Theater Needs Acting Recruits For Uni Plays

University Theater needs actors to carry on another successful season of plays, according to D. S. Williams, new theater director. The theater cannot take actors who are unfamiliar with university productions so anyone who may be interested in this activity is urged to enroll in the acting class.

The class meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11 a. m. and junior, seniors, and sophomores with special permission are eligible. Students will not only receive university credit for the class but will also have better opportunity to obtain roles in University Theater plays.

Anyone interested should see Dallas S. Williams as soon as possible at Temple.

YW Cabinet Outlines Plans For Activities

Meeting Wednesday for the first business session of the semester, members of the YWCA cabinet planned the year's activities.

As part of the planned schedule, a series of teas for university women will begin Oct. 6 when there will be a discussion of the intercollegiate conference held in June at Estes Park, Colo.

Miller at Conference.
Co-chairmen of the conference were Bill Miller of the university and Jean Werts from Kansas State college. Bill Sakayama was chosen to represent the regional council at the National Intercollegiate Christiana council meeting at Lake Forest, Ill., in July. Winner Of National Speech Contest Finds Mexico Beautiful And Primitive

Geraldine McKinsey, winner of a nationwide discussion contest sponsored by the co-ordinator of Inter-American affairs under the auspices of the American council of education, has returned to UN after spending 2½ months in Mexico as a result of her triumphs in the oratorical field.

By submitting a manuscript to the national office of the co-ordinator last spring, Gerry won admission to the regional semi-finals of the contest at Austin, Tex. There she placed first and received a trip to Washington, D. C., to participate against five other regional semi-finalists. The speeches given there were a part of the Pan-American Day activities

Dallas S. Williams, director of University theater, has announced a general meeting to be held Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, Temple building, room 201, for all students interested in the season's dramatic schedule. Students need not be majoring in speech or drama to attend.

Mr. Williams will present possible play selections for the group's consideration, and this year's dramatic program will be influenced by the reactions of those present. Five plays to be produced from Nov. 2, 3, 4; Dec. 7, 8, 9; Feb. 15 (Charter Day) 16, 17; Mar. 22, 23, 24; and Apr. 26, 27, and 28.

It is planned to reorganize National Collegiate Players, national dramatic honorary society, last active on the campus in 1941. The organization was formed June, 1922, by the coalition of two honorary dramatic groups, Pi Epsilon Delta and Associated University Players, both of which proposed to recognize and encourage all dramatic endeavor.

Mr. Williams formerly directed plays at Southwest State Teachers college, San Marcos, Tex., and Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La. He replaces Berne Enslin as speech and dramatic instructor and director of University theater.

Ninety-One War Veterans Enroll On UN Campus

Ninety-one veterans of the current war have returned to the university this semester, according to Professor J. P. Colbert, chairman of a faculty committee assigned to handle special problems incident to their enrollment under the GI bill of rights or as disabled veterans.

Professor Colbert discussed the needs and problems of veteran students in a brief report to the faculty at the annual homecoming dinner Friday night at the Union.

Coed Destroys George's Faith In Womanhood

George's faith in womanhood has been destroyed! It's a sad plight and a long story!

It all began one dank and dreary night, namely Sept. 18, when George Eisenhower was standing in the foyer of the Union watching the rain slosh down outside. A little coed escorted by an air corps lieutenant happened by and they were sad—extremely sad—because the little coed had no raincoat.

Like all good AST men, George is a thoughtful and chivalrous creature and so offered to loan his beautiful green oilcloth, GI style, raincoat to the little coed.

Boucher, Arndt Talk at Faculty Dinner Friday

Chancellor C. S. Boucher and Professor Karl Arndt discussed "integrated courses" at the annual faculty homecoming dinner held Friday night in the Student Union.

Chancellor Boucher discussed the introductory courses stating that it is no longer necessary to argue the purposes and educational values of integrated courses, when in each instance the course is specially designed and conducted at the appropriate level of difficulty or comprehension with clearly defined educational objectives for a particular student group.

In cases where such courses have failed, he pointed out, the blame could be laid to faculty deficiency rather than student deficiency.

Professor Arndt outlined what has been done at Nebraska with a new course in "social institutions" which integrates material from the fields of sociology, political science and economics.

Reporting that during the past two years the agronomy department of the experiment station has released to Nebraska farmers 24 new varieties of 11 different farm crops. Dr. Quisenberry also cited the recently released Pawnee wheat and its good record against the black stem rust which was destructive of many other varieties the past summer.

Rev. R. E. Drew Directs Campus Vesper Series

A new series of Campus Vespers will open Tuesday, Sept. 26. This new series is designed to bring religion to the students in a different way.

The service is short—a half hour—and includes a 15-minute talk by off-campus or leading Lincoln pastors on subjects of interest to students. The services will give the university a vesper service comparable to the chapel services of other university campuses.

The All-Campus Vespers will be under the direction of the Vesper Staff composed of seven students and an adult advisor, Rev. Robert E. Drew, Methodist student pastor. The staff is sponsored by the university's Religious Welfare committee.

The theme for the year is "Finding Life's Meaning." Each talk will emphasize some phase of this topic. Other than the guest speaker, the entire service will be in the hands of students.

Vespers is no longer open only to women as has been the case in the past. The men on the campus are not only invited but are represented on the staff as well.

All-Campus Vespers will be held every Tuesday from 5 till 5:30 in parlors XYZ of the Student Union.

Union Grill Starts Self-Serve Hours

Self-service hours in the Union Grill went into effect last week to ease the waiter shortage. During the rush hours at lunch and dinner and on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, there will be table service. Pat Lahr, Union director, said, but at all other times customers will place their own orders at the bar and take them to the tables.

The air conditioning has been turned on throughout the Union in hopes that it will alleviate the fly trouble, Miss Lahr said.
