AST Students To Be Given Partial Credit

Reassuring AST students that their academic achievements while at Nebraska will not go unrewarded even for partial completion of courses, Dr. George W. Rosenlof, director of Admissions and University Examiner, disclosed yesterday that the University of Nebraska will deal fairly with every single trainee and will recommend due credit for all course work completed while on campus.

"Students in the ASTP should not let the present unsettled state of their future interfere with their study program," Dr. Rosenlof stated. He pointed out that "civilian students have been allowed partial credit for course work completed only in part. There is no reason to doubt but that the trainees will be accorded the same privileges and opportunities."

"Our advice," urged Dr. Rosenlof, "is to stay by your work and salvage all the credit possible. To do less is only to defeat yourself."

Co. B Tackles Blue Tomorrow Night in Prelim

An old rivalry will be renewed Saturday night when Company C's Blue Wave and the Hustler-Cagers of B Company meet in the Coliseum prelim to the Oklahoma-Nebraska game. The tip-off will be at 6:30.

The favored C men have two victories in three outings with the Green, and will be gunning for the championship of the third round in intermurals. The trainee championship will be decided by the total number of intermural victories in the three rounds. Currently leading the crop is Company C with nine consecutive wins, after their loss to "B" in their first intermural contest while the underdogs have dropped but two tilts, and can tie for the crown if they dump "C" Saturday.

The powerful Blue Wave have wins over the air corps and A Company in the third round, while Lt. Cook's team has topped the Field House and A Company. So Saturday's "crucial contest" should reveal plenty of action.

"B" will start off with Ellis Jessen at center, Bunny Fuller and Bob Scheer in the backcourt, and Doug Brady and Jack Baker at forwards. The Blue team will have Cliff Lind in the pivot, Chuck Burdette and Al Burstein holding down the guard posts, and Milt Dolrer and Ev Parminter in the forward slots.

Dr. Thomson expects the fund to stimulate interest in medical research in the Lincoln hospitals. Residence is now offered by the hospitals, but such a program is expected in the near future.

Garner to Play For Trainee Hop In Union Ballroom

Grab your gals while you can! Tomorrow's time for another Union-Army dance for all campus military trainees. Eddie Garner and his band will swing out with the jive and sweet in the Union ballroom starting at 9.

Lincolnette and War Council hostesses with the usual white arm-ribbons will be on hand to dance with the stag line. Refreshments will be served. The affair will end at 12.

The dance is free to all GIs on campus. They must, however, present their Union membership card at the door. As in the past, STARS will be admitted at 25c a couple. Three dances have been planned by the Union for the soldiers next month. They will take place on March 4, March 11, and March 25.
