Dr. Thompson Initiates Fund For Research

A fund for the support of research work done under university supervision by resident doctors in Lincoln hospitals has been initiated by Dr. J. E. M. Thomson of Lincoln, it was announced by the Nebraska Foundation today. Dr. Thomson has contributed $1,500 to begin the fund in the hope that additional gifts will swell the fund to such an extent that an adequate program can be supported.

Recognize Advantages.

Plans for the fund anticipate the day when Lincoln hospitals will be approved for the training of resident doctors and will recognize the advantages that will come from a working relationship between the hospitals and the science departments of the university in research problems, it was explained by Perry W. Branch, secretary of the Foundation.

present level in spite of AST liquidation was guaranteed in a statement by Chancellor C. S. Boucher today.

He stated that the balance between army and civilian programs and enrollment in the current year put Nebraska in an excellent position to offer complete programs in the next academic year for civilian students. All colleges of the university are offering courses at present, with the exception of the college of law in which instruction was suspended in 1943 for the duration, and the various colleges will continue to offer their programs.

UN is Fortunate.

"Some institutions are not as fortunate a condition because of greater loss of civilian students and instructors," he said. "In some colleges and universities the army and navy training programs
