GROUND HOG SEES SELF? NOT REALLY!

When the ground hog saw his shadow Wednesday, it must have been a shadow of a doubt as Nebraska lacked only palm trees, sea breezes, and Miami Chamber of Commerce not to be mistaken for Florida in February.

First symptoms of spring are: Clothes lines minus the red flannels, soldiers singing "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" instead of "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," crowded porches instead of overfilled parlors, and misinformed soldiers forced to remove their four shirts, three sweaters, and two jackets.

Moral: For further forecasts of the weather read your local newspaper or almanac, instead of taking the advice of coeds or the ground hog.

Promoting the fourth war loan drive will be a war stamp dance Friday evening at 9 o'clock in the Union ballroom.

Admittance to the dance, sponsored by the war council, will be granted thru the purchase of a war stamp at the door.

The AST band will play from 9:15 to 10:15, after which time there will be music from the juke box.

Students or soldiers may attend with or without dates.

Rosenlof Outlines Plan

That University credit will be given to the members of the armed service for the courses they complete on this campus, was the recent action of the university senate, according to Dr. Rosenlof, director of admissions and university examiner.

"Any member of the armed forces on this campus should be exceedingly happy to know that the program of studies they are pursuing here is considered to be sufficiently valuable and sufficiently fine, academically speaking, as to merit credit" said Dr. Rosenlof.

Job Analysis Needed Says C. S. Boucher

Chancellor C. S. Boucher, speaking at the opening of the state conference on post-war adjustments in higher education here Thursday, said that it is necessary to subject educational procedures to a complete job-analysis in order to meet the problems facing man individually and man in society today.

"There is greater need than ever before for more citizens to have effective opportunities to develop broad knowledge, disciplined intelligence and discriminating taste," the Chancellor asserted. "In times of rapid and awe-inspiring changes educators cannot be slaves of tradition and also be successful."

The conference will run thru Saturday, with representatives of all higher educational institutions of Nebraska in attendance. Sessions are held at the Student Union.

The accreditation applies to military science, the specialized training programs and the United States Armed Forces institute courses.

This includes, according to the office of the registrar, men stationed on this campus at present. However, credit given to Nebraska men stationed at other colleges will be up to the colleges being attended.

Dr. Rosenlof will confer with any of the men in uniform and advise them how credits earned here may be used for advanced standing credit elsewhere.

Pass Committee Approval.

Credit for "basic military science," not to exceed four semester hours, will be granted upon the approval of the committee on advanced standing to any person, honorably discharged, who presents evidence of active service. Credit for "advanced military science" will not exceed 12 semester hours. Sarma Tells About Indian Populace and War Effort

Millions of Indians in war work and military service are "united to establish peace and bring in a new world order," said Sir Ramaswami Srinivasa Sarma, public relations counsel to the government of Bengal, when he spoke on "India and the War" before an audience of over 100 at the Union last Thursday.

India has been represented, according to Sir Ramaswami as a state which interferes with the war effort because of desire for independence more than a desire of stopping aggression.

With an apology for his broken English, the Indian leader, small in stature, dark skinned, began to tell of India through its populace, not through its politics.

Two Ag Faculty Members Attend Food Conference

Dr. Ruth Leverton of the ag college experiment station staff, and Dr. H. O. Werner of the horticulture department recently attended a meeting in Chicago of the representatives of the experiment stations of 11 mid-western states.

The conference dealt with a national research problem on the conservation of the nutritive values of food during preparation and shipping.

The Nebraska department has been making a study of the varieties of potatoes and tomatoes highest in nutritive value and of the most productive forms of cultivation. Dr. Leverton, key worker for research on tomatoes, presented a summary of the work of the district.

Stamps Reach $871.24 Total On Wednesday

Sale of $331.35 worth of war stamps on Wednesday, the largest amount yet sold in one day, brought the total for the campus Fourth War Loan drive up to $871.24, $1,122.36 short of the $2,000 drive goal.

This includes stamps sold this week by Tassels in a drive covering every organized house on the campus. Tuesday evening $42 was collected from Howard, Wilson, and Rosa Bouten halls. Wednesday evening trip, including all but three of the sororities, netted $36.25. Returns are not yet available for Thursday night's sales when the remainder of the unaffiliated houses were visited.

Wednesday Rates High.

The $331.35 taken in Wednesday, the regular stamp day, topped the sales for the high day, up until that time, by $101.60. One booth was forced to turn people away when they ran out of stamps late that afternoon.

The Union booth was high with $187.50 and ag second with a total of $96.95. Andrews and Social Science booths sold $26.05 and $20.85.

Mary Russel, Tassel president, expressed belief that the sales would easily reach at least the $1,500 mark before the completion of the drive, next week, if sales continued at the present rate.

Total war stamp sales for the year are now $1,987.15.

Monthly Meetings.

Lois Christie, president of the council, recommended that future meetings be held only once a month instead of bi-monthly because of lack of business.

ers was once again brought up. A report from the athletic board of control stated that the group will not officially either approve or disapprove of installing girl cheerleaders. Council members plan to talk to Dean Verna G. Boyles before the next meeting, so that definite action can be taken as soon as possible.

Elections Layed on Table.

Layed on the table until the next meeting was the spring elections question. At that time members hope to decide whether to hold the usual elections, and if so, at what time.

The constitution committee, in co-operation with the judiciary committee, is checking the constitutions of other universities, and will present a report on them to the council in the near future.
