from parties whose platforms and systems of organization have become out-dated from year to year.

"Only such groups as are officially recognized by the Student Council as political parties may present party candidates in any campus election. This in no way means that a student who does not belong to a party is barred from filing his candidacy for office, providing he meets the requirements set up for all candidates for office. Such a student is free to file as an independent.

"In the same way, no student shall be required to belong to a political party. He may vote simply as an independent, casting his ballot for those candidates whom he considers best fitted for the positions open. Nor shall any party member be required to vote a straight party ticket. He may do so if he chooses, but it is to be hoped that he will cast his ballot for the most worthy candidate for each position, regardless of that candidate's political affiliation.

"A party member's main duty to his party is in helping to select the most worthy members of his party for candidates for office. His duty in the final election is to the school, in helping to put the most worthy of the candidates into office.

"The council has two main aims in taking this action with regard to political parties, namely:

1. To encourage practice and training among the students in the handling of those political institutions which are characteristic of our present national and local governments.

2. To make our campus politics more democratic.

"Toward the accomplishment of the first aim, the Council agrees to recognize political parties; first, because parties provide an effective means of choosing candidates for office, and second, because parties provide a means for holding persons responsible for what action they take when once in office.

"Furthermore, the Council hereby legalizes, and in fact, demands, the existence of a faction organization within each recognized party, primarily to aid each party in operating as easily and efficiently as possible. The faction is to be a group of party members elected to represent the party as a whole in the conduct of that party's business. It shall be the duty of the faction to draw up its party's slate of candidates for each campus election and to keep the party as a whole informed of that party's activities.

"It is the hope of the Council to make the campus politics as democratic, i.e., as truly representative of all students, as possible. Therefore, toward this accomplishment of the second aim, the following suggestions are made regarding the formation of political parties.

"1. The name of the party. It is realized, tho in no way endorsed by the Council, that a party consisting of Greeks alone and a party consisting of Barbs alone may possibly be formed on the campus. However, some Greeks may not choose to belong to the first party and some Barbs may not choose to belong to the second party, desiring to form separate parties instead. For this reason, the Council strongly recommends that the names, Greek, Union, and Barb not be used by any party, since these particular names are likely to be misleading and to be misrepre-sentative of the true situation. "2. The platform of the party. Since the platforms of all parties (See COUNCIL, page 5)
