Hawkeyes Battle For 33-13 Win

After hanging on to a slim margin for three quarters, the Iowa Hawkeyes broke loose in the fourth quarter and plastered the Nebraska Cornhuskers to the tune of 33 to 13. Up until this final stanza, it appeared as if the Iowans would have to battle right down to the final gun to maintain their margin of victory, but capitalizing on the breaks, the Haweyes pushed over two touchdowns to clinch their first win of the season.

It was the smashing plunges of Bill Gallagher, stellar fullback of the Iowa clan that spelled victory for the Hawkeyes, and defeat for the Huskers, sparked the Iowa drives with plunges that were consistently good for 5 to 10 yards.

Hollins Sparks Huskers.

Hollins was the outstanding player for the Huskers, both on the offense and the defense. Buzz was smashing the line with force equal to that of Gallagher, and made several "saving" tackles and pass defensive efforts.

Play By Play.

Nebraska kicked off to the Hawkeyes, Larson returned to the 37 yard line before Goldstein made the tackle. Terrell tried right end for 4 yards, but a penalty for holding moved the ball back to the 22 yard line. Terrell again found the right end good, and

Hold Aviation Cadet Convo Monday at 5

To acquaint students with the aviation cadet training program, a convocation will be held for all interested persons at 5 p. m. Monday in social science auditorium. According to Dean T. J. Thompson, the convocation is the result of inquiries from students concerning aviation cadet training and will discuss the opportunities for aviation cadets.

—From Lincoln Journal.

An aviation cadet board, presided over by Maj. V. A. Spoonmore, has been invited to the campus and will be present at the convocation.

17 Year Olds Apply.

Men of 17 years of age may be selected but will not be called to active duty until after reaching 18 years of age. Those between 18 and 26 years of age may volunteer for cadet training thru their local selective service boards.

"A meeting to acquaint interested students in the navy is being planned for in the near future," said Dean Thompson.

Honor Home Ec Founder With Dinner

"Hands Across the Water" has been announced as the new theme for the program of the annual Ellen H. Richards dinner, home economics dinner held in honor of the founder of home economics. Time of the dinner, to be served Tuesday evening at St. Paul church, has been changed from 6:30 to 8:15.

Main address will be a talk by an anonymous woman speaker who came to this country from Germany just previous to the outbreak of the war in Germany. She will tell of her experiences in that country and will stress the differences in the old country and the new.

Students Participate.

Others who will take part in the program are Blanche Reed, toastmistress; Dorothy Anderson, who will give the invocation; Miss Margaret Fedde, who will give a short talk; Marjorie Clancy, who will present a tribute to Ellen H. Richards, and Gwen Row as song-leader. A violin solo by Jo Michael Flack will complete the program.

Arline Casey and Kay Huston, general chairmen of the dinner, announced that 160 tickets have been sold.

Kay Detweiler Becomes Miss ASTP of Nebraska at Dance

Beautiful Delta Gamma Kay Detweiler from Omaha became Nebraska's Miss ASTP of 1943 amid cheers from the crowds of soldiers and their dates at the coliseum dance last night as she burst thru a large paper ASTP insignia on the stage and was presented to her GI court by Major Harland G. Pattison, commander of the Second Battalion of the ASTP.

The presentation was the feature attraction of the second bi-monthly coliseum dance held by the Student Union for all military trainees on campus. Dave Haun and his orchestra furnished the dancing rhythm for the occasion.

The new beauty queen, attired in a lovely, green formal, received an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums tied with a dark blue bow, signifying the ASTP colors, after her introduction to the audience. Major Pattison also presented the other four finalists in the beauty contest, which was sponsored by the Daily Nebraskan Army News. The four coeds, who attended the queen at her presentation, were Margaret Munson, Barbara Stahl, Elinor Thomas and Lois Wright. Pfc. Bill Calkins and Bill Chisolm, editors of the Army News and also judges in the contest, thanked the military and university authorities, as well as the soldiers for their co-operation in selecting Miss ASTP. Captain James D. Crabill, commanding officer of the Third Battalion and the third on the board of military judges who selected the five finalists, was commended for his help in picking the candidates.

Following the presentation, Miss ASTP Kay Detweiler led the grand march, accompanied by her four attendants. As a friendly gesture, Wing Commander John Neill of Air Corps CTD unit was given the honor of escorting the AST's queen.

Annual Issues Last Warning For Pictures

This is the last week in which students from all classes may have their pictures taken for the yearbook at the Cornhusker studio. For the first time in the history of the book the two lower classes will be represented so freshmen and sophomores as well as juniors and seniors will have a section.

All fraternities and sororities which have a 100 percent of their pictures taken by Monday, Nov. 22, will receive free copies of the book, according to Betty Hohf, editor.

People whose last names begin with A to Z must get their pictures taken this week. This is positively the last chance.

Junior Division Issues Letters Of Instruction

To aid students in their preparation for 12 weeks examinations scheduled from Nov. 29 to Dec. 4, the junior division office is issuing letters to its students, according to Nels A. Bengston, dean of the junior division.

The letters will also contain the arrangements outlined for second semester registration and a complete explanation of guidance tests which are available to all university students.

Walter W. Cook, Former UN Law Professor, Dies

Walter Wheeler Cook, former professor of law at the university died Nov. 7, at the age of seventy years. Shortly before his death he resigned his law professorship at Northwestern University.

Professor Cook also served as law instructor at Columbia University, University of Missouri, University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, Yale University and Johns Hopkins University.

Varsity Band Gives Salute To Nebraska

In a salute to Nebraska, the Nebraska varsity band presented its most spectacular and extensive drill of the season during the half of the Nebraska-Iowa football game Saturday afternoon.

The 99 member band formed its several formations: A hog, an ear of corn, and a chicken to represent the various aspects of the agricultural industry in the state. It concluded with a reproduction of the state capitol.

Appropriate music to fit the formations was played as the band went thru its maneuvers.

Due to an error in editing, the name of Bill Morita, business manager, was omitted from the engineering Blue Print story in Friday's Daily.

UN Campus Gives Thanks Monday at 7

Thanksgiving service sponsored jointly by the Religious Welfare Council and war council will be held tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Union ballroom.

University students and men in uniform for the first time will meet together, regardless of faith, to give thanks. Sororities and fraternities have consented to postpone their meetings until after the service.

Rabbi Harry Jolt will give the opening prayer, Rev. Thomas A. Barton will address the group and Rev. George Schuster will give the benediction. Selections of hymns and background music will be furnished by Myron Roberts at the organ.

Pearl Harbor Refugee, Ki Mattson, Relates Own Bombing Experiences

BY MARGARET NEUMANN.
Tall, dark Mary Ki Mattson of Honolulu was a part of the excitement of the Pearl Harbor bombardment, was reported drowned by Tokyo, and even had her name changed when she got to Nebraska.

Ki's father is a lieutenant commander in the Hawaiian zone, and her mother a nurse. Both are still in Honolulu. Dec. 7, 1941, Ki, a Gamma Phi pledge, was asleep when the bombs began to fall. Her mother awakened Ki to tell her she was going to Tripler hospital, a large army hospital, to help with the wounded. Ki herself sat in the car in front of the Frank Wynn clinic listening for radio calls for the doctor. Later she worked at the volunteer blood bank.

Scared, But Busy.

Ki, whose Hawaiian name is Kaiulani, says she was scared, but too busy running errands and contacting doctors to think about what was happening. Her first worry was about their food supply. After counting the family canned goods, she packed boxes for her father and mother. When her father returned three days later, his first request was for a can opener. The camps had plenty of cans, but no way to open them.

There was little hysteria among the population, according to Ki. The Red Cross went right to work and everyone volunteered to help. People's imaginations worked overtime. At night they saw Jap paratroopers in their next door neighbors' wash on the line.

Jap Traitors.

Because of the large Jap population, Ki said it gave her a queer feeling to walk down the street and wonder which of those Japs she met were traitors.

She came to the U.S. on an English ship. The third day out, Tokyo announced the entire convoy sunk. The ship had a skirmish with some submarines, too, but Ki didn't know about it till the end of the trip.

Hobby.

Ki finished high school at Teachers college and is now living in the dorm. Her major is fashion design. Portraits are her hobby.

When she started rush week, friends told her to use her first name instead of Kaiulani. She says she has since had a great deal of trouble "coming when called." Her Hawaiian name, incidentally, means "precious from heaven."

Honolulu during peace time depends entirely upon tourist trade. Ki says her favorite sport is ti-leaf sailing. The three requirements for it are old clothes, a muddy hill and a big branch of slick, oblong ti leaves. The slider sits on the leaves, grasps the end of the branch and slides.
