Occupied Education --Nazi Style

Washington—Imagine a college class in which every student agreed with every professional statement. Imagine a university that allows its students to read only the books on a designated list—and no others, on pain of imprisonment.

Sounds fantastic, doesn't it? Something that couldn't ever happen.

Yet in one after another of the German-occupied countries, the Nazis are doing their best to make these things commonplace. If that will be no easy task, it's because education in those countries is still doggedly fighting for its life.

In Copenhagen, German police have imprisoned the dean of the Frederiksberg Gymnasium on suspicion of anti-Nazi activity. He was accused of having allowed his students to distribute illegal publications and of having hidden both students and publications during a Nazi raid of the school. What Berlin papers probably did not print was the story of how the dean locked the furious Nazis in one of the school-rooms while his pupils escaped thru a back door.

All Jugoslavs between the ages of 14 and 50 who do not know German will be given an opportunity by the Nazis to learn the language this winter or "take the consequences." This invitation was couched in a proclamation issued by Nazi authorities which announced the commencement of a "big language campaign."

These reports are coming from nearly every occupied country today. But of all these reports, one has been outstanding. That is the fight being carried on by Oslo University, where the struggle of education versus the Nazis has been a long and persistent one.

This fall all of the faculties of the University unanimously passed a declaration of their intentions to resign rather than submit to the new Quisling rules. Following this action, eight professors and forty students were arrested, presumably as hostages.

Some of these students are known to be in concentration camps, and the Germans are considering closing Oslo University for the duration of the war since it seems to have turned into a potato that is too hot to handle. But if that should happen, Oslo will probably continue to fight. And in other places, the Germans are feeling the repercussions of their Oslo actions. Recently they found it necessary to arrest 50 professors in Bergen who had joined sides with Oslo education.

That is a part of the story of education elsewhere. It is a story that is being unfolded as you sit in class and wait for the end-of-the-hour bell to ring.

cuss plans for the coming "Toy for Joy" drive. Changes in addresses for Rag Tags will be handled by this group also now.

"On the Beam" Handles Change of Addresses

Changes in addresses for Rag Tags will now be handled by the "On the Beam" committee. There is a list of over 2,000 names to whom the service men's edition is sent bi-monthly. Addresses have been changing so frequently that it is impossible for the Rag Tag committee to know of them unless aided by students who will give the new address to their "On the Beam" representative.

Ghita Hill, Waneta Ziegler and Pat Garton are chairmen of the committee. House representatives are:

- Alpha Chi Omega Sally White
- Alpha Omicron Pi Mary Bonebright
- Alpha Phi Ruth Westover
- Alpha Xi Delta Regina Hoyer
- Chi Omega Kathleen Brickell
- Delta Delta Delta Marilyn Meyer
- Delta Gamma Janet Krause

organizations will be contacted by Marjorie Jean Raecke, who will assign a speaker to each group. Bob Leinert, publicity chairman, said that there will be short announcements made at Union dances and at the Mortar Board Party. Art students are also aiding in publicizing the drive by making displays and posters.

Call for Workers

Clerical division under Margaret Beede asks that anyone interested in working on this committee leave their name with the president of their house. There will be one woman from each organized house, five from the dorm and five from Lincoln. Those chosen will meet in room 313 of the Union at 12:30 Tuesday.

On Dec. 11 the ag campus will sponsor a juke box dance in the activity building for the benefit of the AUF drive. Mildred Yost, who is in charge of the program, extends invitations to both civilian and army students. Carroll M. Moon, regional field secretary, will speak in behalf of the AUF drive at an ag convocation Dec. 6 at 10 a. m.

Jimmie Howe is director of this drive with Dr. C. M. Elliott of the business administration college and Dr. T. H. Goodding of the college of agriculture serving as faculty advisers.

Former Student Writes Of WAVE Experiences

(Editor's note: The following is a letter written by A/s Jackie Gladney, former student, now stationed in New York with the WAVES.)

Well, fellas, I've seen a bit of New York. Saturday—the 23rd—was Navy Day, and our regiment marched in the parade down Fifth Avenue from 96th to 62nd. After the parade we had shore liberty, but we had to be back at Hunter (college) by 2100 (9 p. m. to you).

All for Nothing.
We went to the Service Women's center at the Hotel Biltmore. It was wonderful—they have loads of easy chairs, books and magazines, big piles of luscious chocolates sitting around and cigars. In the rest room was a make-up bar, compliments of Elizabeth Arden. They have creams, astringent, cologne, perfume, powder, rouge and lipsticks. Just help yourself!

We had a steak dinner served on a plate on a table with a white cloth! At the station, you see,

Union Presents Flicker Show Today at 4

An old time "flicker show" will be held in the Union ballroom this afternoon at 4:00.

Four movies will be shown on the screen: "Missing Millionaire," starring Douglas Fairbanks, "Blue Riders," "Kidnapped in a Carriage" and "Love and Hisses," with Laurel and Hardy.

Peggy Shelley, at the piano, will furnish the sound effects. Peanuts will be sold at 5c a sack.

we eat from tin trays and heavy handleless mugs. Napkins and tablecloths seem to be out for the duration.

Salutes!

As we walked down the street we had to salute about ten times to the block. Army, navy, British, French, Polish, and one Netherlands officer. Most of them were very nice . . . Smiled and said "Good evening."

Mayor LaGuardia was in the reviewing stand and he said the WAVES (2,500 of 'em) were the hit of the parade. We're allowed to wear our white crowned hats rather than our boat hats (solid blue) and nothing would show up a crooked line quicker, but, of course, the line was straight. I saw several women weeping as we passed.

Points of Interest.

As we marched down Fifth Avenue, Central park was to our left and the Empire State building straight ahead of us. We saw St. Patrick's cathedral, Radio City, the Ritz-Carlton, Grand Central station, Hotel Roosevelt, Yankee stadium, etc. etc., in about four hours.

Getting back to the WAVES—you'd be surprised how great an adjustment must be made from civilian life to a military life. Now the adjustment has been made, we all take the differences for granted, but just at first some of the girls had difficulty accepting orders impersonally and being regimented and treated as a unit rather than as an individual.

I do think, however, that after boot training we will return to a more or less individual basis. However, it won't be like civilian life even then. The navy is more than a career—it is a way of life.

Short Liberty!

Here it is the 5th of November. Now I've got some rubbers and no rain. We've just got about ten days more here. Then off to a training school—probably Bloomington, Ind—storekeeper's school. However, I may be held over for work detail. I wouldn't mind that at all. They get shore liberty Wednesday evening and from noon Saturday until 2400 Sunday. Not bad!

Now it's Saturday noon again. We have just had regimental review and captain's inspection. The inspecting party this time was very snooty. An anemic-looking lieutenant was the head.

Yours,

Jackie.
