

Lew Hopes To Locate TD Remedy

Going scoreless in three times out Nebraska's Cornhuskers are going into drills in preparation to meet the University of Missouri in the annual homecoming game Saturday in hopes that the needed ingredient to produce points will show up and give the Scarlets a few of the necessary tallies that so far have not been seen.

Lew's men in the scarlet and cream went to Kansas with bright hopes and a good chance to bring back their first victory but something happened to the Husker eleven that left them without the spirit to make good the opportunity for a better showing.

No Injuries.

One good thing about the Jayhawk entanglement was the fact that all UN gridmen returned without injury such as those received in the Minnesota and Indiana struggles that left the Husker-men woefully weak in spots.

Saturday's assignment will be tougher than the KU game for the youthful Scarlets with the Tigers putting out a team that has so far made the Minnesota Gophers sit up and take notice and succeeded in drawing a tie count against the top-flight Iowa State Cyclones last Saturday.

Delestatious, Collins Present.

Spear-heading the Bengal drive will be Bill Delestatious who was on hand last year and won acclaim as one of the fastest ball-toters in the middle west. Also with the Tigers will be Paul Collins who has operated very successfully with Delestatious from a T formation that has put the Missouri team on the list as a threat for Big Six championship honors.

Last year's UN-MU contest saw the Tigers marching over the Cornhusker eleven by a 54-20 count, Missouri being one of the three teams to hang up a total of 54 points against the Huskers last year.

The Homecoming affair is likely to turn into a long afternoon for Huskers, fans and players alike, but a fine crowd is expected to be on hand for the struggle.

Coach Cuts I-S Cage Squad To Twenty-Five

Ames, Ia., Oct. 23.—After several weeks of intensive practice, Coach Louis Menze has cut the Iowa State college basketball squad from 65 to 25. The roster now includes 19 V-12 trainees and six civilians.

Only two returning lettermen from last season's Big Six championship squad are available. Guard Bill Block and forward Jim Myers are the two returning veterans from last year. A 1942 letterman, forward Orlyn Fuerbach, who was recently discharged from the Army, is on this year's squad. Jim Harland, a 1944 squad member but not a letter winner, is also on this season's squad.

Freshmen Show Well.

Two 17 year old freshmen who have shown well in the early pre-

HORSE SENSE

By Norris Anderson

BY NORRIS ANDERSON.

A long-term siege of marine skulduggery in the deep southland brought us in contact with enough former Cornhuskers to nearly form a gridiron unit.

Virtually every Cornhusker we contacted expressed two desires: (1) For the blinkety-blank war to end. (2) To climb back into University of Nebraska grid togs.

Our training mates at Camp LeJuenne, N. C. included Hank Reichel, colorful little soph backfield scooter on the 1942 club; Vic Clark, rugged 6-4 end on the same squad; Bert Brown, one of Lew's basketball mainstays; Warren Jeffries, UN varsity wrestler; Bob Hazen, a frosh backfielder and brother of Jack; Everett Nelson, prize frosh cager, and Pat Boyle, Husker baseball performer.

Partington Scoots.

We managed two trips up to Chapel Hill to see the powerful Carolina Pre-Flight eleven, whose backfield is tutored by Nebraska's Glen Presnell. Filling the pivot spot for the Cloud-busters was Cornhusker Joe Partington, who performed for Northwestern as a V-12 transfer during the 1943 season.

It was Little Joe, 175 pounds of the leading defensive ingredients in the Pre-Flight line, who snapped up a Navy fumble and sped 55 yards to give his mates a 21-14 victory over the touted Annapolis crew in the early-season starter.

"Joe swivel-hipped 'em like a halfback," commented Otto Graham, the Northwestern All-American, after the game. "Pres certainly overlooked a good running back there." Graham and Joe had been teammates at Northwestern the year before.

Football All Day.

Somewhat set back because Partington was being transferred the day after the Navy game, Pres was non-the-less pleased at the showing of his smooth backfield. He still uses the orthodox T, tho a passer of Graham proportions spreads the enemy secondary enough to add plenty of dividends to the running attack.

Prof. Presnell spends his entire working day teaching football classes. Football plays a major part in Navy physical fitness and every aviation cadet is required to learn the game.

Presnell, Jr., now a booming four, has outgrown that red "N" sweater he used to wear to Husker basketball games. His mother also confided that "pop" was already tossing the football around with the little guy.

The future? "I think we have some tall scores to settle," says the former Husker coach, "and every lad with any eligibility left that I have talked to intends to come back and help the situation."

We were close by when the results of the Indiana-Husker game came over the radio. "Just wait," said Reichel. And that, we believe, should be a Husekr slogan.

season practices are Robert Mott, 6 foot 3 inch center, and Warren Herman, 6 foot 2 inch guard.

Jack Runyan and Merle Kleen, two veterans of last spring's Cyclone baseball team, are showing well at guard and center, respectively.

Center Bill Bailey, a former University of Minnesota player, and Ted Chamberlain, who played last season at MacAlester college of St. Paul, show promise while Ted Schaller, another V-12 trainee, has been working out at forward.

Although this year's squad lacks the experience of last year's championship club, the spirit and potential power are evident in the early workouts.

Iowa State college opens its basketball season here on Dec. 4 against the University of Minnesota.

The game of billiards is believed to have been introduced into France during the reign of Louis XIV.

Poll . . .

(Continued from Page 1.)

family party affiliation. Other reasons for choice are usually not because the voter has thought the question out, but that he is influenced by the opinions of others. We want the answers to be as honest as possible. Students will not be asked to sign their names on the ballots," Miss Chamberlain stated.

She also stressed the fact that former political polls taken at the university have never been complete. This year The Nebraskan is emphasizing complete participation in filling out the ballots. All students living in organized or affiliated houses will be contacted at the dinner hour Monday night. It will be up to the unaffiliated students living in Lincoln to fill out their ballots at either of the two booths.

Results of the poll will be tabulated and published in The Ne-

Sports

Bench Warming With Dick Dilsaver

Return of Norris Anderson's column, Horse Sense, to The Nebraskan (though it be only one issue, should be gratefully received by readers. Norrie knows what hes talking about when its along the line of sports.

Harry "Hippity" Hopp, ex-Husker grid star, seems to still have the knack of scoring touchdowns that once brought him fame, on UN elevens according to reports of the Camp Bainbridge win over Camp Perry. Hopp made a 66-yard gallop on a magnificent punt return to give the sailors their win] braskan on Wednesday, Nov. 1. Comparison of votes according to college, male and female choice, and reasons for choice will be published.

legal voting age or not, will state their choice of candidates.

Mary Louise Goodwin is in charge of distribution of ballots and Betty Lou Huston is in charge of the Ag poll. Staff members of The Nebraskan are assisting in the poll.

Plastic Prerifiers

From our new collection

As sketched—

The round compact of crystal-clear plastic faceted like a diamond with mirror top. Actually 5 inches in diameter. $5

At right—Mock tortoise shell dorine, loose powder, 3 inches long and 2½ inches wide . . . small size for purse-toting. $1 (tax-free)

Miller's Jewelry—First Floor.

MILLER & PAINE

Your Hairdresser For Homecoming

MISS AGNES BEAUTE SHOPPE

Agnes F. Schmitt

Hotel Cornhusker

1-3122, 2-6971

FREE VARIETY SHOW

Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray in "FLIGHT TO FREEDOM" 8:00 P. M., SUN., OCT. 29 UNION BALLROOM

OUR PLATFORM is brief but sincere

All we propose to do is to serve you to the limit of our ability, with quality, fairly-priced workmanship.

