor, he finds picking winners is anything but a bed of roses. Casting a backward glance and whipping our slide rule back and forth, we figured out that our seasonal average is a respectable (?) .775; we picked 155 winners and missed 45 times with tie games being disre-

However, the grand old man has lost plenty of power thru those nasty Marine and Navy transfers, and it seems doubtful as to whether they can win or not.

garded. That percentage isn't exactly sensational, but we think that it is pretty darn good for us. The way we see it, this week's grid battles will turn out as follows:

Dartmouth over Princeton: With one of the best teams in the east, Dartmouth should take this one easily.

Army over Brown: The question in our minds is: What's happened to the Cadets? This week should bring the answer.

Colgate over Columbia: A firm nod to Colgate.

Villanova over Temple: Villanova exhibited plenty of punch while losing a close one to a fine Holy Cross team.

Penn State over Pitt: This is one year when a lion can chew up a panther.

Northwestern over Illinois: Any team that can hold Notre Dame scoreless for 29 minutes can whip the Illini.

Purdue over Indiana: The Boilermakers steam on towards the conference title.

Michigan over Ohio State: Paul Brown's youngsters find out how the big boys play the game.

Minnesota over Wisconsin: One game that Minnesota can count on. Missouri over Kansas: Are those Tigers mad! This game should be a slight consolation for Mizzou.

Iowa over Nebraska: In which the Hawkeyes win their first game. (Boy, how we hope we're way, way off the beam.)

Notre Dame over Iowa Seahawks: The nation's best service team goes against the nation's best "Civilian" team and gets the short end of the score.

Georgia Tech over Clemson: A sure thing!

Tulane over L. S. U.: S. M. U. has been very unpredictable this fall, while Tech consistently plays fine ball.

College of Pacific over San Diego Navy: College of Pacific gets their big chance to prove themselves better than U.S.C.

Cornhuskers Plan for Upset Over Passing Iowa Hawkeyes

Iowans Seek First Victory Of Year at Scarlet Expense

Drilling right up to the last minute for the coming invasion this Saturday of the Iowa Hawkeyes, the Nebraska Cornhuskers went through contact scrimmage to sharpen up their offensive power and drilled overtime on pass defense.

The Iowans boast a flashy passing attack, and Coach Ad Lewandowski is taking no chances on a repeat of past aerial blitzes. The Scarlet, now more experienced and polished than at the beginning of the season, probably will present a stiffer aerial defensive than in the past, and they also sport a passin' attack, so the game should see plenty of ball throwing.

Teams Lose Power.

Both teams have lost plenty of reserved and first string power through the draft and ineligibility, and are weak on reserves, but from all expectations, the game should be close, with the Iowans given a slight edge on the betting. However, Lewandowski and the Huskers plan a little surprise for the Hawkeyes, who are still seeking their first victory of the season, and if the Scarlet gets to rolling, it is not improbable that the dope bucket may be upset.

The Nebraska starting lineup will be slightly changed around since the Kansas State game, with Ted Kenfield again slated for the starting quarter spot, and Ellyson in at fullback instead of Smith. With Kenfield back in the starting role, and Galter on the reserve list the Huskers should have plenty of passing strength, to match the Iowan attack.

Iowa Wants Win.

The Iowans, still smarting from the beating they received at the hands of the not nearly so strong as when they beat Nebraska Gophers of Minnesota, will be pointing for their first win of the season.
