glamorous jobs, still what they are doing and learning now is just as important and needed as what other pertinent jobs offer."

College Uniforms Has Pride.

"The uniform of the college coed, the traditional sweater and skirt, can be worn with just as much pride, if the girls are doing their best," Mrs. Moore stated.

Showing that college women are taking the place of men, Mrs. Moore informed the group that the enrollment of many campuses is staying up because more women are coming in to fill the post vacated by men called to the service. The whole liberal education of the world will rest on the women after the war because the education today of men is mainly technical.

Mrs. Moore urged that "women broaden their horizons by education because men are boardening their horizon by experience. We must not be behind the times. While men are seeing and meeting foreign peoples and cities, we must go with them in our minds so that we will be able to keep up with our men and their ideas about the world on their return.

"Life is so daily, that we some-ha industries.

Dr. Clark expects to work in cooperation with the chamber's industrial engineer, William D. Weidlein, who is investigating possibilities for new business in the Omaha area. Meantime, Dr. Clark suggested, other aspects of post-war planning should be pushed and should not be held up pending completion of his work.

Practices Law.

Dr. Clark graduated from the university in 1905, began practicing law at Cheyenne, Wyo., and became known as an expert in irrigation matters. Then he joined Midwest Oil company as general counsel, and later, became a vice-president of Standard Oil.

Independently wealthy before he was 40, Clark decided to quit business to become a teacher—something he had always wanted to do. In 1928 he went to Johns Hopkins and spent three years taking a Ph.D. degree. His thesis was on federal control of trusts.

Dr. Clark was part-time lecturer at Denver university and later at the University of Nebraska, until 1941, when he agreed to become dean of bizad college.
