

Having Gift Troubles? Let Daily Suggestions Help Out

BY ADRIENNE WAGGONER.

Faith, hope and charity are a part of the Christmas spirit, but it is aids to beauty that interest the girls when Christmas gifts are concerned. This is evidenced by the multitude of uniformed men, perplexed looks on their faces, who group about the feminine apparel counters of all downtown stores.

In case some of the boys are still in a fog about what to buy the "one and only," here are a few suggestions. Due to the lack of metal this year, plastic and wooden compacts are being shown. A wooden case with inlaid top of turquoise and coral, or a cradle shaped colorless lucite one would be sure to make a hit. In the same line, matched billfolds and cigarette cases for evening made of embroidered metallic cloth are very much in vogue. Then too, reversible velvet evening mittens in black and white are a favorite.

Birds for the Hair.

For the girl who likes to wear bows, flowers, or what-have-you in her hair, a novel idea is pastel velvet birds fastened on a comb. Perfume sticks are becoming very popular. They are so easy to carry in one's purse, and they can be bought in her favorite scent. When the cold winds blow a pastel or white fascinator will keep her head warm.

There is one gift that could be attributed to a slightly selfish motive, but which would undoubtedly be appreciated, and that is monogrammed stationery. Something new in the handy shoulder strap purses is the pillbox variety; they have caught many a feminine eye, and come in various colors.

Silver and Jade.

Massive jewelry in silver and jade would make any girl's heart skip a beat. Of course it is a bit of a strain on the bank account, but what service man needs to worry about that? A last suggestion is handkerchiefs embroidered with the army or navy insignia.

Perhaps the above mentioned items will facilitate that last minute shopping of some of the boys. It is sincerely hoped that it will, as there is nothing more heart rending than to see a bewildered male surrounded by the confusing maze of knick-knacks in a woman's store.

For the Man in Mind.

Now for the coeds who are in a similar predicament concerning a present for the "big moment." For the man in the army there are numerous items such as a duffel bag, shaving kit, cased brushes, gloves or mittens—many of the boys prefer mittens for every-day use—identification bracelets, etc. Appropriate for men in any branch of the service are the three-way leather picture folders, preferably with a picture enclosed. A suggestion for the girl engaged to a navy man is the navy watch, which tells the hour in bells when a button is pushed.

Ideas for the civilian boys are monogrammed book matches, billfolds, cigarette cases, initialed scarfs, and the snappy ski sweaters which are the pride of their lives.

With only eight more days until Christmas, it's now or never if you're going to get that present under the big Christmas tree.

Students Want Odd Presents For Christmas From Santa

BY POLLY PETERSON.

CALLING ALL SANTA CLAUSES CALLING OLD ST. NICK CALLING ANY MAN

Proceed at once to Nebraska's campus. The students are armed with dangerous weapons—what they want for Christmas.

Tom Dworak, ATO, keeps shouting that he wants a plaid suit. The fellow next to him, Roger Bentley, former student at Northwestern, wants a quart of Canadian Club to accompany his three vices: redheads, brunettes and blondes.

You'll see one in riding boots—she is Phi Pi Dolores Weaver, and she merely wants a purple cow and Tommy Dorsey arrangement of "My First Love."

Men Dreams.

Ruth Korb, Kappa, hopes Santa Ken supply her another hunting field. But B. J. Frankfurter, Alpha Phi, wants to ride with you to The Dalles, Oregon (and isn't to see the scenery).

The one humming Tropical Magic is Johnny Wells, Beta, who wants to be marooned on a desert island with a burnette, 5' 3 with green eyes and in a sarong (ah who wouldn't).

Try and Get It.

Ray Andrews, a STAR who use to be a Harvard boy, wants a honorable discharge from the army, so he can be a traveling bum.

All Jimmie Howe wants is a cute blonde all wrapped in a Rolls-Royce. But please give George Lucas a good right shoulder. (Ah who does he take out?)

Kenfield to California.

Susan Poge just wants you to bring back the old gang to Sutton, so she can play this vacation. Jim Nicola would like to either send Kenfield to the Phi Psi house or to California ("best" you send him to California as that's where he is going to find his Christmas package.)
