

UN Fourth As Cyclones Win Track

Dean Kratz Wins Bill Lyda Trophy

With Iowa State's trainee-spiked Cyclones winning their first indoor championship in the history of the conference, Nebraska's seven man all-civilian squad grabbed off fourth place honors in the annual Big Six indoor track meet at Kansas City Saturday night.

Paced by Dean Kratz' double victory in the 440 and the 880, the Huskers amassed 22 1/3 points. The victorious Iowa Staters scored 38 points, Missouri finished in second place with 28 1/3, and Kansas grabbed third with 27 1/3. Oklahoma finished fifth and Kansas State was last, failing to place a man in any event.

Kratz Wins Trophy.

Husker Kratz became the first runner to win the Bill Lyda memorial half-mile trophy when he won that event in 2:03.6. In the quarter-mile, Kratz was forced to stage a strong finishing spurt to overtake Richey of Kansas and grab his second win of the day, with a time of :53.2.

Dick Miller, Fairbury freshman, with the other first-place winner for the Huskers as he copped the pole-vault at 11'9".

Where as, the preservation of freedom of each nation is requisite to international security,

Where as, the problem of excessive armaments makes international security impossible, and

Where as, an expression of organized public opinion is of influence in shaping the foreign policy of the United States,

Be it resolved by the delegates of the fourth annual University of Nebraska intercollegiate debate and discussion conference;

First, that a spirit of internationalism be fostered by the United States;

Second, that there be an elimination of unnecessary trade barriers and that there be a gradual reduction of excessive trade barriers to the point at which foreign and domestic goods are on a competitive basis;

Third, that an international organization with a nucleus of the United Nations be established to provide a system of collective security in which each nation enjoys that amount of sovereignty which is compatible to an equal amount of sovereignty in all other nations;

Fourth, that the international organization should enjoy a monopoly of the world's heavy armaments;

Fifth, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the congressmen and state legislators of the seven states in which the 26 colleges represented at this fourth annual University of Nebraska intercollegiate debate and discussion conference are located.

Second Guessing

with

Harold W. Andersen

A decided dark horse came through to win the Big Six indoor track championships at Kansas City last Saturday when Iowa State grabbed off the laurels.

The Cyclones were definitely an unknown quantity when the curtain went up on this year's carnival, but it took them but a short time to demonstrate to the three thousand onlookers that they were clearly the class of the meet. Heavily spiked with Naval trainees, the Iowa Staters won the championship, their first indoor crown, in easy fashion.

Kratz Shines.

Nebraska's seven man squad made a creditable showing, grabbing as many first places as the Cyclones but lacking the squad strength to give them better than fourth place. Dean Kratz, sophomore letterman, lived up to advance notices by copping both the 440 and the 880. With two more years of competition before him, Kratz bids fair to rank among the best middle distance runners in Nebraska track history.

The showing of Norval Barker, frosh hurdler, gave promise of greater things to come. Barker copped second in both hurdle events in the meet, his second taste of collegiate competition. The tall, blond lad has already equalled the best times which Husker great Bill Smutz turned in as a freshman, and Smutz, it will be remembered, set conference marks in the hurdle events.

Sooners Rock Cyclones.

Oklahoma's 44-30 victory over Iowa State Monday night ranks as the biggest upset to date in Big Six conference play. Victorious over the Sooners at Norman earlier in the season, the Cyclones were doped to take the Oklahomans in handy fashion and cinch the conference crown.

Bruce Drake's Sooners had other ideas on the matter, however, and assured themselves of at least a half share of the loop title by completely outclassing the Iowa Staters, 44-30.

Cyclones Fall To Sooners In 44-30 Tilt

Oklahoma's Sooner cinched at least a half interest in the Big Six basketball crown by upsetting Iowa State, 44-30, at Ames Monday night.

The Cyclones, who now must defeat Kansas at Lawrence Friday to assure themselves of a share of the title, battled Oklahoma on even terms through most of the first half, but the Sooners grabbed the lead late in the period and steadily pulled away during the second half.

'N' Club Initiates Twelve Members; Chooses Officers

Twelve new members of the N club were initiated Monday evening, Feb. 28. Following initiation, Al Artman was elected president of the club.

Other officers are Dean Kratz, vice president; Bert Gissler, secretary; Kenneth Hollins and Frank Hazard, sergeants at arms.

Earl Eager, Morris Galter, Bert Gissler, Bob Goldstein, Frank Hazard, Ken Hollins, Harry Johnston, Lyle Kops, Pat Rooney, and Bob Schneider, who earned their letters in football last fall, Dean Kratz, trackman from last spring, and William Long, member of the rifle team in '42, were the initiates.

Assisting A. J. Lewandowski with the initiation were Judge Adolph Wenke, W. L. Day, Ellery Davis, Charles Armstrong, Ed Weir and William Reisenberg, "N" man now in service.

Basketball men will be initiated at the N club meeting March 7.

K.U.'s Phog Allen Frets; Team Misses Free-Shots

LAWRENCE, Kas.—The matter of free throws is distressing the Old Master of basketball on Mt. Oread these days. Coach Forrest C. "Phog" Allen's University of Kansas basketball team dropped two torrid, closely contested cage games to Bruce Drake's enterprising Sooners from Oklahoma, simply because the team members were unable to hit the loop from the charity line. In both games, the Jayhawks outscored the Drakemen from the field, but when the carnage of battle had cleared away, the Oklahomans were out in front by one point in the first game, and by four in the return engagement at Norman.

Phog Ex-college Ace.

All of which has developed some new gray hairs in the unusually youthful appearing head of Dr. Allen. Dr. Allen played basketball when one team member was elected to shoot all the free throws for his team, and he was the selected back in the days when he played for the University of Kansas. In one contest with the Haskell Indians, he set a record of 30 charity tosses out of 31 chances, and then the free throw mark was back 20 feet from the goal instead of 15 where it is now located.

So concern over free throws is nothing new for "Phog." A daily routine of every member of his squad is to toss 50 free throws under competitive conditions, with players lined up on either side of the free zone, and stepping back from the mark after each throw.

It isn't just lack of practice that causes the boys to miss when they get into a hot game. It must be hyper-tension, Dr. Allen points out.

Dr. Allen Perplexed.

In Norman last week, the Sooners canned 15 out of 17 attempts from the free line while the Kansans got only 5 out of 13 chances. Big Don Barrington, who scored eight field goals, missed five out of seven efforts. And MacSpadden, the only veteran on the team, went astray on three. Barrington has had trouble from the free line all year. In Kansas City's Municipal auditorium in late December, against Missouri, he missed eight straight. And that was the night after he had scored ten field goals against the Kansas Aggies.

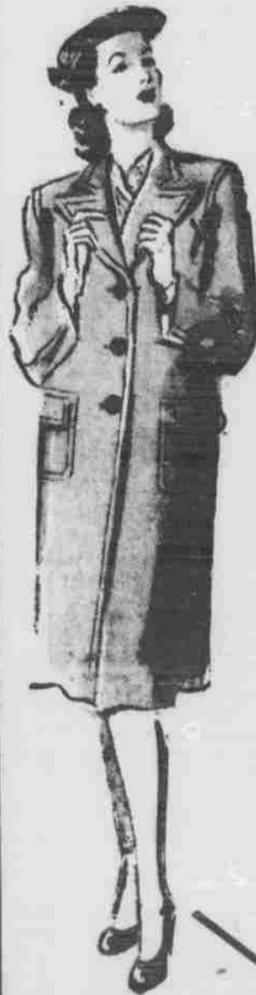

So the Kansas mentor shakes his head, and looks perplexed. His team from raw material has come a long way this season, but he still doesn't know what to do about those free throws.
