British Consul, J. Price, Talks At Conference

Annual conference for all members of the Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service was held on the campus from Tuesday through this morning. County agents from all parts of the state met on both campuses for a work conference to discuss problems of wartime production and post-war agricultural adjustments.

One of the outstanding speakers of the conference was Mr. John Price, British Consul from Kansas City, Missouri, who spoke Thursday afternoon on "Britain at War."

British Like Russia.

Price described the changes that the war has brought to British life, and when questioned, said that Russia is the most popular foreign government in the eyes of the British people today.

Several members of the ag college faculty presented the results of research which they have been carrying on in their respective fields. Miss Mary Guthrie of the textiles and clothing department spoke on the new trends in fabrics and the results of tests on war time hosiery. Dr. Ruth Leverton presented the work being carried on in relation to the food content of several Nebraska food products, and Miss Margaret Liston spoke on family economics. Dr. Leland Stott and Dr. Ruth Staples spoke regarding the "Effect of the War on Children and Families."

Approximately 200 people attended the conferences.

state engineers in Nebraska. He requested that the money be used at the discretion of the board of regents for the benefit of the engineering college, especially for civil engineering. Dobson expressed hope that the gift would be used for engineering scholarships or to help hold worthy men on the staff.

Lieutenant Colonel Dobson, formerly of the Dobson Construction company, Lincoln, has been stationed in Virginia, where he is receiving training for assignment in the American occupational forces abroad.

Prestegaard Bequest.

Gus Prestegaard, a Lincoln businessman, donated $1,000 for scholarships for as many students as the university officials see fit. Any recipient must show a need for help and must have demonstrated ability to carry on university study, according to terms of the bequest. Students of any college and of either sex will be eligible.

ASTR Begins Classes Here January 10

A quota of 150 Army Specialized Training Reserves has been assigned to the university campus. Twenty-four of the men had arrived by Thursday noon and all will be on the campus by the opening of the new specialized training classes January 10, Col. James P. Murphy announced yesterday.

The men of the new unit are under 18 and will come from high schools in Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska. A few have had some previous college work. They will be enrolled in the regular ASTP course until they reach the end of the academic term in which their eighteenth birthday falls. At that time they will be sent to basic training for 17 weeks.

Registration information for the second semester, beginning Jan. 31, has been released by Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, director of admissions. The following early registration schedule applies only to students registered during the first semester of 1943-44.

Junior division registrants met with their advisers for pre-registration conferences last month. Upperclassmen should see their advisers Jan. 10-15, while ag college students must see their advisers Jan. 10, 11, 12.

Leave Applications with Deans.

Applications for registration and a statement of outside activities should be left with the dean of each student's college or with the dean of the junior division, who will approve the courses.

All colleges will pay fees in Memorial hall (entrance east door), presenting identification card with pictures, Wednesday, Jan. 26, to Friday, Jan. 28, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., including noon hour. Registration is not complete until fees are paid.

A late fee will be charged all students who do not see their advisers and whose applications are not in the offices of their respective deans by Jan. 15 (noon); also to those who do not pay their fees by Jan. 28.

Changes in registration or assignment will not be considered until Monday, Jan. 31.

Bizad Offers Ec Course On USSR

Bizad college will again offer an economic course on Soviet Russia during the second semester of the current school year. Open to juniors in all colleges the course will include the development of the five year plans upon which the economic structure of Russia is now built.

A two hour lecture course with assigned readings, the class will meet at 3 p. m. on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, and will be taught by Dr. John D. Clark, dean of bizad college.

The course, which is known as Economics 187, will cover the history of all popular movements, political and economic, of Russia from the time of Alexander the First to the present dictatorship of communist government. The experience of Russia under the five year plans will be stressed.

Administration Building Walls Get Paint Job

An interior face-lifting job is being done on the administration building this week. Built in 1908, it has only been painted four times in the last 20 years, according to L. F. Seaton, operating superintendent of the university.

In an attempt to lighten the first and second floor corridors, the upper half of the walls are being painted white, while the lower sections will remain cream. Also those offices needing it the most will be redecorated.

Ag Staff, Regent Discuss Post-War Farms on Forum

Post-war regulation of agriculture will be discussed by four ag college staff members and C. Y. Thompson, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation, on the university forum of the air over KFAB next Saturday afternoon.

George Round, extension editor, will be moderator. Others from the college staff will be H. G. Gould, assistant director of agricultural extension; H. C. Filley, professor of rural economics, and M. L. Baker, professor of animal husbandry. C. Y. Thompson is actively engaged in farming at West Point, is a member of the university board of regents.
